Eighth Government Upheaval Hits Saigon

United Nations Ends Stormy Session

Situation Reported As Tense

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Another coup hit Saigon today, but late this afternoon an attempt to nullify it appeared to be in the making.

Warplanes were circling the rebel-held Saigon radio station, and tanks were drawn up outside the station. Loudspeakers repeatedly warned the civilians to clear the area.

There was no shooting as yet, but the situation was extremely tense.

Col. Pham Ngoc Thao, leader of the rebels, said the coup's purpose was to end the dictatorship of Lt. Gen. Nguyen Khanh, the strongman commander of the Vietnamese armed forces.

Thao claimed that Khanh was under house arrest and that Brig. Gen. Nguyen Cao Ky, commander of the Air Force, was also under arrest.

Other conflicting reports said Khanh was at Nha Trang, 200 miles northeast of Saigon, directing a military operation, or that he was at Bang Tau.

Ky was reported safe at the Binh Hoa Air Base near Saigon and still in control of many of his fighter planes. It was thought he might attempt a counterattack.

Thao in a broadcast accused Khanh of swindling the military and the people. He said his action was directed against one man — Khanh — and no one else.

It was the eighth government upheaval in South Viet Nam since President Ngo Dinh Diem was overthrown and slain Nov. 1, 1963. Khanh, commander of the armed forces, has been the country's strongman since Jan. 30, 1964.

There was great possibility of an attack by military units loyal to Khanh.

Khanh had been expecting trouble. Nearly the entire armed forces strategic reserve, normally held in Saigon to reinforce any field units in trouble, had been deployed to the provinces where forces loyal to Khanh presumably were still in charge.

These include two battalions of Marines in central Bin Dinh Province and the large force Khanh led to Nha Trang for an attack on a suspected Viet Cong supply port.

Thao claimed he had the support of the 25th, 9th, 7th and 5th Army Divisions, which are stationed in areas adjoining Saigon, plus part of the marine corps and part of the air force.

The first signs of the coup came at the waterfront near Knanh's armed forces headquarters. Several M24 tanks smashed through the barbed-wire barricades outside the navy headquarters and Khanh's house, which are on the same street.

Riding in one of the tanks was Col. Thao.

This happened about 1 p.m. Saigon time (midnight Thursday Eastern Standard Time).

At the same time, tanks smashed their way into the Saigon Airport, blocking Vietnamese air force planes whose pilots were not on the side of the rebels. About 10 Skyraider fighter-bombers, whose pilots apparently had been won over, took off and circled Saigon for the remainder of the afternoon. Within 30 minutes all key military installations in Saigon had been taken by the rebels.

It was believed that troops from the 5th Division, based 15 miles north of Saigon, had occupied the installations with assistance of at least two marine battalions.

At 2 p.m., when Thao had received confirmation by radio that all objectives had been taken, a convoy of tanks and military trucks drove hurriedly through the streets to Saigon radio station.

There, Thao said in a broadcast, "This is not a coup d'etat but it is a military operation.

"All the units of the army, navy and air force and marines are contributing.

"General Khanh is a dictator. All units throughout the country must maintain order and security.

"This is the voice of the military-civilian force."

Plan to Negotiate Opposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Republican congressional leaders have stepped up their opposition to a negotiated settlement of the war with Viet Nam.

GOP Senate Leader Everett M. Dirksen charged in a floor speech Thursday that advocates of a settlement propose to "run up the white flag before the world and start running away from communism."

Earlier in the day, House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford declared in a statement some Democrats want the United States to pull out of Viet Nam and "retreat to Pearl Harbor."

With Democrats divided on the issue, debate over Southeast Asian policy forced the Senate into another late session.

Mansfield said of Dirksen: It is "a profound reassurance to know that the great senator from Illinois can be counted on to put the best interests of the nation first in any critical situation."

But, Mansfield told the Senate, it was "entirely proper" for Sens. Frank Church, D—Idaho, and George S. McGovern, D—S.D., to suggest consideration of negotiation "which might lead to a prompt end to the bloodshed."

Close associates said Mansfield was concerned that speeches by Dirksen and other critics of Church and McGovern might be designed to foreclose any thought of negotiations, at least in the foreseeable future.

Dirksen, in a reply to the Senate speeches Church and Mc. Govern made Wednesday, said: "If we don't man the ramparts of freedom on our outer defense line from Korea to South Viet Nam, we'll inevitably be facing the enemy on the inner line from Alaska to Hawaii."

"To negotiate in South Viet Nam while Communist aggression is spreading throughout the entire Southeast Asia peninsula," Dirksen declared, "is like a man trying to paint his front porch while his house is on fire."

Republicans Talk Plans to Reorganize

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — Republicans from every section of Missouri, nearly 1,000 strong, gathered today to discuss plans for the reorganization of their party.

Divergent political philosophies mingled as registration began this morning at the Lincoln Day headquarters in the Kentwood Arms Hotel. Throughout the weekend, efforts will be made to iron out differences of party members in preparation for the 1966 election.

The first event of the annual meeting will be a workshop by the Federation of Republican Women's Clubs this afternoon.

U. S. Rep. John M. Asbrook, R-Ohio, will address the Republican Editorial Association dinner tonight followed by a dance sponsored by the Missouri Federation of Young Republicans. Another GOP congressman, Robert P. Griffin of Mich., will speak at the Missouri Association of Republicans banquet Saturday night.

The GOP state committee will breakfast together Saturday and then convene again that afternoon.

One subject to be discussed at the state committee meeting will be what many consider the party's biggest problem — that of financing a system of more centralized control of party funds and expenditures. The 1965 budget also will be adopted.

Raymond V. Humphreys, political education and training director for the Republican National Committee, also will outline his plans for a statewide precinct reorganization. It is called "Operation Sadie."

A late addition to the committee agenda was a plan to eliminate straight ticket voting in Missouri. It was included after interest in the proposal began to grow.

Supporters, including State Rep. William C. Phelps, R-Kansas City, believe the plan necessary to provide a two-party system in Missouri.

Two-year old Boy Victim of Area Traffic

A two - year old boy was critically injured in the only traffic accident reported for Thursday in its territory by Troop E, State Highway Patrol. There were no fatalities.

At 4:30 p.m. Thursday, the Patrol reports, two miles south of Holland on Business Route 61, Gary Lynn Harper, 2, of Route 1, Steele, Mo., ran across the road and was hit by a car driven by William Doyle Sims, 57, of Pascola, Mo. The child was taken to a Blytheville hospital and then transferred to Baptist Hospital, Memphis. Sims reported he had been watching children on one side of the road and the boy ran across from the opposite side and into the side of his car.

To Meet Again on Sept. 1st

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The General Assembly ended one of the stormiest sessions in U.N. history Thursday night and recessed until Sept. 1 after the United States checkmated an Albanian move to force an East-West showdown.

Applause rang out as Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson announced that the United States would agree to a procedural ballot demanded by Albania and would not challenge the Soviet Union's right to vote.

Red China's U.N. spokesman, Halim Budo of Albania, boasted that he had strong support. But a 97-2 vote swamped his demand that the assembly organize for normal business. There were 13 abstentions, of which France was the only major power. Mauritania voted with Albania.

The assembly approved by acclamation an interim budget and the appointment of a multination committee to study the problem of U.N. peacekeeping.

The assembly adjourned at :51 p.m. following a sharp exchange in the closing moments between Stevenson and Soviet Delegate Nikolai T. Fedorenko.

Criticizing Stevenson for announcing that he was withholding the U.S. challenge on voting rights, Fedorenko declared, "The United States cannot set itself up as an arbiter on whether this forum can vote or not."

Stevenson retorted that he had thought the Soviet Union wanted to avoid a showdown at this stage and demanded to know why Fedorenko did not voice his objections before the ballot.

Since Dec. 1 the assembly had been restricted to general policy debate by the refusal of the Soviet Union, France and other nations to pay peacekeeping assessments and the determination of the United States to demand that their votes in the assembly be taken away under Article 19 of the U.N. Charter.

Article 19 specifies that any nation two years in arrears on its payments loses its vote. The Soviet Union, which contends peacekeeping assessments are illegal, threatened to walk out if the article was invoked.

A showdown was averted by agreement to take up only matters that could be approved unanimously, without a roll call vote. But with all such business exhausted, most delegates agreed to a long recess while further peacekeeping negotiations were held.

But on Tuesday, Budo threw the assembly into turmoil with his demand that the assembly organize.

The Albanian move, which few doubted had Red China behind it, would have necessitated an assembly vote and forced the U.S.-Soviet showdown.

Difficult Decision Faces Scientists on Ranger 8

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Scientists guiding the Ranger 8 spacecraft to the moon face a critical decision — whether a final maneuver will be necessary to insure good pictures in the final plunge to the lunar surface Saturday morning.

Radio contact with the 800-pound spacecraft has been far from perfect since its launching from Cape Kennedy Wednesday. There was a time early Thursday when they did not know whether it had obeyed commands pointing it at the moon's Sea of Tranquillity prior to the firing of a steering rocket.

Apparently it did obey properly. After long hours of tracking, scientists determined Thursday afternoon that Ranger 8 probably would impact within 18 miles of its target.

But there was a chance its six television cameras might not be pointed at the best angle to take some 4,000 pictures as it crashes into the lunar surface at 5,800 miles an hour.

Ranger 8 still has enough fuel to twist itself around in space if necessary so this is the dilemma faced by scientists today:

1. They first must determine whether the cameras are pointed at the best angle.

2. If not, they must decide whether to risk — in view of earlier communications difficulties — commanding the spacecraft to twist around to a different position.

On the basis of what they knew at the time, however, scientists at Jet Propulsion Laboratory said Thursday that Ranger 8 should land at 4:57 a.m. Eastern Standard Time Saturday and take better pictures than Ranger 7 last July 31.

A decision on whether to attempt the critical but possibly hazardous maneuver just before impact was expected to be made sometime this afternoon.

Educator Tells Dinner Club About Cost of Education

In an address last night before the Bootheel Dinner Club at the Holiday Inn, Dr. William J. McKeefery, dean of academic affairs, Southern Illinois University, Carbondale, Ill., told his audience the rise in cost of education is due to America's progress in the world.

His subject was, "Is Education's Price Tag Too High?" In opening his address he reminded his listeners that this week was one of turmoil, the attacks in Viet Nam, the explosion at the Vatican, an attempt to destroy the Statue of Liberty, Washington Monument and the Liberty Bell.

"Let me remind you of your own city of Sikeston, when checking the records I find you have invested more in education than the national average, in spite of the fact Missouri is below the national average. When I must ask myself that it costs $35 billion a year for education, it cannot be told in a short space of time allotted to me tonight. When the costs are compared to foreign countries, then it is not a fair comparison. By comparison England invests but 10 per cent in education.

"It must be remembered that by the year 1999 we are likely to have all our children go to college, or some higher school of learning than high school. Of this $35 billion, 25 of it is for public education, and 10 for private education, but it must be remembered that 70 million Americans are involved in these costs. In the very near future the picture will change $35 billion invested in elementary education and $5 billion in colleges, and $30 billion in other forms of education. The present costs now are $35 billion for elementary and $5 for colleges.

"The cost for the elementary student annually is $350 and for secondary education $2?0. A few years ago 60 per cent finished the sixth grade, 14 per cent high school and six per cent college, one per cent with a master's degree. Today the percentage is much greater, and 50 per cent now go to college. Drive along any highway and you will see many new schools. The reason for it is that 12 per cent of the elementary children come from families under $2000 income, and these are the people who need help.

"Remember also that 90 per cent of the money comes from local and state funds, and now an additional $1 1/2 billion federal funds have been added. Before the end of this year another billion dollars will be added to help the other forms of

Receive Grant For St. Louis Youth Corps

WASHINGTON AP -- A neighborhood Youth Corps project in St. Louis, designed to provide work-training experience for economically deprived boys and girls, was given the go-ahead Thursday by a grant of $411,280 from the Labor Department.

Missouri members of Congress were told that acceptance of the grant to the St. Louis Human Development Corp., is subject to approval of Missouri's governor.

About 1,300 boys and girls, 16 through 21, who live in poverty conditions, are expected to enroll. School districts participating include Kinloch, Valley Park, Wellston, Hancock, Eureka, R-6, Berkeley and Maplewood-Richmond.

The objective is to increase employment ability of youths, enable them to resume and maintain school attendance, and provide them with work experience and financial aid.

To Recommend Some Changes in The Draft Laws

WASHINGTON AP — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara strongly hints he will recommend a change in draft policies when he reports to President Johnson on the problem in April.

McNamara, in a report to the House Armed Service Committee on the nation's military strength, indicated that some modification will be necessary in the Selective Service System because of a growing surplus in draft-age men.

And that, he observed, compounds the difficulty of deciding fairly which young men will be called up and when.

Seventeen Injured By Slide

STEWART, B.C. (AP) — Seventeen injured men, some hurt seriously, lay on the floor of an office building in a remote mining camp today, waiting for rescue.

Huddled with them in the structure, the only one left when a massive avalanche struck early Thursday, were 103 others, hoping the weather would clear soon so helicopter crews could carry them all to safety.

Still unaccounted for since the mass of mud, snow and ice struck the Granduc Mining Co. copper camp, perched on a slope at the edge of a glacier, were 20 men.

More avalanches, loosened by a recent spell of comparatively warm weather, were feared.

The injured were among 40 men trapped several hours in a tunnel being dug toward copper reserves under Le Duc Glacier. They were rescued late Thursday by fellow workmen using shovels because their power tools were buried.

"We have found no bodies and can confirm no dead," said S. Sgt. Jack Duggan of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police at Prince Rupert a number of hours after the slide.

"But there were more than 140 men at the camp. The death toll could be anywhere between zero and 20."

The mine is 30 miles north of Stewart and a few miles east of the border of southeast Alaska.

Innis Kelly, the radioman who sent out the first alarm after the slide, radioed late Thursday night, "The rain is very troubling. The men are afraid it will cause more slides."

The avalanche took out the powerhouse, so Kelly got no more in his first message than a distress signal, sent from a radio shack at an air strip near the camp. But he moved shop to the main office building, the only one in the cluster left standing, and used batteries plundered from bulldozers for power to get messages out late in the day.

He summed up the situation this way: "You can say goodby to the camp and the powerhouse. They are gone with the slide."

He told of the survivors being able to see bulldozers from other camps on the surrounding glaciers, but said the men were unable to move the equipment closer because their jarring weight might trigger more slides.

Kelly described a giant bonfire the men kept going, and he praised the doctor and his helpers.

The radioman asked for food and medical supplies.

In response, the U.S. Coast Guard sent a patrol boat from Ketchikan up an arm of the sea called Behm Canal to the mouth of the Chicamin River. Aboard were a doctor and the supplies Kelly asked for.

Two doctor brothers, James and A. N. Wilson of Ketchikan, were flown near the scene by helicopter. Pilot Kenny Eichner of Ketchikan managed to get Dr. James Wilson to within a mile of the camp before he was forced by heavy snowfall to land. Dr. A.N. Wilson spent the night in a cabin at the mouth of the river. They hoped to reach the camp early in the day if the weather cleared.

An Alaska ferry, the Taku, was on the way from Ketchikan to Prince Rupert to pick up medical supplies and rescue personnel. Then it was to backtrack north to the Chicamin River to serve as a hospital ship.

School Board Elections to Be on April 6

CHARLESTON — The Mississippi County Board of Education met Monday night.

Two county board member's terms of office expire April 6, 1965 — one in each county court district. Delmar Alcorn has filed for re-election in County Court District No. 1 and Hunt Wellborn has filed for election in County Court District No. 2. County Court District No. 1 is made up of Tywappity and Long Prairie Townships. County Court District No. 2 is made up of Ohio, Mississippi, St. James, Wolf Island, and James Bayou Townships. Qualified persons may file for either of the two offices by filing a Candidate's Declaration with the County Superintendent of Schools on or before March 6, 1965. Qualifications of members are: 1. Citizen of the State of Missouri and the United States; 2. Resident householder of the County; 3. At least 24 years of age.

The regular March Teacher's Examinations will be held by the County Superintendent of Schools in the Court House — beginning at 1 p.m., Friday, March 12th and closing at noon March 13th.

To Meet Again on Sept. 1st

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The General Assembly ended one of the stormiest sessions in U.N. history Thursday night and recessed until Sept. 1 after the United States checkmated an Albanian move to force an East-West showdown.

Applause rang out as Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson announced that the United States would agree to a procedural ballot demanded by Albania and would not challenge the Soviet Union's right to vote.

Red China's U.N. spokesman, Halim Budo of Albania, boasted that he had strong support. But a 97-2 vote swamped his demand that the assembly organize for normal business. There were 13 abstentions, of which France was the only major power. Mauritania voted with Albania.

The assembly approved by acclamation an interim budget and the appointment of a multination committee to study the problem of U.N. peace-keeping.

The assembly adjourned at 1:51 p.m. following a sharp exchange in the closing moments between Stevenson and Soviet Delegate Nikolai T. Fedorenko.

Criticizing Stevenson for announcing that he was withholding the U.S. challenge on voting rights, Fedorenko declared, "The United States cannot set itself up as an arbiter on whether this forum can vote or not."

Stevenson retorted that he had thought the Soviet Union wanted to avoid a showdown at this stage and demanded to know why Fedorenko did not voice his objections before the ballot.

Since Dec. 1 the assembly had been restricted to general policy debate by the refusal of the Soviet Union, France and other nations to pay peacekeeping assessments and the determination of the United States to demand that their votes in the assembly be taken away under Article 19 of the U.N. Charter.

Article 19 specifies that any nation two years in arrears on its payments loses its vote. The Soviet Union, which contends peacekeeping assessments are illegal, threatened to walk out if the article was invoked.

A showdown was averted by agreement to take up only matters that could be approved unanimously, without a roll call vote. But with all such business exhausted, most delegates agreed to a long recess while further peacekeeping negotiations were held.

But on Tuesday, Budo threw the assembly into turmoil with his demand that the assembly organize.

The Albanian move, which few doubted had Red China behind it, would have necessitated an assembly vote and forced the U.S.-Soviet showdown.

Difficult Decision Faces Scientists on Ranger 8

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Scientists guiding the Ranger 8 spacecraft to the moon face a critical decision — whether a final maneuver will be necessary to insure good pictures in the final plunge to the lunar surface Saturday morning.

Radio contact with the 800-pound spacecraft has been far from perfect since its launching from Cape Kennedy Wednesday. There was a time early Thursday when they did not know whether it had obeyed commands pointing it at the moon's Sea of Tranquillity prior to the firing of a steering rocket.

Apparently it did obey properly. After long hours of tracking, scientists determined Thursday afternoon that Ranger 8 probably would impact within 18 miles of its target.

But there was a chance its six television cameras might not be pointed at the best angle to take some 4,000 pictures as it crashes into the lunar surface at 5,800 miles an hour.

Ranger 8 still has enough fuel to twist itself around in space if necessary so this is the dilemma faced by scientists today:

1. They first must determine whether the cameras are pointed at the best angle.

2. If not, they must decide whether to risk — in view of earlier communications difficulties — commanding the spacecraft to twist around to a different position.

On the basis of what they knew at the time, however, scientists at Jet Propulsion Laboratory said Thursday that Ranger 8 should land at 4:57 a.m. Eastern Standard Time Saturday and take better pictures than Ranger 7 last July 31.

A decision on whether to attempt the critical but possibly hazardous maneuver just before impact was expected to be made sometime this afternoon.

Educator Tells Dinner Club About Cost of Education

In an address last night before the Bootheel Dinner Club at the Holiday Inn, Dr. William J. McKeefery, dean of academic affairs, Southern Illinois University, Carbondale, Ill., told his audience the rise in cost of education is due to America's progress in the world.

His subject was, "Is Education's Price Tag Too High?"

In opening his address he reminded his listeners that this week was one of turmoil, the attacks in Viet Nam, the explosion at the Vatican, an attempt to destroy the Statue of Liberty, Washington Monument and the Liberty Bell.

"Let me remind you of your own city of Sikeston, when checking the records I find you have invested more in education than the national average, in spite of the fact Missouri is below the national average. When I must ask myself that it costs $35 billion a year for education, it cannot be told in a short space of time allotted to me tonight. When the costs are compared to foreign countries, then it is not a fair comparison. By comparison England invests but 10 per cent in education.

"It must be remembered that by the year 1999 we are likely to have all our children go to college, or some higher school of learning than high school. Of this $35 billion, 25 of it is for public education, and 10 for private education, but it must be remembered that 70 million Americans are involved in these costs. In the very near future the picture will change $35 billion invested in elementary education and $5 billion in colleges, and $30 billion in other forms of education. The present costs now are $35 billion for elementary and $5 for colleges.

"The cost for the elementary student annually is $350 and for secondary education $250. A few years ago 60 per cent finished the sixth grade, 14 per cent high school and six per cent college, one per cent with a master's degree. Today the percentage is much greater, and 50 per cent now go to college. Drive along any highway and you will see many new schools. The reason for it is that 12 per cent of the elementary children come from families under $2000 income, and these are the people who need help.

"Remember also that 90 per cent of the money comes from local and state funds, and now an additional $1 1/2 billion federal funds have been added. Before the end of this year another billion dollars will be added to help the other forms of

Receive Grant For St. Louis Youth Corps

WASHINGTON AP -- A neighborhood Youth Corps project in St. Louis, designed to provide work-training experience for economically deprived boys and girls, was given the go-ahead Thursday by a grant of $411,280 from the Labor Department.

Missouri members of Congress were told that acceptance of the grant to the St. Louis Human Development Corp., is subject to approval of Missouri's governor.

About 1,300 boys and girls, 16 through 21, who live in poverty conditions, are expected to enroll. School districts participating include Kinloch, Valley Park, Wellston, Hancock, Eureka, R-6, Berkeley and Maplewood-Richmond.

The objective is to increase employment ability of youths, enable them to resume and maintain school attendance, and provide them with work experience and financial aid.

To Recommend Some Changes in The Draft Laws

WASHINGTON AP — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara strongly hints he will recommend a change in draft policies when he reports to President Johnson on the problem in April.

McNamara, in a report to the House Armed Service Committee on the nation's military strength, indicated that some modification will be necessary in the Selective Service System because of a growing surplus in draft-age men.

And that, he observed, compounds the difficulty of deciding fairly which young men will be called up and when.

Seventeen Injured By Slide

STEWART, B.C. (AP) — Seventeen injured men, some hurt seriously, lay on the floor of an office building in a remote mining camp today, waiting for rescue.

Huddled with them in the structure, the only one left when a massive avalanche struck early Thursday, were 103 others, hoping the weather would clear soon so helicopter crews could carry them all to safety.

Still unaccounted for since the mass of mud, snow and ice struck the Granduc Mining Co. copper camp, perched on a slope at the edge of a glacier, were 20 men.

More avalanches, loosened by a recent spell of comparatively warm weather, were feared.

The injured were among 40 men trapped several hours in a tunnel being dug toward copper reserves under Le Duc Glacier. They were rescued late Thursday by fellow workmen using shovels because their power tools were buried.

"We have found no bodies and can confirm no dead," said S. Sgt. Jack Duggan of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police at Prince Rupert a number of hours after the slide.

"But there were more than 140 men at the camp. The death toll could be anywhere between zero and 20."

The mine is 30 miles north of Stewart and a few miles east of the border of southeast Alaska.

Innis Kelly, the radioman who sent out the first alarm after the slide, radioed late Thursday night, "The rain is very troubling. The men are afraid it will cause more slides."

The avalanche took out the powerhouse, so Kelly got no more in his first message than a distress signal, sent from a radio shack at an air strip near the camp. But he moved shop to the main office building, the only one in the cluster left standing, and used batteries plundered from bulldozers for power to get messages out late in the day.

He summed up the situation this way: "You can say goodby to the camp and the powerhouse. They are gone with the slide."

He told of the survivors being able to see bulldozers from other camps on the surrounding glaciers, but said the men were unable to move the equipment closer because their jarring weight might trigger more slides.

Kelly described a giant bonfire the men kept going, and he praised the doctor and his helpers.

The radioman asked for food and medical supplies.

In response, the U.S. Coast Guard sent a patrol boat from Ketchikan up an arm of the sea called Behm Canal to the mouth of the Chicamin River. Aboard were a doctor and the supplies Kelly asked for.

Two doctor brothers, James and A. N. Wilson of Ketchikan, were flown near the scene by helicopter. Pilot Kenny Eichner of Ketchikan managed to get Dr. James Wilson to within a mile of the camp before he was forced by heavy snowfall to land. Dr. A.N. Wilson spent the night in a cabin at the mouth of the river. They hoped to reach the camp early in the day if the weather cleared.

An Alaska ferry, the Taku, was on the way from Ketchikan to Prince Rupert to pick up medical supplies and rescue personnel. Then it was to backtrack north to the Chicamin River to serve as a hospital ship.

TERRIBLE TWO

Iwo Jima is an eight square mile volcanic mass that once was called Sulphur Island. Certainly it became a living hell for the U. S. Marines who invaded the Japanese World War II stronghold on the morning of Feb. 19, 1945 -- just 20 years ago.

Three days of heavy warship and plane bombardment had preceded the landing by the 4th and 5th Marine divisions. But Japanese resistance was fierce. The island is only 750 miles south of Tokyo, and the defenders knew its capture would greatly increase U. S. bomber capabilities against the Japanese homeland.

After the initial penetration gains were measured in feet, especially as units pushed their way up the slopes of Mt. Suribachi, a 546-foot high extinct volcano. Troops finally succeeded in storming Mt. Suribachi on Feb. 23 and planted the flag on the crater's rim. An Associated Press photographer captured the scene in a memorable photo which was to form the basis for the Iwo Jima memorial in Arlington National Cemetery.

Not until March 16 was the last Japanese resistance ended. About 22,000 of the defenders had been either killed or captured. A total of 111,308 Americans had participated in the action, of which 75,144 were assault troops. U. S. forces suffered 21,000 casualties, including 4,-500 killed. The costly invasion of Okinawa was still to come, but the ring around Japan was beginning to close and the sacrifice of American lives on terrible Iwo Jima had not been in vain.

FREEDOM FROM POLITICS

There was a time not long ago when the alleged meddling of American corporations into private opinions and conduct of their employes was the subject of view-with-alarm books, magazine articles and movies.

Whatever may have been, or still are, the abuses of some firms, the conduct of the majority seems to be above criticism today -- at least as far as politics are concerned.

In a study of the personnel practices of more than 2,000 companies -- "from the production line to the laboratory and from the front office to the recreation room" -- the National Industrial Conference Board has determined that eight out of ten of the companies do not let their employes know management's position on political issues.

About the same proportion of companies neither encourage nor discourage employes running for public office. About a quarter of them grant leaves of absence to employes elected to full-time office.

TAIWAN: MODEL FOR ASIA

The revolution of Taiwan (Formosa) has been recorded but not widely reported, the Catholic Digest states. Too many still think the island is sinking under the weight of Nationalist troops and American aid. But since the seat of Chiang Kai-shek's government was moved there in 1949, its statistics have been the most spectacular in Asia.

Taiwan land reform -- the model for all Asia -- has enabled 86% of the farmers to own land. Wheat and rice production have doubled since 1949. The rate of increase of the annual fish catch has been the highest in the world in recent years.

In industry, fertilizer output is six times and cotton textiles 36 times the peak under the Japanese. Power capacity is double the Japanese peak, and consumption is more than five times that of a decade ago. Electricity rates are the third cheapest in the world.

Taiwan has 20,000 factories. During one decade, farmer's production rose by 75% and industrial production by 246%. In spite of the fact that population grows 3.6% a year, average yearly economic growth has been 7%.

Physically, Taiwan is a puny chip off the block that is in the China mainland. Its population, which includes 3.5 million Chinese refugees, is less than 2% of its massive Red counterpart. But psychologically, Taiwan is a sharp thorn in Peking's flesh. It offers an alternative to the millions of Chinese overseas who must identify themselves with a government. It shows that overpopulated, economically backward China CAN feed the peasants well. It CAN industrialize with rational reforms based on the incentive system, without breaking hearts and necks.

Added to the psychological threat is a more solid one. The youthful, well-disciplined, American-equipped army is bigger than the armed forces of Britain or the two Germanies combined. It is the second biggest non-communist striking force in the Far East, with the finest air force.

Above all, Taiwan is a pilot plant for the ultimate solution of China's problems, and for other Asian nations sitting silently on the fence but taking in every detail of the performance by the two Chinas.

GREEN BAY'S ICY MOUNTAINS

When the Appalachia program first was proposed, those wise in the ways of Washington asked: "Will they be able to keep Appalachia east of the Mississippi?" It was hard to envision a Congress made up of representatives from everywhere pouring their constituent's money into a single area of the country.

Today the question is more pressing than ever. Michiganders, through the agency of Sen. Hart, are applying for permission to get into the Appalachia program, and there's talk of including other northern areas of the far from mountainous Middle West. The list of honorary Appalachians is likely to grow as time for action on the proposal nears.

If the program is to win support, the geography of the U.S. is likely to be strangely distorted, and mountains will sprout all over the plains and tidelands, coast to coast and border to border.

This seems pretty silly, and it is. The Appalachia program originally was tailored to suit the real or fancied ailments of this attractive, but relatively poor, area of the country. Roads were to be engineered through the difficult mountains as a major part of the program. Middle-aged coal miners, permanently out of mining because of demand changes and technological changes, were to be retained for other occupations, and so forth.

Such a program has little application to the other parts of the country now claiming their rights as would-be hillbillies. This probably will be taken care of by altering the program, should they succeed.

And then we will have two largely identical poverty programs for the whole country, with twice the bureaucracy and half the results. These, of course, will be duplicating work already being done by the Bureau of Public Roads, the Health, Education and Welfare Department, the Small Business Administration, the Area Redevelopment Administration and probably not more than ten or a dozen other agencies.

If you find this confusing or disturbing, do what the Government people seem to do. Don't think about it.

NO MERE FORMALITY

Nationalist China celebrated its tenth annual Armed Forces Day at the City Hall in Taipei, Taiwan on September third.

Among the ranking Americans who paid tribute to Chiang Kai-shek's fighters were Vice Admiral William Gentner, commander of the US Taiwan Defense Command, and Major General Kenneth Sanborn, chief of the US Military Assistance Advisory Group.

These men, said the Admiral, "can and should be proud of their record . . . Their combat-readiness and individual moral strength post uncompromising notice to the Communists that China and its people are more determined than ever to remain free." And he added, "You command our respect, deserve our admiration, and have our continuing pledge of joining you in defending against aggression."

General Sanborn commended the "dedicated spirit . . .pride in achievements and progress . . professional skill and accomplishments" of the men and women of Free China's armed services.

But we hope our military leaders listened, too, especially when Speaker Huang Kuo-shu of the Legislative Yuan (Parliament), who presided over the City Hall gathering declared that the armed forces of the Republic of China hold the key to peace in Southeast Asia. We hope his words reminded them of Chiang's readiness to help our forces and the South Vietnamese in the apparently stalemated struggle against the Viet Cong. And we hope, finally, that Huang's summation - that only a counter-attack by the armed forces of the Republic of China can solve the problem of Communism in Asia once and for all - will get back to Washington.

The indications are that in Asia, at least, we should listen to the advice of our Asian allies.

One of the things that passed with the 88th Congress was a committee studying the federal government's involvement in scientific research and technological development.

This involvement, under the heading of R & D (research and development), is absorbing upwards of $15 billion a year of the national budget.

The committee was the Select Committee on Government Research headed by Rep. Carl Elliott, Alabama Democrat. Since Elliott was defeated for re-election, it is unlikely that it will be reconstituted.

Nor is it likely that Rep. Elliott's chief recommendation will be adopted -- that Congress set up a Joint Committee on Research Policy which would attempt to gain an overview of all specialized scientific activities the government is supporting.

One of the reasons given by Washington observers is that R&D expenditures have now become so vast congressmen no longer try to contain them but are primarily concerned with seeing that their states or districts get a share of them.

Another reason, and one that reflects a situation much more difficult to remedy, is that congressmen are not scientists. They share the layman's awe about science.

History records so many scientific projects which seemed ridiculous on their faces but which resulted in stupendous scientific and social revolutions that congressmen are reluctant to pronounce judgment on a given scheme simply because they don't understand it.

The decision, more often than not, is to err on the side of caution -- which means to spend money on the chance that it may eventually benefit the country.

An old legal phrase asks: "Who shall keep the keepers?" That is, who shall police the police, judge the judges, rule the rulers?

In this democracy, the three branches of the federal government perform part of the job by checking on each other, and the people, with their vote, are the ultimate keepers.

But who shall watch the scientists?

If Congress can't, and the citizens can't, then the scientists themselves must. But Congress must first at least create the legislative apparatus which will allow trained people to maintain this overview of the government's - the people's -- involvement in science.

POPULATION EXPLOSION

We are undergoing a well recognized population explosion. Longevity is an important factor.

Better health at all ages is playing a highly important part. War babies themselves are reaching the reproduction age and the wartime psychology which parented them is little abated.

Our population will reach 350 million in the 2,000 A. D. census, but greater sophistication and a more workable planned parenthood program may materially slow this unbelievably rapid increase.

If we disarm, new devices for destroying human life by the millions can reduce the United States population fast. Communist bosses in the past have told us when Communism takes over in the United States, one-third of the population will be liquidated even if voted into power.

The prospect for the first United States President to be inaugurated at the turn of the century is now one of our youth 19 years of age. If future presidents are older upon inauguration because of the increased life span the presidential hopeful for the year 2001 may now be age 25.

There may also be a recurrence of thought that that advanced years are a more suitable repository for wisdom. This could happen but not likely, and impulsive, impetuous youth of either sex will have its way. Accepting the premise that youth must be served, our presidential hopeful may be as young as 15 years.

We might discover one or two prospects among youth we know, for with few exceptions the greatest speakers and spellbinders were orators while young.

NEW YORK (AP) — Rock Hudson sees a similarity between making movies and laboring in a mine.

"I like not working," said the big film star.

Next week he starts his 50th picture since 1948.

"I dread it — having to go down into the mines for 10 weeks," he remarked.

"A sound stage is really quite a bit like a mine. It's dark and it has no windows. I never see daylight — and turn the nicest greenish-white."

But Hudson doesn't dig coal in his mine. He brings up pure gold

A big, shy, near-sighted kid from Winnetka, Ill., he sang in a high school glee club and church choir before going to Hollywood. He served in the Navy. He worked as a truck driver, piano mover, and mail carrier.

His first screen test in 1947 was so poor that one studio for a time showed it to other beginners as an example of poor acting.

But his rhinestone youth has long since turned into a diamond brilliance.

He touches the industry where its heart is — the boxoffice cashbox. Now, feeling a bit camera weary, he'd like to try Broadway.

"I'm looking for a good musical role," he said. "I've been taking singing lessons for a year."

At 39, this 200-pound, 6-foot-4 inch actor probably is the man most U.S. women would rather be cast up on a desert isle with. What kind of a person is he?

"Well," he said, enjoying the question, "I like coffee, nice people, old clothes, old cars, new cars, leftover foods, skin diving, sailing skiing, water skiing, hockey, wood paneling, hand-rubbed wooden antiques, old silver, paintings, sculpture, the feel of marble, candlelight, Technicolor films, harmony in song, heat waves, electric fans, desserts, mashed potatoes and gravy, scotch.

"And I like clean sheets, good service, moonlight, fireplaces, traveling, yodeling, reading fantasy tales, biographies, reference books, do-it-yourself books, making tape recordings of good music, playing the piano — but just for myself — remodelling houses, opera, limericks, the month of July, excitement in my life, kitchens, and Julie Andrews."

WASHINGTON — A lot of people are asking just how we got into the impossible Vietnam predicament in which we are damned as appeasers if we pull out and damned as imperialists if we stay in.

The answer is contained in secret files of the State Department and the Pentagon dating back to 1954, and they make fascinating though tragic reading.

For eight years prior to 1954, a French army, fighting the same guerrilla war we recently have been fighting, was financed largely with U.S. supplies, planes, and dollars. The United States spent approximately four billion dollars supporting the French army in Indochina, more than we spent under the Marshall Plan in France itself.

The results, however, were most discouraging.

In 1953, Lt. Gen. John W. O'Daniel had submitted a secret report to the Pentagon that he could build a tough Vietnamese army. So, in the spring of 1954, he was sent to Saigon to try it.

The French, he reported back, wouldn't cooperate. He and other American officers reported that the French officers seemed to be doing their best to humiliate their Vietnamese officers, for instance, were not permitted inside French military clubs. Every phase of French military effort came to a complete standstill three hours each day for siesta. War or no war, American technicians could get no supplies, transportation, or anything else during this three-hour period. One American officer also reported that he had seen a French sergeant on a bicycle run down a Vietnamese boy. But instead of helping the boy up, the sergeant had cuffed him for getting in the way.

Because of this high-handedness, confidential cables to Washington showed that, though the troops under French command outnumbered the Communist guerrillas two to one, native troops were deserting the French by thousands, surrendering to the Communists. The United States had repeatedly urged the French to let us take over the training of native troops, but the jealous French refused.

Confidential reports also showed that the French wouldn't even permit American observers to go up to the battle front to check on the distribution of the American equipment we were donating. One reason for checking was the report that part of our supplies were being sold on the black market and were getting into the hands of the enemy. Nevertheless, the French were so jealous of their sovereignty that they permitted no U.S. activity in Indochina except to allow us to fill out requisition blanks for more supplies from the United States.

—RHEE AND CHIANG TO RESCUE—

Meanwhile, Gen. John E. Hull, U.S. commander in Korea, conveyed a flat offer from President Syngman Rhee to send one South Korean division to fight in Indochina. Rhee also proposed that his troops in Korea launch an offensive there in order to divert Red Chinese supplies and troops from the Indochina front. An offer also was made by Chiang Kai-Shek to send Nationalist Chinese troops from Formosa. But both his and Rhee's offers were declined — partly because this would give the Red Chinese an excuse to enlarge the war.

The biggest obstacle, however, was the lack of French cooperation.

Meanwhile, amazing back stage jockeying was started between the White House and the Pentagon to get the United States directly involved in the Indochinese war.

But President Eisenhower, with 42 years' experience in the army, was vigorously opposed. So was Gen. Matthew Ridgway, who had bailed out the Korean operation after Gen. Douglas MacArthur was fired, and who had become Army Chief of Staff. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles vacillated.

—FRENCH FACE DEFEAT—

In the spring of 1954, it was obvious the French were about at the end of their rope. Their wounded so clogged the corridors of Dien Bien Phu fortress that it took about half the French fighting personnel to care for them.

In desperate retaliatory attacks, the French had been kicking Napalm bombs out of the doors of cargo planes at an altitude of 9,000 feet in order to escape antiaircraft fire, but this amateur warfare resulted in dousing the French defenders with as much Napalm as the Communist attackers. Likewise, half the parachuted supplies and half the paratroopers were dropped in enemy territory.

The French pleaded desperately for American carrier-based bombers, argued that this was a rare opportunity to catch so many guerrillas in one place; but simultaneously the French Army, jealous of the French Air Force, had fixed an arbitrary ceiling of 10,000 on Air Force personnel permitted to fight in Indochina.

Into this vacuum of indecision came energetic Admiral Radford, whom President Truman had once banished to the mid-Pacific and whom President Eisenhower had rescued and made Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Suddenly Eisenhower found himself as much opposed to Radford as President Truman had been. The Admiral became a one-man lobbyist to draw the allies into Indochina. He argued not only for U.S. air strikes but for sending four American army divisions into Indochina. At one time he also held up the names of 50 warships scheduled to be mothballed, in the hope they later could be used for a blockade of the Communists.

However, Gen. Ridgway, who knew the problems of a land army fighting in jungles halfway around the globe, flatly opposed dispatching a single American soldier to Indochina, and President Eisenhower on the whole supported him. When Admiral Radford was able to convince neither his own Joint Chiefs of Staff nor the White House, he turned to the then Prime Minister of England, Winston Churchill, with the tacit support of Vice President Nixon.

More on the secret jockeying which led to the current Vietnam crises will be told in tomorrow's column.

Insiders Predict Long Steel Strike

PITTSBURGH — What truly disturbs the knowledgable ones in this "iron city" is not the indecisive long count of the steel union presidential poll — but the decisive signs of a coming steel strike.

It may not break for months. But if it does the paralysis of the vast steel industry will last for months.

Both sides are deadlocked even before there has been any bargaining. Both sides have taken positions which place them hundreds of millions of dollars apart. However, this story has been lost to the public because the experts talk in a jargon of their own.

What it comes down to is that the steel industry, though speaking in percentages, has said in effect it cannot pay more than another $100 million a year to its factory people and salaried employes.

Over a three-year period this would mean committing itself to more than $300 million.

On the union side, though its leaders are feuding, they agree that this is "peanuts." They will ask for "substantially more." Just how much is "substantial" no one can yet calculate.

Virtually all this calculation is done by the United Steelworkers Union's (USW) technical staff, who, to say the least, have been emotionally and politically disturbed these past few months. They have not had a chance to hold their industrial war councils. They've been split down the middle by the Dave McDonald - I. W. Abel battle.

They've been harried by fears they'd be fired if their side lost. Many have been with the union since it first swept across the Midwest in 1937. Other unions do not hire specialists fired by another union headquarters. Nor do government agencies, which are loath to make enemies of union leaders who have discharged staffmen.

So the headquarters staff has spent much of its recent time either politicking or organizing a union of their own, the Staffmen's Organizing Committee, to protect themselves.

But now that they've time for off-the-record talks, they're doing and saying what comes naturally — planning for the big league negotiations with the steel industry's four-man bargaining team representing 11 major corporations. The union's position, judging from talks with some of the steel workers' specialists, will be based on the following:

It has been traditional for the USW to get pretty much what Walter Reuther's United Auto Workers (UAW) have won. This goes back to the late forties when "auto" would wind up with an increase of 19 cents an hour and "steel" with 18 cents.

Last year, after a series of strikes, Reuther's union rolled up victories ranging from 18 cents to 21 cents an hour depending on how you do the arithmetic.

The steel union brain trust just would not think of not fighting the steel industry for an equal amount. The technicians might be calmed down a little by either McDonald or Abel. Certainly the union's final demand will not be scaled down to much less than what Reuther won for his auto workers, who live window-pane-by-window-pane with the steelworkers.

It isn't just a matter of status for the steel union leaders and technicians. It's a matter of political security inside the union. The rank and file will want to know why they get less than their neighbors down the street — and this can result in local union election upsets — which doesn't enthuse the regional and local chiefs at all.

Thus the USW national leaders will be asking for a package far exceeding that which the industry people say is their outer limit. Industry says that it simply does not have the money to raise wages more than nine cents an hour. Beyond that it will not go "voluntarily."

Since this means an added payroll of $100 million annually and it is just about half what the union is set to demand, the difference is vast.

There are those inside the union brain trust who say let the steel industry increase prices. It has not had such an across-the-board price hike since 1958. But even if the government agreed to permit this, competition wouldn't.

In 1963 the industry tried to raise some prices, but was forced to cut them back when buyers turned to European and Japanese markets or to other products.

So the insiders here say that barring the easing of demands for a "substantial wage increase" and the costly "permanent job security" plan, there will be a strike.

TERRIBLE TWO

Iwo Jima is an eight square mile volcanic mass that once was called Sulphur Island. Certainly it became a living hell for the U. S. Marines who invaded the Japanese World War II stronghold on the morning of Feb. 19, 1945 -- just 20 years ago.

Three days of heavy warship and plane bombardment had preceded the landing by the 4th and 5th Marine divisions. But Japanese resistance was fierce. The island is only 750 miles south of Tokyo, and the defenders knew its capture would greatly increase U. S. bomber capabilities against the Japanese homeland.

After the initial penetration gains were measured in feet, especially as units pushed their way up the slopes of Mt. Suribachi, a 546-foot high extinct volcano. Troops finally succeeded in storming Mt. Suribachi on Feb. 23 and planted the flag on the crater's rim. An Associated Press photographer captured the scene in a memorable photo which was to form the basis for the Iwo Jima memorial in Arlington National Cemetery.

Not until March 16 was the last Japanese resistance ended. About 22,000 of the defenders had been either killed or captured. A total of 111,308 Americans had participated in the action, of which 75,144 were assault troops. U. S. forces suffered 21,000 casualties, including 4,-500 killed. The costly invasion of Okinawa was still to come, but the ring around Japan was beginning to close and the sacrifice of American lives on terrible Iwo Jima had not been in vain.

FREEDOM FROM POLITICS

There was a time not long ago when the alleged meddling of American corporations into private opinions and conduct of their employes was the subject of view-with-alarm books, magazine articles and movies.

Whatever may have been, or still are, the abuses of some firms, the conduct of the majority seems to be above criticism today -- at least as far as politics are concerned.

In a study of the personnel practices of more than 2,000 companies -- "from the production line to the laboratory and from the front office to the recreation room" -- the National Industrial Conference Board has determined that eight out of ten of the companies do not let their employes know management's position on political issues.

About the same proportion of companies neither encourage nor discourage employes running for public office. About a quarter of them grant leaves of absence to employes elected to full-time office.

TAIWAN: MODEL FOR ASIA

The revolution of Taiwan (Formosa) has been recorded but not widely reported, the Catholic Digest states. Too many still think the island is sinking under the weight of Nationalist troops and American aid. But since the seat of Chiang Kai-shek's government was moved there in 1949, its statistics have been the most spectacular in Asia.

Taiwan land reform -- the model for all Asia -- has enabled 86% of the farmers to own land. Wheat and rice production have doubled since 1949. The rate of increase of the annual fish catch has been the highest in the world in recent years.

In industry, fertilizer output is six times and cotton texiles 36 times the peak under the Japanese. Power capacity is double the Japanese peak, and consumption is more than five times that of a decade ago. Electricity rates are the third cheapest in the world.

Taiwan has 20,000 factories. During one decade, farmer's production rose by 75% and industrial production by 246%. In spite of the fact that population grows 3.6% a year, average yearly economic growth has been 7%.

Physically, Taiwan is a puny chip off the block that is in the China mainland. Its population, which includes 3.5 million Chinese refugees, is less than 2% of its massive Red counterpart. But psychologically, Taiwan is a sharp thorn in Peking's flesh. It offers an alternative to the millions of Chinese overseas who must identify themselves with a government. It shows that overpopulated, economically backward China CAN feed the peasants well. It CAN industrialize with rational reforms based on the incentive system, without breaking hearts and necks.

Added to the psychological threat is a more solid one. The youthful, well-disciplined, American-equipped army is bigger than the armed forces of Britain or the two Germanies combined. It is the second biggest non-communist striking force in the Far East, with the finest air force.

Above all, Taiwan is a pilot plant for the ultimate solution of China's problems, and for other Asian nations sitting silently on the fence but taking in every detail of the performance by the two Chinas.

GREEN BAY'S ICY MOUNTAINS

When the Appalachia program first was proposed, those wise in the ways of Washington asked: "Will they be able to keep Appalachia east of the Mississippi?" It was hard to envision a Congress made up of representatives from everywhere pouring their constituent's money into a single area of the country.

Today the question is more pressing than ever. Michiganders, through the agency of Sen. Hart, are applying for permission to get into the Appalachia program, and there's talk of including other northern areas of the far from mountainous Middle West. The list of honorary Appalachians is likely to grow as time for action on the proposal nears.

If the program is to win support, the geography of the U.S. is likely to be strangely distorted, and mountains will sprout all over the plains and tidelands, coast to coast and border to border.

This seems pretty silly, and it is. The Appalachia program originally was tailored to suit the real or fancied ailments of this attractive, but relatively poor, area of the country. Roads were to be engineered through the difficult mountains as a major part of the program. Middle-aged coal miners, permanently out of mining because of demand changes and technological changes, were to be retained for other occupations, and so forth.

Such a program has little application to the other parts of the country now claiming their rights as would-be hillbillies. This probably will be taken care of by altering the program, should they succeed.

And then we will have two largely identical poverty programs for the whole country, with twice the bureaucracy and half the results. These, of course, will be duplicating work already being done by the Bureau of Public Roads, the Health, Education and Welfare Department, the Small Business Administration, the Area Redevelopment Administration and probably not more than ten or a dozen other agencies.

If you find this confusing or disturbing, do what the Government people seem to do. Don't think about it.

NO MERE FORMALITY

Nationalist China celebrated its tenth annual Armed Forces Day at the City Hall in Taipei, Taiwan on September third.

Among the ranking Americans who paid tribute to Chiang Kai-shek's fighters were Vice Admiral William Gentner, commander of the US Taiwan Defense Command, and Major General Kenneth Sanborn, chief of the US Military Assistance Advisory Group.

These men, said the Admiral, "can and should be proud of their record . . . Their combat-readiness and individual moral strength post uncompromising notice to the Communists that China and its people are more determined than ever to remain free." And he added, "You command our respect, deserve our admiration, and have our continuing pledge of joining you in defending against aggression."

General Sanborn commended the "dedicated spirit . . .pride in achievements and progress . . professional skill and accomplishments" of the men and women of Free China's armed services.

But we hope our military leaders listened, too, especially when Speaker Huang Kuo-shu of the Legislative Yuan (Parliament), who presided over the City Hall gathering declared that the armed forces of the Republic of China hold the key to peace in Southeast Asia. We hope his words reminded them of Chiang's readiness to help our forces and the South Vietnamese in the apparently stalemated struggle against the Viet Cong. And we hope, finally, that Huang's summation - that only a counter-attack by the armed forces of the Republic of China can solve the problem of Communism in Asia once and for all - will get back to Washington.

The indications are that in Asia, at least, we should listen to the advice of our Asian allies.

One of the things that passed with the 88th Congress was a committee studying the federal government's involvement in scientific research and technological development.

This involvement, under the heading of R & D (research and development), is absorbing upwards of $15 billion a year of the national budget.

The committee was the Select Committee on Government Research headed by Rep. Carl Elliott, Alabama Democrat. Since Elliott was defeated for re-election, it is unlikely that it will be reconstituted.

Nor is it likely that Rep. Elliott's chief recommendation will be adopted -- that Congress set up a Joint Committee on Research Policy which would attempt to gain an overview of all specialized scientific activities the government is supporting.

One of the reasons given by Washington observers is that R&D expenditures have now become so vast congressmen no longer try to contain them but are primarily concerned with seeing that their states or districts get a share of them.

Another reason, and one that reflects a situation much more difficult to remedy, is that congressmen are not scientists. They share the layman's awe about science.

History records so many scientific projects which seemed ridiculous on their faces but which resulted in stupendous scientific and social revolutions that congressmen are reluctant to pronounce judgment on a given scheme simply because they don't understand it.

The decision, more often than not, is to err on the side of caution -- which means to spend money on the chance that it may eventually benefit the country.

An old legal phrase asks: "Who shall keep the keepers?" That is, who shall police the police, judge the judges, rule the rulers?

In this democracy, the three branches of the federal government perform part of the job by checking on each other, and the people, with their vote, are the ultimate keepers.

But who shall watch the scientists?

If Congress can't, and the citizens can't, then the scientists themselves must. But Congress must first at least create the legislative apparatus which will allow trained people to maintain this overview of the government's - the people's -- involvement in science.

BEDTIME STORY

The customs man poked through an old gentleman's luggage and located a flask of whiskey.

"I thought you said you have nothing but clothes in here," the inspector said.

"I did, and it's true," the old gent replied. "That, sir is my nightcap!"

Many motorists "forget" to wash their cars during the winter months. Mositure and road dirt collect and can give rust a toehold. Wash your car as often in winter as in summer And remember, your car also needs lubricating more often in cold weather.

POPULATION EXPLOSION

We are undergoing a well recognized population explosion. Longevity is an important factor.

Better health at all ages is playing a highly important part. War babies themselves are reaching the reproduction age and the wartime psychology which parented them is little abated.

Our population will reach 350 million in the 2,000 A. D. census, but greater sophistication and a more workable planned parenthood program may materially slow this unbelievably rapid increase.

If we disarm, new devices for destroying human life by the millions can reduce the United States population fast. Communist bosses in the past have told us when Communism takes over in the United States, one-third of the population will be liquidated even if voted into power.

The prospect for the first United States President to be inaugurated at the turn of the century is now one of our youth 19 years of age. If future presidents are older upon inauguration because of the increased life span the presidential hopeful for the year 2001 may now be age 25.

There may also be a recurrence of thought that that advanced years are a more suitable repository for wisdom. This could happen but not likely, and impulsive, impetuous youth of either sex will have its way. Accepting the premise that youth must be served, our presidential hopeful may be as young as 15 years.

We might discover one or two prospects among youth we know, for with few exceptions the greatest speakers and spellbinders were orators while young.

Insiders Predict Long Steel Strike

PITTSBURGH — What truly disturbs the knowledgable ones in this "iron city" is not the indecisive long count of the steel union presidential poll — but the decisive signs of a coming steel strike.

It may not break for months. But if it does the paralysis of the vast steel industry will last for months.

Both sides are deadlocked even before there has been any bargaining. Both sides have taken positions which place them hundreds of millions of dollars apart. However, this story has been lost to the public because the experts talk in a jargon of their own.

What it comes down to is that the steel industry, though speaking in percentages, has said in effect it cannot pay more than another $100 million a year to its factory people and salaried employes.

Over a three-year period this would mean committing itself to more than $300 million.

On the union side, though its leaders are feuding, they agree that this is "peanuts." They will ask for "substantially more." Just how much is "substantial" no one can yet calculate.

Virtually all this calculation is done by the United Steelworkers Union's (USW) technical staff, who, to say the least, have been emotionally and politically disturbed these past few months. They have not had a chance to hold their industrial war councils. They've been split down the middle by the Dave McDonald - I. W. Abel battle.

They've been harried by fears they'd be fired if their side lost. Many have been with the union since it first swept across the Midwest in 1937. Other unions do not hire specialists fired by another union headquarters. Nor do government agencies, which are loath to make enemies of union leaders who have discharged staffmen.

So the headquarters staff has spent much of its recent time either politicking or organizing a union of their own, the Staffmen's Organizing Committee, to protect themselves.

But now that they've time for off-the-record talks, they're doing and saying what comes naturally — planning for the big league negotiations with the steel industry's four-man bargaining team representing 11 major corporations. The union's position, judging from talks with some of the steel workers' specialists, will be based on the following:

It has been traditional for the USW to get pretty much what Walter Reuther's United Auto Workers (UAW) have won. This goes back to the late forties when "auto" would wind up with an increase of 19 cents an hour and "steel" with 18 cents.

Last year, after a series of strikes, Reuther's union rolled up victories ranging from 18 cents to 21 cents an hour depending on how you do the arithmetic.

The steel union brain trust just would not think of not fighting the steel industry for an equal amount. The technicians might be calmed down a little by either McDonald or Abel. Certainly the union's final demand will not be scaled down to much less than what Reuther won for his auto workers, who live window-pane-by-window-pane with the steelworkers.

It isn't just a matter of status for the steel union leaders and technicians. It's a matter of political security inside the union. The rank and file will want to know why they get less than their neighbors down the street — and this can result in local union election upsets — which doesn't enthuse the regional and local chiefs at all.

Thus the USW national leaders will be asking for a package far exceeding that which the industry people say is their outer limit. Industry says that it simply does not have the money to raise wages more than nine cents an hour. Beyond that it will not go "voluntarily."

Since this means an added payroll of $100 million annually and it is just about half what the union is set to demand, the difference is vast.

There are those inside the union brain trust who say let the steel industry increase prices. It has not had such an across-the-board price hike since 1958. But even if the government agreed to permit this, competition wouldn't.

In 1963 the industry tried to raise some prices, but was forced to cut them back when buyers turned to European and Japanese markets or to other products.

So the insiders here say that barring the easing of demands for a "substantial wage increase" and the costly "permanent job security" plan, there will be a strike.

Miss Betty Ruth Dale

Betty Ruth Dale Will Say Vows With Ronald Gardner

Plans are being made for a late February wedding for Miss Betty Ruth Dale and Mr. Ronald Gardner. Miss Dale is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lyman F. Dale of Sikeston and Mr. Gardner is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Sullivan of Casper, Wyoming.

Miss Dale attended school and graduated from William Woods College in Fulton, Missouri, in 1958. She is presently employed by R. B. Jones Insurance Agency in Kansas City, Missouri.

Mr. Gardner attended schools in Casper, Wyoming, and graduated from the University of Wyoming at Laramie in 1960. He served as a lieutenant in the U. S. Marine Corps for three years and is presently associated with Hallmark Cards, Inc., in Kansas City, Missouri.

The wedding will take place in Kansas City after which the couple will leave immediately for Tokyo, Japan, where Mr. Gardner will be in charge of military installations for Hallmark Cards.

W.S.C.S. Meets For Book Study

MOREHOUSE--The Women's Society of Christian Service met Monday, Feb. 15th at 1;30 p.m. in the Fellowship room of the Rauch - Spence Memorial Methodist Church in Morehouse for the first session of a book study entitled "Spanish Americans". Eleven members attended.

Mrs. Wendell Fox was the leader of the book study and greeted each member at the door dressed in Spanish costume. The class opened by singing "In Christ There Is No East Or West" with Mrs. James Estep at the piano. Scripture, Luke 10;25-37 was read in unison. Mrs. Leslie Frazier followed with prayer for understanding between nations. Mrs. Fox introduced the two books to be studied entitled, "This Is A Myth" and "My House Is Your House" by author, Rafael V. Martinez. Mrs. William Dillon gave an interesting talk on "Our Hispanic Heritage". Mrs. Joe Barnett and Mrs. Charles Allbright presented an interesting play about the Holden Institute entitled, "A Story Without End". A Spanish speech recording was played and a film strip, "Who Are Spanish Americans?" A Scripture Reading, Luke 19;12-23 was given by Mrs. A. W. Summers who followed with prayer. The closing prayer was voiced by Mrs. Frank Kesler.

The second session will be Wednesday.

Shortly after Dr. Enrico Fermi, Nobel Prize-winning atomic scientist, joined the University of Chicago staff, he was told by university executives, "Now that you are undertaking work for the government, you undoubtedly will need a secretary. We'll see to it that one reports to you tomorrow."

"But," protested Fermi, "I'm a physicist, not a businessman. What would I do with a secretary?"

"You must have one," the executives explained. "All important people in this country have secretaries."

"All right," said the scientist. "But in that case I shall need two secretaries --so they can keep each other busy."

Kenya was named after its glacier-topped Mount Kenya from the Bantu word "Kilinyaa," meaning "white mountain".

Keep Kitchen Storage Handy to Work Areas

Storage is always a primary consideration in kitchen planning. Arrange cabinets and cupboards so that things are within easy reach of various work counter areas.

Small appliances can be out on counter tops if you use them often, but if the uncluttered look is preferred or more working area is needed, plan space for them in a cupboard close to the place where you use them most.

So oriented to fishing for food are penguins that even a starving one would not recognize shrimp, its favorite food, out of water.

ANN LANDERS
Answers your problems

Dear Ann Landers: How can a person overcome stage fright? I guess that's what you'd call it although it has nothing to do with the stage. When I have to recite in class -- or worse yet if I must give a prepared talk -- I perspire and shake all over.

I am 16 and in high school. Ever since I can remember I've had this trouble.

Yesterday the teacher called on me to answer a question. My heart began to pound so loud I was sure everyone in the room could hear it. My mouth felt like it was stuffed with cotton and my lips moved but no voice came. After what seemed like an hour, the teacher called on someone else.

I hate to think of going through life scared to death to open my mouth. Will you please tell me how to overcome this horrible fear? -- MOUSEY

Dear Mousey: First, know your material cold. If you are well prepared and confident, you won't be such a nervous wreck when the teacher calls on you.

Next, practice speaking aloud at home, before the mirror. Get accustomed to the sound of your voice. Memorize and recite both prose and poems, and ask a member of your family or a friend to listen to you.

Third, force yourself to get on your feet and speak out. In time the fear will vanish. I know it can be done because I have done it.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm an 18-year-old girl who is going with a boy 19. We have both dated others but we prefer one another's company so we are now dating steadily, but not steady.

Buddy and I have grown up in the same block. Our parents are friends and we go to the same church. I thought I knew all about Buddy but I learned by accident that he had dated a very cheap girl. I decided to speak to him about it. He said he was ashamed of himself and finally stammered, "A fellow has to have two girls -- one he can be proud of and wants to marry, and one for sexual reasons."

Maybe I am simple - minded, but I don't get it. I've discussed this with some of my friends and was surprised to learn that they think Buddy is right. Is he?--RESPECTABLE

Dear Respectable: Buddy has a low opinion of sex.

In our society, sex belongs in marriage. I hope Buddy gets his thinking squared away or he may turn out to be an alley-cat type husband -- unable to find satisfaction with a respectable woman -- his wife, that is.

Dear Ann Landers: I've been reading your column for years and have never seen my problem in print.

I'm scared to death to be alone at night and I'm no kid, Ann. I've been married 10 years and have two children. My husband must travel in his work and he is out of town about one-third of the time. I'm just fine when the children are at home, but when they are away at summer camp, or visiting relatives, even for one night, I'm a nervous wreck. I toss and turn and imagine I see faces at the windows. The wind sounds like a human voice wailing and every shadow looks like a ghost. When morning comes I'm exhausted and can't do my housework.

I've talked to my husband about this and he says I am a silly goose. I know he is right but it doesn't solve my problem. Can you help? -- MRS. PETRIFIED.

Dear Pet: Have chain locks put on your doors. And make sure your windows have secure locks. Keep the porch lights on all night, and keep a light on in the hall outside your bedroom door. If this doesn't solve your problem get a dog -- and a big one -- with a loud bark.

Lonely? Uncomfortable? Just not able to make friends? Write for ANN LANDERS' new booklet, "The Key To Popularity," enclosing with your request 35¢ in coin and a long, self - addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self - addressed envelope.

Eve And The Apple Pie

I'm no Thoreau, but my advice
Is offered free. (Now ain't that nice!)
There really is no reason why
You need to make that apple pie
For any dame with kitchen freezer
Can bake a pie that's sure to please 'er.
Forget the pie, the book, the bed
And help ole Santa Claus instead.
No time to rhyme -- you know the reason--
It's the hurry, hurry season!

Keep Kitchen Storage Handy to Work Areas

Storage is always a primary consideration in kitchen planning. Arrange cabinets and cupboards so that things are within easy reach of various work counter areas.

Small appliances can be out on counter tops if you use them often, but if the uncluttered look is preferred or more working area is needed, plan space for them in a cupboard close to the place where you use them most.

So oriented to fishing for food are penguins that even a starving one would not recognize shrimp, its favorite food, out of water

ANN LANDERS
Answers your problems

Dear Ann Landers: How can a person overcome stage fright? I guess that's what you'd call it although it has nothing to do with the stage. When I have to recite in class -- or worse yet if I must give a prepared talk -- I perspire and shake all over.

I am 16 and in high school. Ever since I can remember I've had this trouble.

Yesterday the teacher called on me to answer a question. My heart began to pound so loud I was sure everyone in the room could hear it. My mouth felt like it was stuffed with cotton and my lips moved but no voice came. After what seemed like an hour, the teacher called on someone else.

I hate to think of going through life scared to death to open my mouth. Will you please tell me how to overcome this horrible fear? -- MOUSEY

Dear Mousey: First, know your material cold. If you are well prepared and confident, you won't be such a nervous wreck when the teacher calls on you.

Next, practice speaking aloud at home, before the mirror. Get accustomed to the sound of your voice. Memorize and recite both prose and poems, and ask a member of your family or a friend to listen to you.

Third, force yourself to get on your feet and speak out. In time the fear will vanish. I know it can be done because I have done it.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm an 18-year-old girl who is going with a boy 19. We have both dated others but we prefer one another's company so we are now dating steadily, but not steady.

Buddy and I have grown up in the same block. Our parents are friends and we go to the same church. I thought I knew all about Buddy but I learned by accident that he had dated a very cheap girl. I decided to speak to him about it. He said he was ashamed of himself and finally stammered, "A fellow has to have two girls -- one he can be proud of and wants to marry, and one for sexual reasons."

Maybe I am simple - minded, but I don't get it. I've discussed this with some of my friends and was surprised to learn that they think Buddy is right. Is he?--RESPECTABLE

Dear Respectable: Buddy has a low opinion of sex.

In our society, sex belongs in marriage. I hope Buddy gets his thinking squared away or he may turn out to be an alley-cat type husband -- unable to find satisfaction with a respectable woman -- his wife, that is.

Dear Ann Landers: I've been reading your column for years and have never seen my problem in print.

I'm scared to death to be alone at night and I'm no kid, Ann. I've been married 10 years and have two children. My husband must travel in his work and he is out of town about one-third of the time. I'm just fine when the children are at home, but when they are away at summer camp, or visiting relatives, even for one night, I'm a nervous wreck. I toss and turn and imagine I see faces at the windows. The wind sounds like a human voice wailing and every shadow looks like a ghost. When morning comes I'm exhausted and can't do my housework.

I've talked to my husband about this and he says I am a silly goose. I know he is right but it doesn't solve my problem. Can you help? -- MRS. PETRIFIED.

Dear Pet: Have chain locks put on your doors. And make sure your windows have secure locks. Keep the porch lights on all night, and keep a light on in the hall outside your bedroom door. If this doesn't solve your problem get a dog -- and a big one -- with a loud bark.

Lonely? Uncomfortable? Just not able to make friends? Write for ANN LANDERS' new booklet, "The Key To Popularity," enclosing with your request 35¢ in coin and a long, self - addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self - addressed envelope.

Eve And The Apple Pie

I'm no Thoreau, but my advice
Is offered free. (Now ain't that nice!)
There really is no reason why
You need to make that apple pie
For any dame with kitchen freezer
Can bake a pie that's sure to please 'er.
Forget the pie, the book, the bed
And help ole Santa Claus instead.
No time to rhyme -- you know the reason--

Class "M" And "S" Regional Tournaments Begin Monday

Regional tournament committees have met, teams have been seeded, and field houses and gymnasiums across the state are being readied for the beginning of the class M and S regional basketball tournaments next Monday, February 22. The number of teams assigned to regionals ranges from 11 to 16. This variance in the number of teams assigned to tournaments within a particular class is due to the geographical location of the teams in that class. 224 schools in class S with enrollments under 161, and 244 class M schools with enrollments from 161 through 530 will participate in these tournaments.

The four probable strongest teams in each regional have been seeded by the regional tournament committees. Among the factors considered in seeding teams are won and lost records and a comparison of the competition played during the season. Attached is a list of top four seeded teams in each regional tournament.

The regional tournament winners will advance to the state tournament bracket in which play will begin at 8 different locations on Monday, March 1. First round state play in class S will be held at the state colleges in Springfield, Kirksville, Cape Girardeau, Warrensburg, and Maryville, and at Cuba High School. Class M games will be held simultaneously at the same sites with the exception of Kirksville, and games will also be played at Flat River and Monroe City High Schools.

Quarter - final games in both classes will be played on March 3 at Springfield, Cape Girardeau, and Excelsior Springs. A class S game will also be held at Kirksville and a class M game at Montgomery City. The quarter - final winners will advance to the semi-finals which are to be held at the University of Missouri in Columbia on Friday, March 5. The championship and consolation games will be played on Saturday, March 6.

The purpose of the tournament, series is to give each school the opportunity to demonstrate and evaluate, in comparison with other schools throughout the state, the knowledge, skills, and emotional patterns that have been taught through interscholastic basketball. An important factor in each school's interscholastic program is the sportsmanship of players, students, and fans.

The MSHSAA has, during the past several years, followed a comprehensive program to help its member schools improve sportsmanship. Some of the phases of this program are:

1. The supplying of materials and recommended programs for improving sportsmanship.

2. A series of cheerleader clinics which emphasize the contributions that cheerleaders can make in improving the conduct of both student and adult spectators.

3. A program for improving officiating which includes a set of minimum standards which officials must meet in order to be registered with the MSHSAA, a series of rules interpretation meetings, and a system for testing officials on their knowledge of the rules. This phase of the program was considered important since officiating is always a factor in the sportsmanship of spectators.

4. A rating system in which the officials rate each school that participates in a contest which they officiate, and the schools in turn rate each official.

The rating system mentioned in item 4 was adopted for the purpose of giving each school and official a means of evaluating their improvement in comparison with other schools and officials, and thereby providing a goal for which to strive. Since this program was first inaugurated, the over all level of ratings has improved each year. This indicates that our schools are providing their players, students, and fans with wholesome experiences which will contribute to the development of the attributes of good citizenship. To this end only, can secondary school athletics be justified.

(For more complete information concerning the tournament series, please see Volume I of the MSHSAA Athletic Manual which was released earlier.)

Bulldogs Have Tough Road Game Tonight

The Sikeston Bulldogs Bombardeers go a diving in on the Fredericktown Black Cats with the idea of winning their second game in succession. If they win it will put their record to 9-6 for the season.

After this game the Bulldogs will finish scheduled play next week with two home games, Monday night the Cape Central Tigers will evade the premises. Friday the Perryville Pirates come to wrap up the season's scheduled games of roundball. After that the Bulldogs enter the Class "M" Regional at Dexter the following Monday. Drawings will be held tomorrow for the seeding of the teams that are in the tourney.

For Fredericktown this wraps it up. From here they enter the Regional Tournament at Crystal City. Their won and lost is 9-12. An interesting thing to watch is how the Bulldogs go about stopping Ed Lane. He is the SEMO Conference's leading pointmaker this season.

Sport Shavings

by Dan Whittle

"Countdown to Kickoff," full-hour Saturday series previewing in depth the full schedule of National Football League games played each weekend, again will be presented on the CBS Television Network during the 1965 football season, it was announced today by William C. MacPhail, Vice President, CBS Television Sports.

MacPhail made the announcement in Palm Desert, Calif., where he is attending the annual winter meetings of the National Football League.

The television series will be presented on 15 Saturday afternoons from September 18 through the Saturday preceding the championship game.

Each week, in previewing the NFL games, the program will visit four stadium locations, where key contests are to take place, for up-to-the - minute pre-game reports. Coaches and players will be interviewed as the teams go through their final drills. All games will be previewed with highlight film of the teams in action. There will also be player profiles and topical features of special interest to football fans.

NEW YORK AP --Rick Barry's national leading average has dropped to 36.5 per game, but the 6-foot-7 star of the University of Miami, Fla., Hurricanes still has a comfortable lead in college basketball's individual scoring race.

The weekly statistics released Thursday by the National Collegiate Athletic Bureau show Barry leading with a 37.3 average on 821 points in 22 games through last Saturday.

Tuesday, however, Barry scored only 19 points against Stetson, dropping his average to 36.5 on 840 points in 23 games.

The late Wayne Estes of Utah State, who was accidentally killed on Feb. 8, remained in second place with a 33.7 average in the 19 games he played before his tragic accident.

Bill Bradley of Princeton retained the No. 3 spot with 31.1 with Dave Schellhase of Purdue fourth at 29.2.

Bulldogs And Cape Post Semi-Final Wins

Semi-Final action was completed last night in the Sikeston 7th and 8th Grade Tournament. The Bulldogs trimmed down the Poplar Bluff Mules 49-35 to run their season's record to 8-3. Poplar Bluff was seeded number four. Second seeded Cape downed third seeded Charleston 43-26. The Finals will be held Saturday night with the games beginning at 6:30 in the Armory.

Three Seattle University Basketball Players Arrested

SEATTLE (AP) — The Seattle University Chieftains, rocked back on their heels by a point-shaving scandal, regrouped Thursday to try to press on with their basketball campaign.

When they meet Nevada in Reno Saturday and Utah State in Logan, Utah, Monday, they'll be minus the help of their team captain, Charlie Williams, and two other teammates, Peller Phillips and L. J. Wheeler.

The three were expelled from Seattle University after the FBI arrested guards Williams and Phillips Wednesday night on charges of bribery and conspiracy to affect the outcome of the Chieftains' game against the University of Idaho Jan. 22.

Seattle won 89-72. The gambling point spread was 18.

At the same time, Williams and Phillips, both 21 and both seniors, were arrested, the FBI arrested Leo Casale, 24-year-old owner of a Chicago cocktail lounge, in that city.

The Rev. Timothy Cronin, chairman of the SU board of athletics, said Wheeler, 22-year-old Chieftain pivotman, was ousted along with Williams and Phillips because he knew of the incident and didn't report it.

Phillips and Williams, considered a candidate for All-America and described by SU Coach Bob Boyd as "the finest guard I ever had," were released under $1,000 recognizance bond each.

Casale, proclaiming his innocence to reporters after his arraignment was continued to Tuesday in Chicago, was released on a $25,000 recognizance bond.

Father Cronin said he and other officials of the university got the impression from talking to Phillips and Williams that they "were really victimized."

"Peller said that had it been a professional gambler, they wouldn't have talked to him," Father Cronin said. "But it was a fellow he knew. He thought he was kidding. He gave them apparently a big song and dance. They were just taken for a ride."

Father Cronin said Phillips told of meeting Casale in Chicago during a trip by the Seattle team in December, and the priest said the figure $130 was mentioned in his conversation with Phillips, but no money went to Williams or Wheeler.

Phillips, whose home is Detroit, was a student with Casale in Coalinga, Calif., Junior College.

Williams remained unavailable for comment, but Phillips said he intends to plead innocent at a preliminary hearing in Seattle March 1. In discussing the charge in the presence of his attorneys, Phillips declared, "I do feel I'm innocent."

His expression was glum as he was interviewed and said:

"I feel very bad this came about like this, because a lot of people have been shocked. I'm hoping they won't judge me, or Charlie, until we're proven innocent. . . ."

The young athlete said he felt particularly bad that he and Williams had been hung in effigy from a flagpole at the university Thursday.

Phillips's wife, Dierdre, is expecting the couple's first child in a few months.

Williams, a native of Colorado Springs, Colo., but who starred in high school basketball in Tacoma, also is married and is the father of one child.

Casale lives with his mother in Chicago.

O'Bannon Wins In Both Games

NEW MADRID --New Madrid O'Bannon strung up an impressive 93-63 win over the Morehouse Tigers last night.

Two big scoring aces led O'Bannon. Wilderness gunned through for 26 and Day followed for 24. Landers was high for the Tigers with 19.

The night's action was swept by O'Bannon as they posted a 101-41 victory in the "B" game. Maltbia led all scoring with 19 points. Leya led the Tigers with 10.

DISCOVER THE SMOOTHEST WHISKY EVER TO COME OUT OF CANADA

NEXT TIME YOU'RE MAKING THE DRINKS, INSTEAD OF YOUR USUAL WHISKEY, USE THIS SUPERIOR IMPORT.

Do what thousands of smart drinkers have done: Compare Windsor Canadian with your usual whiskey. Make two drinks, one with your "usual," the other with Windsor. You'll be amazed —as thousands are—at the extra smoothness of Windsor.

There are three reasons for this!

1. Windsor is distilled and aged in dry, crisp, mile-high Rocky Mountain air. 2. Windsor is made from Western Canadian grain, hearty and vigorous. 3. And the water is clear pure glacial water.

No wonder Windsor is the smoothest whisky ever to come out of Canada.

Yet this uniquely smooth, elegant import is priced right in line with leading popular-priced whiskeys. Try it.

The four probable strongest teams in each regional have been seeded by the regional tournament committees. Among the factors considered in seeding teams are won and lost records and a comparison of the competition played during the season. Attached is a list of top four seeded teams in each regional tournament.

The regional tournament winners will advance to the state tournament bracket in which play will begin at 8 different locations on Monday, March 1. First round state play in class S will be held at the state colleges in Springfield, Kirksville, Cape Girardeau, Warrensburg, and Maryville, and at Cuba High School. Class M games will be held simultaneously at the same sites with the exception of Kirksville, and games will also be played at Flat River and Monroe City High Schools.

Quarter - final games in both classes will be played on March 3 at Springfield, Cape Girardeau, and Excelsior Springs. A class S game will also be held at Kirksville and a class M game at Montgomery City. The quarter - final winners will advance to the semi-finals which are to be held at the University of Missouri in Columbia on Friday, March 5. The championship and consolation games will be played on Saturday, March 6.

The purpose of the tournament, series is to give each school the opportunity to demonstrate and evaluate, in comparison with other schools throughout the state, the knowledge, skills, and emotional patterns that have been taught through interscholastic basketball. An important factor in each school's interscholastic program is the sportsmanship of players, students, and fans.

The MSHSAA has, during the past several years, followed a comprehensive program to help its member schools improve sportsmanship. Some of the phases of this program are:

1. The supplying of materials and recommended programs for improving sportsmanship.

2. A series of cheerleader clinics which emphasize the contributions that cheerleaders can make in improving the conduct of both student and adult spectators.

3. A program for improving officiating which includes a set of minimum standards which officials must meet in order to be registered with the MSHSAA, a series of rules interpretation meetings, and a system for testing officials on their knowledge of the rules. This phase of the program was considered important since officiating is always a factor in the sportsmanship of spectators.

4. A rating system in which the officials rate each school that participates in a contest which they officiate, and the schools in turn rate each official.

The rating system mentioned in item 4 was adopted for the purpose of giving each school and official a means of evaluating their improvement in comparison with other schools and officials, and thereby providing a goal for which to strive. Since this program was first inaugurated, the over all level of ratings has improved each year. This indicates that our schools are providing their players, students, and fans with wholesome experiences which will contribute to the development of the attributes of good citizenship. To this end only, can secondary school athletics be justified.

(For more complete information concerning the tournament series, please see Volume I of the MSHSAA Athletic Manual which was released earlier.)

Bulldogs Have Tough Road Game Tonight

The Sikeston Bulldogs Bombardeers go a diving in on the Fredericktown Black Cats with the idea of winning their second game in succession. If they win it will put their record to 9-6 for the season.

After this game the Bulldogs will finish scheduled play next week with two home games. Monday night the Cape Central Tigers will evade the premises. Friday the Perryville Pirates come to wrap up the season's scheduled games of roundball. After that the Bulldogs enter the Class "M" Regional at Dexter the following Monday. Drawings will be held tomorrow for the seeding of the teams that are in the tourney.

For Fredericktown this wraps it up. From here they enter the Regional Tournament at Crystal City. Their won and lost is 9-12. An interesting thing to watch is how the Bulldogs go about stopping Ed Lane. He is the SEMO Conference's leading pointmaker this season.

Sport Shavings

by Dan Whittle

"Countdown to Kickoff," full-hour Saturday series previewing in depth the full schedule of National Football League games played each weekend, again will be presented on the CBS Television Network during the 1965 football season, it was announced today by William C. MacPhail, Vice President, CBS Television Sports.

MacPhail made the announcement in Palm Desert, Calif., where he is attending the annual winter meetings of the National Football League.

The television series will be presented on 15 Saturday afternoons from September 18 through the Saturday preceding the championship game.

Each week, in previewing the NFL games, the program will visit four stadium locations, where key contests are to take place, for up-to-the - minute pre-game reports. Coaches and players will be interviewed as the teams go through their final drills. All games will be previewed with highlight film of the teams in action. There will also be player profiles and topical features of special interest to football fans.

NEW YORK AP --Rick Barry's national leading average has dropped to 36.5 per game, but the 6-foot-7 star of the University of Miami, Fla., Hurricanes still has a comfortable lead in college basketball's individual scoring race.

The weekly statistics released Thursday by the National Collegiate Athletic Bureau show Barry leading with a 37.3 average on 821 points in 22 games through last Saturday.

Tuesday, however, Barry scored only 19 points against Stetson, dropping his average to 36.5 on 840 points in 23 games.

The late Wayne Estes of Utah State, who was accidentally killed on Feb. 8, remained in second place with a 33.7 average in the 19 games he played before his tragic accident.

Bill Bradley of Princeton retained the No. 3 spot with 31.1 with Dave Schellhase of Purdue fourth at 29.2.

Bulldogs And Cape Post Semi-Final Wins

Semi-Final action was completed last night in the Sikeston 7th and 8th Grade Tournament. The Bulldogs trimmed down the Poplar Bluff Mules 49-35 to run their season's record to 8-3. Poplar Bluff was seeded number four. Second seeded Cape downed third seeded Charleston 43-26. The Finals will be held Saturday night with the games beginning at 6:30 in the Armory.

Three Seattle University Basketball Players Arrested

SEATTLE (AP) — The Seattle University Chieftains, rocked back on their heels by a point-shaving scandal, regrouped Thursday to try to press on with their basketball campaign.

When they meet Nevada in Reno Saturday and Utah State in Logan, Utah, Monday, they'll be minus the help of their team captain, Charlie Williams, and two other teammates, Peller Phillips and L. J. Wheeler.

The three were expelled from Seattle University after the FBI arrested guards Williams and Phillips Wednesday night on charges of bribery and conspiracy to affect the outcome of the Chieftains' game against the University of Idaho Jan. 22.

Seattle won 89-72. The gambling point spread was 18.

At the same time, Williams and Phillips, both 21 and both seniors, were arrested, the FBI arrested Leo Casale, 24-year-old owner of a Chicago cocktail lounge, in that city.

The Rev. Timothy Cronin, chairman of the SU board of athletics, said Wheeler, 22-year-old Chieftain pivotman, was ousted along with Williams and Phillips because he knew of the incident and didn't report it.

Phillips and Williams, considered a candidate for All-America and described by SU Coach Bob Boyd as "the finest guard I ever had," were released under $1,000 recognizance bond each.

Casale, proclaiming his innocence to reporters after his arraignment was continued to Tuesday in Chicago, was released on a $25,000 recognizance bond.

Father Cronin said he and other officials of the university got the impression from talking to Phillips and Williams that they "were really victimized."

"Peller said that had it been a professional gambler, they wouldn't have talked to him," Father Cronin said. "But it was a fellow he knew. He thought he was kidding. He gave them apparently a big song and dance. They were just taken for a ride."

Father Cronin said Phillips told of meeting Casale in Chicago during a trip by the Seattle team in December, and the priest said the figure $130 was mentioned in his conversation with Phillips, but no money went to Williams or Wheeler.

Phillips, whose home is Detroit, was a student with Casale in Coalinga, Calif., Junior College.

Williams remained unavailable for comment, but Phillips said he intends to plead innocent at a preliminary hearing in Seattle March 1. In discussing the charge in the presence of his attorneys, Phillips declared, "I do feel I'm innocent."

His expression was glum as he was interviewed and said:

"I feel very bad this came about like this, because a lot of people have been shocked. I'm hoping they won't judge me, or Charlie, until we're proven innocent. . . ."

The young athlete said he felt particularly bad that he and Williams had been hung in effigy from a flagpole at the university Thursday.

Phillips's wife, Dierdre, is expecting the couple's first child in a few months.

Williams, a native of Colorado Springs, Colo., but who starred in high school basketball in Tacoma, also is married and is the father of one child.

Casale lives with his mother in Chicago.

O'Bannon Wins In Both Games

NEW MADRID --New Madrid O'Bannon strung up an impressive 93-63 win over the Morehouse Tigers last night.

Two big scoring aces led O'Bannon. Wilderness gunned through for 26 and Day followed for 24. Landers was high for the Tigers with 19.

The night's action was swept by O'Bannon as they posted a 101-41 victory in the "B" game. Maltbia led all scoring with 19 points. Leya led the Tigers with 10.

CANADIAN WHISKY - A BLEND - EIGHTY PROOF - IMPORTED BY NATIONAL DISTILLERS PRODUCTS CO. NEW YORK

DISCOVER THE SMOOTHEST WHISKY EVER TO COME OUT OF CANADA

NEXT TIME YOU'RE MAKING THE DRINKS, INSTEAD OF YOUR USUAL WHISKEY, USE THIS SUPERIOR IMPORT.

Do what thousands of smart drinkers have done: Compare Windsor Canadian with your usual whiskey. Make two drinks, one with your "usual," the other with Windsor. You'll be amazed —as thousands are—at the extra smoothness of Windsor.

There are three reasons for this!

1. Windsor is distilled and aged in dry, crisp, mile-high Rocky Mountain air. 2. Windsor is made from Western Canadian grain, hearty and vigorous. 3. And the water is clear pure glacial water.

No wonder Windsor is the smoothest whisky ever to come out of Canada.

Yet this uniquely smooth, elegant import is priced right in line with leading popular-priced whiskeys. Try it.

Western Union Launches a Brand New "Doll Service"

Ever cuddle up with a telegram? Well, now you can with a DollyGram.

Western Union offers CandyGrams to eat and Cigargrams to smoke! Now comes it newest and gayest entry - DollyGram--an amusing, message-bearing moppet to snuggle in fond memory.

DollyGram, the new dolls-by-wire service, began Feb. 16 and offers a selection of four endearing cuties, which can be sent by wire as novel gifts, carrying your sentiment embroidered on the front, with no need to compose elegant prose; the dolls' smiling, impish faces speak for you - a treasure of lasting pleasure for young and old alike.

The red-haired "Happy Birthday" doll, in gold velour, proudly holds a one-candle blue and white birthday cake in its tiny hands; the blonde-haired "Congratulations" doll, in blue velour, features a wide grin and carries a posy of assorted colors; the "Cheer Up" black-haired doll, in pink velour, has a pleading look as it cluthces a nosegay of four blue and pink flowers; the golden-haired "Have a Happy Day" doll, in red valour, fondles a floral bouquet of pink flowers and has the widest smile of all.

The pixie-like dolls, each about six inches tall, are packed in stylish boxes, matching their velour colors. The four models, priced at $2 each, plus the cost of the telegraph service to destination, are displayed in Western Union offices across the country, where they may be ordered in person or by simply calling Western Union. Initially, DollyGram service will be available in about 1,000 cities throughout the country.

It is expected that the average DollyGram will cost between $3 and $4, according to the distance and class of telegraph service used. DollyGrams may be sent immediately at the fast telegram rate, or at the lower, night letter rate for next - morning delivery. Charges will be billed later, if desired, under the company's liberal credit policy.

DollyGrams are transmitted to their destination, where the ordered doll is taken from Western Union's office stock. An address card, with the name of the sender written by hand, is inserted in the colorful box sleeve, and the DollyGram is then delivered. One or more DollyGrams may be sent on each order. Doll collectors will probably want all four.

"DollyGram," said G. Stewart Paul, Western Union's vice president of Operating and Marketing, "carries happy sentiments across the miles in a way that words alone cannot express. It's a novel greeting gift for every age and mood -- for youngsters to scold or pamper affectionately, teenagers to howl over in Beatle-like delight, and adults to treasure with lasting pleasure."

Art League Stress On Originality

By HARRIET JONES, Art Supervisor, Sikeston Public Schools

I have served as art supervisor for Sikeston Public Schools for eleven years. The support and cooperation that I have received from both the school system and the town have been most gratifying. Sikeston is behind its schools to an extent that I am sure is unsurpassed anywhere in the United States.

Now Sikeston is going one step further toward the education of its citizen by organizing an art league. Organizations of this type are not uncommon, but I feel that this league is quite unique in that its approach is completely unselfish. The purpose of the league is not just to find a way to serve its individual members, but rather to give to the whole community. Membership and patron tickets have been on sale for only a few weeks and yet Sikeston has responded with amazing generosity.

Since the town has shown this intense interest in furthering the arts, it is the desire of the league to keep all of its activities on the highest aesthetic level possible. For this reason certain standards will be set for the pieces exhibited in the Spring Art Exhibit. These requirements are not made to limit the number of persons eligible to participate or to discriminate against the amateur but to establish and encourage a sound art philosophy. Art can be defined as a means of self-expression. If we keep this definition in mind we will be better able to determine which approach to take.

While recruiting members for the league we have found many who say that they are interested in art and enjoy copying others work but they claim that they are not creative and cannot do anything unless they have a drawing or photograph from which to work. It is true that this is the road of least resistance but can we call this self-expression? Is the individual making a new statement or just repeating what has already been said? In a country like ours where we are allowed to express ourselves it would be quite sad if self-inflicted inhibitions prevented us from doing so.

To better understand how these inhibitions develop, it might help to go back and examine the student in the primary grades. In most subject areas the student enters the first grade knowing very little and it is the responsibility of the schools to build from there. As far as creativity is concerned the situation is practically reversed. The youngster who has had no art training is usually filled with confidence and expresses himself freely. He will make you a picture of almost anything with little or no hesitation. It is the responsibility of the teacher and the parents to preserve this creative approach. Their role is merely to acquaint the student with tools and techniques so that he may express himself more effectively. Frequently this creative approach is destroyed when we impose adult standards upon the child. We may be completely unaware of it but this is exactly what we are doing when we let him color in a coloring book, fill in the numbered areas of a picture or reproduce other pictures. Incidentally, I feel that we are also encouraging him to be dishonest if we allow him to say that he painted a picture when actually it is not his work at all. Some will argue that these "exercises" are beneficial for they teach one to manipulate the brush, mix colors, and so on. This might be true but if one considers the damage that they do, the damages overshadow all advantages. If allowed to continue these practices of using guides or patterns for any length of time, the student leans too heavily upon these cruthces and feels that his work is unsuccessful unless he uses them.

Another argument that one frequently hears is that the individual knows that he does not have much talent and that he does not expect to become an artist, but that he finds enjoyment and fills empty hours by making these reproductions. This might be true, but, the enjoyment that he is receiving is nothing as compared with the real pleasure and feeling of accomplishment that he would get if the work had come from within. In the classes that will be given by the Sikeston Art League, this creative approach with an emphasis on originality will be stressed. It is our hope that each person attending, regardless of background or training, will find the courses quite rewarding.

The reason for bringing up the subject of originality at this time is so that individuals will have time to prepare work for the spring exhibit. It is possible that, to the untrained eye, this show will not have as much appeal as it would have had if copied work had been exhibited. We feel, however, that this is the only way that real progress can be made. In large city shows originality has been a requirement for some time but I think that Sikeston can take real pride in the fact that it is the first town in Southeast Missouri to sponsor a show of only original work.

Michaelangelo said "It is my desire that those who are to come will know that I have been". In short, I believe that this philosophy prevails in Sikeston Art League.

Thanks once again, Sikeston, for in my opinion, "all systems are go".

SEEKS ADVICE -- President Johnson sought advice from former President Eisenhower on the Viet Nam crisis during a surprise meeting at the White House. The meeting took place after Eisenhower visited Walter Reed Army Medical Center for a medical checkup. (NEA TELEPHOTO)

The money raised on Yogi Berra Day at Yankee Stadium in 1959 was turned over at his request to Columbia University for a scholarship. Berra visited the scholarship student one morning in his living quarters. The student shared a room with another undergraduate, who was still asleep. When they left, Yogi told the dean he wanted his student transferred to another room. "I don't want him rooming with someone who's still in bed at 9 a.m.," Yogi explained. "There's no excuse for a college boy to sleep that late. It's a bad influence."

Litterbugs Target of Bill Introduced in Assembly

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) —A bill aimed at litterbugs who desecrate Missouri's streams and lakes with beer cans and debris was introduced in the House today.

It would extend the present roadside anti-litter law to navigable streams and any state owned or leased land or lakes. Violation would be a misdemeanor.

Another new House bill would increase state welfare costs an estimated $15.5 million a year.

It would raise old age assistance, disability and relief grants from $70 to $80 a month, boost allowable property limits to $8,000 and let assistance recipients live with relatives.

Many similar bills are pending.

The Senate advanced a bill that would permit special road districts to share in county aid road funds from the gasoline tax. An attorney general's opinion held last November the road districts were not eligible for this money.

A constitutional change to let a governor succeed himself won House committee approval Monday night.

An emergency money bill carrying some $5.5 million was approved by the Senate Appropriations Committee today.

The bill provides funds for state agencies to finish out the fiscal year ending June 30.

Included is $332,000 to start modernizing the water systems in state parks and making them safe as recommended by the State Health Division.

The Senate committee added $300,000 for the Department of Revenue to aid in the cost of assessing and collecting taxes under a 1963 law. It also increased from $18,000 to $43,000 the allotment to build two new guard towers at the Moverly Medium Security Prison.

The committee chopped the funds for Central Missouri State College at Warrensburg from $261,800 to $181,200 on the grounds that would be enough for the school to finish the year at the present level of operations.

Similarly, the amount for aid to dependent children was trimmed from $400,000 to $300,000. The bill carries another $300,000 for blind aid and blind pensions.

At the request of Secy. of State James C. Kirkpatrick, the committee reduced the amount to set up a new unit to handle the uniform commercial code from $130,107 to $28,976 on the basis of revised cost estimates.

Kirkpatrick said the saving could be effected by off-hour use of a computer already installed in the state budget office. The new code goes into effect July 1.

Stricken was a $35,000 item to plan restoration of the first state capitol at St. Charles.

Western Union Launches a Brand New "Doll Service"

Ever cuddle up with a telegram? Well, now you can with a DollyGram.

Western Union offers Candy-Grams to eat and Cigargrams to smoke! Now comes it newest and gayest entry - DollyGram--an amusing, message-bearing moppet to snuggle in fond memory.

DollyGram, the new dolls-by-wire service, began Feb. 16 and offers a selection of four endearing cuties, which can be sent by wire as novel gifts, carrying your sentiment embroidered on the front, with no need to compose elegant prose; the dolls' smiling, impish faces speak for you - a treasure of lasting pleasure for young and old alike.

The red-haired "Happy Birthday" doll, in gold velour, proudly holds a one-candle blue and white birthday cake in its tiny hands; the blonde-haired "Congratulations" doll, in blue velour, features a wide grin and carries a posy of assorted colors; the "Cheer Up" black-haired doll, in pink velour, has a pleading look as it clutches a nosegay of four blue and pink flowers; the golden-haired "Have a Happy Day" doll, in red valour, fondles a floral bouquet of pink flowers and has the widest smile of all.

The pixie-like dolls, each about six inches tall, are packed in stylish boxes, matching their velour colors. The four models, priced at $2 each, plus the cost of the telegraph service to destination, are displayed in Western Union offices across the country, where they may be ordered in person or by simply calling Western Union. Initially, DollyGram service will be available in about 1,000 cities throughout the country.

It is expected that the average DollyGram will cost between $3 and $4, according to the distance and class of telegraph service used. DollyGrams may be sent immediately at the fast telegram rate, or at the lower, night letter rate for next - morning delivery. Charges will be billed later, if desired, under the company's liberal credit policy.

DollyGrams are transmitted to their destination, where the ordered doll is taken from Western Union's office stock. An address card, with the name of the sender written by hand, is inserted in the colorful box sleeve, and the DollyGram is then delivered. One or more DollyGrams may be sent on each order. Doll collectors will probably want all four.

"DollyGram," said G. Stewart Paul, Western Union's vice president of Operating and Marketing, "carries happy sentiments across the miles in a way that words alone cannot express. It's a novel greeting gift for every age and mood -- for youngsters to scold or pamper affectionately, teenagers to howl over in Beatle-like delight, and adults to treasure with lasting pleasure."

Art League Stress On Originality

By HARRIET JONES, Art Supervisor, Sikeston Public Schools

I have served as art supervisor for Sikeston Public Schools for eleven years. The support and cooperation that I have received from both the school system and the town have been most gratifying. Sikeston is behind its schools to an extent that I am sure is unsurpassed anywhere in the United States.

Now Sikeston is going one step further toward the education of its citizen by organizing an art league. Organizations of this type are not uncommon, but I feel that this league is quite unique in that its approach is completely unselfish. The purpose of the league is not just to find a way to serve its individual members, but rather to give to the whole community. Membership and patron tickets have been on sale for only a few weeks and yet Sikeston has responded with amazing generosity.

Since the town has shown this intense interest in furthering the arts, it is the desire of the league to keep all of its activities on the highest aesthetic level possible. For this reason certain standards will be set for the pieces exhibited in the Spring Art Exhibit. These requirements are not made to limit the number of persons eligible to participate or to discriminate against the amateur but to establish and encourage a sound art philosophy. Art can be defined as a means of self-expression. If we keep this definition in mind we will be better able to determine which approach to take.

While recruiting members for the league we have found many who say that they are interested in art and enjoy copying others work but they claim that they are not creative and cannot do anything unless they have a drawing or photograph from which to work. It is true that this is the road of least resistance but can we call this self-expression? Is the individual making a new statement or just repeating what has already been said? In a country like ours where we are allowed to express ourselves it would be quite sad if self-inflicted inhibitions prevented us from doing so.

To better understand how these inhibitions develop, it might help to go back and examine the student in the primary grades. In most subject areas the student enters the first grade knowing very little and it is the responsibility of the schools to build from there. As far as creativity is concerned the situation is practically reversed. The youngster who has had no art training is usually filled with confidence and expresses himself freely. He will make you a picture of almost anything with little or no hesitation. It is the responsibility of the teacher and the parents to preserve this creative approach. Their role is merely to acquaint the student with tools and techniques so that he may express himself more effectively. Frequently this creative approach is destroyed when we impose adult standards upon the child. We may be completely unaware of it but this is exactly what we are doing when we let him color in a coloring book, fill in the numbered areas of a picture or reproduce other pictures. Incidentally, I feel that we are also encouraging him to be dishonest if we allow him to say that he painted a picture when actually it is not his work at all. Some will argue that these "exercises" are beneficial for they teach one to manipulate the brush, mix colors, and so on. This might be true but if one considers the damage that they do, the damages overshadow all advantages. If allowed to continue these practices of using guides or patterns for any length of time, the student leans too heavily upon these crutches and feels that his work is unsuccessful unless he uses them.

Another argument that one frequently hears is that the individual knows that he does not have much talent and that he does not expect to become an artist, but that he finds enjoyment and fills empty hours by making these reproductions. This might be true, but, the enjoyment that he is receiving is nothing as compared with the real pleasure and feeling of accomplishment that he would get if the work had come from within. In the classes that will be given by the Sikeston Art League, this creative approach with an emphasis on originality will be stressed. It is our hope that each person attending, regardless of background or training, will find the courses quite rewarding.

The reason for bringing up the subject of originality at this time is so that individuals will have time to prepare work for the spring exhibit. It is possible that, to the untrained eye, this show will not have as much appeal as it would have had if copied work had been exhibited. We feel, however, that this is the only way that real progress can be made. In large city shows originality has been a requirement for some time but I think that Sikeston can take real pride in the fact that it is the first town in Southeast Missouri to sponsor a show of only original work.

Michaelangelo said "It is my desire that those who are to come will know that I have been". In short, I believe that this philosophy prevails in Sikeston Art League.

Thanks once again, Sikeston, for in my opinion, "all systems are go".

SEEKS ADVICE -- President Johnson sought advice from former President Eisenhower on the Viet Nam crisis during a surprise meeting at the White House. The meeting took place after Eisenhower visited Walter Reed Army Medical Center for a medical checkup. (NEA TELEPHOTO)

The money raised on Yogi Berra Day at Yankee Stadium in 1959 was turned over at his request to Columbia University for a scholarship. Berra visited the scholarship student one morning in his living quarters. The student shared a room with another undergraduate, who was still asleep. When they left, Yogi told the dean he wanted his student transferred to another room. "I don't want him rooming with someone who's still in bed at 9 a.m.," Yogi explained. "There's no excuse for a college boy to sleep that late. It's a bad influence."

Litterbugs Target of Bill Introduced in Assembly

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) —A bill aimed at litterbugs who desecrate Missouri's streams and lakes with beer cans and debris was introduced in the House today.

It would extend the present roadside anti-litter law to navigable streams and any state owned or leased land or lakes. Violation would be a misdemeanor.

Another new House bill would increase state welfare costs an estimated $15.5 million a year.

It would raise old age assistance, disability and relief grants from $70 to $80 a month, boost allowable property limits to $8,000 and let assistance recipients live with relatives.

Many similar bills are pending.

The Senate advanced a bill that would permit special road districts to share in county aid road funds from the gasoline tax. An attorney general's opinion held last November the road districts were not eligible for this money.

A constitutional change to let a governor succeed himself won House committee approval Monday night.

An emergency money bill carrying some $5.5 million was approved by the Senate Appropriations Committee today.

The bill provides funds for state agencies to finish out the fiscal year ending June 30.

Included is $332,000 to start modernizing the water systems in state parks and making them safe as recommended by the State Health Division.

The Senate committee added $300,000 for the Department of Revenue to aid in the cost of assessing and collecting taxes under a 1963 law. It also increased from $18,000 to $43,000 the allotment to build two new guard towers at the Moverly Medium Security Prison.

Similarly, the amount for aid to dependent children was trimmed from $400,000 to $300,000. The bill carries another $300,000 for blind aid and blind pensions.

At the request of Secy. of State James C. Kirkpatrick, the committee reduced the amount to set up a new unit to handle the uniform commercial code from $130,107 to $28,976 on the basis of revised cost estimates.

Kirkpatrick said the saving could be effected by off-hour use of a computer already installed in the state budget office. The new code goes into effect July 1.

Illinois Professor Plans A 700 Mile Reservoir Lake

CARBONDALE, Ill. (AP) —A $1 billion thought provoker has been mapped by three geography professors who recommend a 700 - square - mile reservoir stretching from St. Louis to Cape Girardeau, Mo., as a solution to economic problems for four states.

The Southern Illinois University professors said in an interview Tuesday that their proposal is a veiled protest against costly localized development projects that do not reflect regional study.

The three—Robert A. Harper, Frank H. Thomas and Theodore H. Schmudde—contend big answers are needed for a water shortage that limits industry and recreation, retards municipal growth and restrains the full potential of water transportion.

"The lake is a far-out thought, and we consider it a good idea," Harper said, "but more important is inspiring people and the government to look at problems on a broad scale rather than pursue piecemeal efforts." The proposal includes a barge canal from Cape Girardeau to Helena, Ark.

The proposed reservoir would be named Thebes Lake. Thebes is where the main dam would be built southeast of Cape Girardeau. Another dam at Cape Girardeau would be the north gate of the barge canal across Southeastern Missouri and Arkansas.

They recommend a reservoir level 400 feet above sea level to assure the St. Louis metropolitan area of commercial access to the lake.

Such a level would create a lake 70 feet deep at Cape Girardeau and make barge navigation possible deep into Southern Illinois.

The professors say their proposal could provide an electric generating plant at the Thebes Lake Dam, considerable Mississippi River flood control, a vast water source for the midwest and almost limitless recreational potential.

The economies of Southern Illinois, Southeastern Missouri, Western Kentucky and Arkansas would be affected, the three said.

The proposal was made public recently at the Mississippi Valley Association Convention in St. Louis by Prof. Thomas.

He said the first reaction was to dismiss the plan as outlandish.

"But I believe it now has started some officials thinking big," Thomas added. "At least army engineers and barge operators were impressed at the St. Louis meeting."

Schmudde, Harper and Thomas acknowledged the proposed reservoir would encounter opposition because it would inundate much of the Mississippi River flood plain and several small towns.

ABANDON EFFORTS -- Rescue workers, convinced that James Mitchell, 23, of Winthrop, Mass., who has been trapped in a cave near Dolgeville, N. Y., since Feb. 13, is dead, abandoned efforts to reach him, but are still trying to reach his body by bulldozing away the side of a hill directly over where he was trapped beneath a stream of icy water. # Armed Forces

BLYTHEVILLE AFB, Ark. -- A 34-year-old aircraft commander has been selected by the 97th Bomb Wing as the outstanding officer for the month for January.

Captain John K. Lotz, 97th Air Refueling Squadron, is a KC-135 jet tanker aircraft commander with a perfect score of one-time-take-offs for the past three years.

A native of Baton Rouge, La., Captain Lotz received his flying wings in June 1955 while assigned to Enid AFB, Okla. He arrived here six years later in the winter of 1961.

In selecting Captain Lotz for the officer of the month award, he was presented a citation which read in part, "Captain Lotz's exceptional record speaks for itself, and marks him as a highly professional aircraft commander and an outstanding officer."

Captain Lotz is married to the former Miss Judith Robinson of Denan Springs, La., and they reside on base with their two sons, Jeffery K., 6, and Joseph K., 4.

When not behind the wheel of the KC-135, Captain Lotz likes to while away the hours either playing golf or catching up on the latest novels.

MAMA'S LACE

She spent the winter knitting
Her love into yards of lace,
Crocheted a baby bonnet
To frame her grandchild's face;
She cross-stitched kitchen aprons,
And wove a coverlet
In shades of pink, blue and white
For baby's bassinet.
The lace now trims my pillows;
The bonnet I have kept
To pass on to her grandchild,
Packed with the coverlet
Each time I tie my apron,
Or touch the dainty lace,
I feel her near, and see the
Smile on Mama's lovely face.

Find the strength for your life...

Does it seem to you sometimes that the world has gotten so crowded and complex that you just don't count at all in the grand scheme of things? It's not uncommon, that feeling. We feel helpless . . . unable to alter or even really to understand ourselves and the world we live in.

Faith is missing—and because of that, spiritual strength is.

But faith and spiritual strength can be found, nourished. Then they grow within you through regular worship. This week go to your church or synagogue. Start to build a fuller, more meaningful life. Cherish your faith and keep it strong so that it may strengthen you.

Illinois Professor Plans A 700 Mile Reservoir Lake

CARBONDALE, Ill. (AP) —A $1 billion thought provoker has been mapped by three geography professors who recommend a 700 - square - mile reservoir stretching from St. Louis to Cape Girardeau, Mo., as a solution to economic problems for four states.

The Southern Illinois University professors said in an interview Tuesday that their proposal is a veiled protest against costly localized development projects that do not reflect regional study.

The three—Robert A. Harper, Frank H. Thomas and Theodore H. Schmudde—contend big answers are needed for a water shortage that limits industry and recreation, retards municipal growth and restrains the full potential of water transportion.

"The lake is a far-out thought, and we consider it a good idea," Harper said, "but more important is inspiring people and the government to look at problems on a broad scale rather than pursue piecemeal efforts." The proposal includes a barge canal from Cape Girardeau to Helena, Ark.

The proposed reservoir would be named Thebes Lake. Thebes is where the main dam would be built southeast of Cape Girardeau. Another dam at Cape Girardeau would be the north gate of the barge canal across Southeastern Missouri and Arkansas.

They recommend a reservoir level 400 feet above sea level to assure the St. Louis metropolitan area of commercial access to the lake.

Such a level would create a lake 70 feet deep at Cape Girardeau and make barge navigation possible deep into Southern Illinois.

The professors say their proposal could provide an electric generating plant at the Thebes Lake Dam, considerable Mississippi River flood control, a vast water source for the midwest and almost limitless recreational potential.

The economies of Southern Illinois, Southeastern Missouri, Western Kentucky and Arkansas would be affected, the three said.

The proposal was made public recently at the Mississippi Valley Association Convention in St. Louis by Prof. Thomas.

He said the first reaction was to dismiss the plan as outlandish.

"But I believe it now has started some officials thinking big," Thomas added. "At least army engineers and barge operators were impressed at the St. Louis meeting."

Schmudde, Harper and Thomas as acknowledged the proposed reservoir would encounter opposition because it would inundate much of the Mississippi River flood plain and several small towns.

ABANDON EFFORTS -- Rescue workers, convinced that James Mitchell, 23, of Winthrop, Mass., who has been trapped in a cave near Dolgeville, N. Y., since Feb. 13, is dead, abandoned efforts to reach him, but are still trying to reach his body by bulldozing away the side of a hill directly over where he was trapped beneath a stream of icy water. BLYTHEVILLE AFB, Ark. -- A 34-year-old aircraft commander has been selected by the 97th Bomb Wing as the outstanding officer for the month for January.

Captain John K. Lotz, 97th Air Refueling Squadron, is a KC-135 jet tanker aircraft commander with a perfect score of one-time-take-offs for the past three years.

A native of Baton Rouge, La., Captain Lotz received his flying wings in June 1955 while assigned to Enid AFB, Okla. He arrived here six years later in the winter of 1961.

In selecting Captain Lotz for the officer of the month award, he was presented a citation which read in part, "Captain Lotz's exceptional record speaks for itself, and marks him as a highly professional aircraft commander and an outstanding officer."

Captain Lotz is married to the former Miss Judith Robinson of Denan Springs, La., and they reside on base with their two sons, Jeffery K., 6, and Joseph K., 4.

When not behind the wheel of the KC-135, Captain Lotz likes to while away the hours either playing golf or catching up on the latest novels.

MAMA'S LACE

She spent the winter knitting
Her love into yards of lace,
Crocheted a baby bonnet
To frame her grandchild's face;
She cross-stitched kitchen aprons,
And wove a coverlet
In shades of pink, blue and white
For baby's bassinet.
The lace now trims my pillows;
The bonnet I have kept
To pass on to her grandchild,
Packed with the coverlet
Each time I tie my apron,
Or touch the dainty lace,
I feel her near, and see the
Smile on Mama's lovely face.

Capt. H. Spencer Matthews, Jr.

Capt. Matthews Transferred, Plans Visit To Sikeston

Captain H. Spencer Matthews, Jr., will be relieved in March as Executive Officer of the U. S. Seventh Fleet attack aircraft carrier USS HANCOCK (CVA-19) and has been ordered to report to the Joint Chiefs of Staff in Washington, D. C., for duty in early April.

HANCOCK was one of the two attack carriers that conducted the retaliatory strikes in North Vietnam Feb. 7 while operating in the Western Pacific. Deployed from the U. S. West Coast in October 1964, HANCOCK has been part of the Seventh Fleet since November 1964.

Taking over Captain Matthews duties will be Commander R. J. Licko, who is now serving aboard HANCOCK as the ship's Navigator.

Capt. Matthews began his Naval Career in April 1940 and was commissioned an Ensign and received his wings as a naval Aviator in August 1943. In the last two years of World War II he flew 50 combat missions from England in anti-submarine warfare in the English Channel, the Bay of Biscay and the Eastern Atlantic. He was awarded the Air Medal for his combat action in the European Theater.

After the war, the captain was designated Navy Jet Pilot No. 115 while serving as a test pilot at the Naval Air Test Center at Patuxent, Md. His subsequent tours of duty include serving aboard several carriers and command of squadrons of the world's smallest jet attack aircraft, the Douglas Skyhawk, with the Seventh Fleet in the Far East.

He also has served with the Institute of Naval Studies, a group of Naval Officers and civilian scientists that conducts long range studies and investigations on future naval problems to serve as aids in planning the future U. S. Navy.

Captain Matthews reported to HANCOCK in February 1964 from Carrier Air Wing TWO, which is based on the USS MIDWAY (CVA-41). As Commander of the wing, he flew from the flight deck of MIDWAY the world's fastest carrier - based jet aircraft, the McDonnell F4B, called the Phantom II, which is manufactured in St. Louis, Mo.

Captain Matthews graduated Phi Beta Kappa from Tulane University with a Bachelor of Science degree in mathematics. In his senior year at Tulane, he received the annual Glendy Burke Gold Medal for outstanding achievements in the field of mathematics. Captain Matthews also was graduated from the Naval War College at Newport, Rhode Island in 1958.

The captain was born in Clarksville, Arkansas. His wife Floye and two daughters are presently visiting the captain's mother, Mrs. Flora Matthews in Sikeston, Mo. Their third and oldest daughter Kathy is a freshman at the University of California.

Captain Matthews plans on a short period of leave in Sikeston with his family early in April before they leave with him for Washington.

Matthews News

"Our Children--the Reason for PTA" was the subject around which Mrs. Orrin Hunt developed a most interesting program for the Matthews R-V PTA meeting Monday evening. Mrs. Marcus Koch and Mrs. Dale Geske, dressed in costumes of the 1890's, impersonated Mrs. Alice Birney and Mrs. Phoebe Apperson Hearst, founders of the organization in a skit reviewing its objectives. Other members commented briefly upon these objectives of human values, spiritual faith, good home, sound health, education promotion of educational opportunity, vocational competence, conservation of natural resources, constructive use of leisure time, international understanding, and citizenship.

Mrs. Hunt stressed the fact that the purpose of the PTA was to seek cooperation and understanding between parents and teachers on matters pertaining to the child's development and not to interfere with the administration of the educational program being carried out by qualified and duly appointed personnel selected by the Board of Education.

The meeting was called to order by Mrs. Nelson Gruen, who assumed the duties of president upon the resignation of Herbert Bird. The devotional was given by Mrs. Bob Hunt. An instrumental duet, the theme song for the Nazarene Young Peoples' Assn., "Onto the Work and Into the World", was played by Barbara Hunt and Charles Shelby.

The group voted to set a $3.00 limit on the book selected by the teacher for the room having the largest number of parents and teachers present. The 8th grade was winner in high school and there was a 4-way tie in the elementary grades.

A delicious pot-luck dinner was enjoyed by the group at 6 o'clock. The tables were very attractively decorated by Mrs. David York with fresh floral arrangements and Girl Scout place mats.

The Church of the Nazarene held their annual Valentine parties on February 11 and 12. The Kindergarten and Primary Departments held their party at the home of the primary teacher, Mrs. Glenn Burch. There were about 15 children attending. Mrs. Burch was assisted by the kindergarten teacher, Mrs. Josie Ball, and two mothers, Mrs. Don Cecil and Mrs. Frank Rinehart.

The Teenage party was held at the home of their supervisor, Mrs. Bob O. Hunt with Barbara and Beverly Hunt as cohostesses. There were 12 teenagers to enjoy the games, exchange of valentines, and refreshment of cookies and chocolate milk.

The Junior party was held at the home of their teacher, Mrs. Marilyn Rudisill, who was assisted by Mrs. Raymond Leech. The 14 Juniors enjoyed an evening of games, Valentine exchange, and refreshments.

Those from the local church among the 180 attending the annual Sweetheart Banquet of the Missouri District Nazarene Young People held at Dexter on February 13 were Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Burch, Shelia and Rita; Mr and Mrs. Kenneth Rudisill; Rev. and Mrs. Bob C. Hunt, Barbara and Beverly; Charles Shelby, Twyla Leach, Johnny Perry, and Margie Sutton. After a delicious chicken dinner they were shown the film, "Mr. Texas" produced by Billy Graham.

Friday evening, Feb. 19 there will be a Nazarene Young People's Society zone rally at the Matthews Church of the Nazarene. At the rally there will be the Scripturerama playoff. The public is invited to attend.

The Matthews Community Club will meet on Wednesday evening Feb. 24 at 7:30 at the Community Center. Small equipment for the home will be the subject for the program presented by Mrs. Charles Eby and Mrs. Clifford Sutton.

Room Mothers (and in some instances interested patrons,) arrived at the Matthews R-V Elementary School at 2:15 on Friday, afternoon with games, favors, and refreshments for the annual Valentine party. The children look forward to and appreciate these parties as one of the highlights of the year.

Those assisting with the parties were: First Grade: Miss Frankie Deane's Room--Mrs. Bob C. Hunt, Mrs. Cecil Jones and Mrs. Wade Parker; Mrs. Lois Hooks' Room: Mrs. R. L. Richards, Mrs. Donald Wilburn, Mrs. William Roberts, Mrs. Linzy Walls, and Mrs. Almous Krykendall.

Second Grade: Mrs. Alexander's Room -- Mrs. Fred Harris, Mrs. Roy Miller, Mrs. Bob Greene, and Mrs. Walter L. Beck; Miss Alice Deane's Room: Mrs. Charles Eby, Mrs. Glenn Burch, and Mrs. Ralph Fairres.

Third Grade: Mrs. Bean's Room: Mrs. William Cole, Mrs. Virgil Porter, Mrs. Joe White, Mrs. Kenneth Rudisill, and Mrs. Louis McDonald. Mrs. Depro's Room -- Mrs. Peter Myers, Mrs. Nelson Curtis, and Mrs. Harold Johnson.

Special Education: Mrs. Kornegger -- Mrs. J. H. Calvin and Mr. Lyle C. Bird. Mrs. Whiffen's Room -- Mrs. William Arthur and Mrs. Troy Tippett.

Fourth Grade: Mrs. Hubbard's Room -- Mrs. John Nelson, Mrs. Marcus Koch, Mrs. Raymond Gore, and Mrs. Paul Moore. Mrs. Conrad's Room: Mrs. Joe Rennier, Mrs. Floyd Clark, Mrs. Eugene Warren, and Mrs. Carl Romines.

Fifth Grade: Mrs. Moore's Room: Mrs. Troy Tippett, Mrs. Ray McCoy, Mrs. Shirley Johnson, Mrs. Fred Stroud. Mrs. Keaton's Room: Mrs. Ruben Hartlein, Mrs. G. H. Jones, Mrs. Verdis Faulkner, Mrs. Clyde Griffin, and Mrs. Lindley Heuiser.

Sixth Grade: Mrs. Greene's Room--Mrs. Lester King, Mrs. Ted Yarbrough, Mrs. Carl Shelby, Mrs. Richard Gaines, and Mrs. Frank Helms.--Mrs. Stafford's Room. -- Mrs. Charles Danield, Mrs. Paul Farrenburg, Mrs. J. B. Lomax, and Mrs. H. D. Friend.

Mrs. Lucille Givens, Miss Pat Williams, Mrs. Henrietta Hubbard, and Mrs. Glenda Conrad attended a meeting of elementary principals and teachers at the Colonial Inn in Cape Girardeau last Wednesday Approximately 140 area teachers attended the program presented by three specialists from a text book company. They gave an overview and orientation of a new basic reading series, dictionaries, and social studies materials which the teachers will be using next year.

Members of the Christian Church congregation enjoyed a fellowship supper in the church dining room Sunday evening at 6 o'clock. A Valentine motif was used in the decorations by the Pairs and Spares Class who also provided the barbecued meat for the supper. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Green and daughters of Sikeston were guests.

Pfc. Larry Green who is stationed at Fort Knox, Ky, spent last weekend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Green.

Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Alsup moved recently from this community to Mississippi where they have purchased a dairy farm.

The State Reorganization Commission of Missouri

CONSERVATION

Since the Conservation Commission is a part-time board (meeting monthly) its primary function is to determine basic policies of the department. The over-all administration of the policies and programs rests with the director who is responsible to the commission.

Early in 1964 a major reorganization of the department was made. Two new offices were created: Assistant Director (line functions), and Assistant Director (staff functions). The divisions of the department were increased to four (field, fisheries, game, and forestry) and placed under the direction of the assistant director (line functions). The following staff functions were placed under the direction of the assistant director (staff functions): engineering; fiscal; information; personnel; planning; metropolitan offices; and operations (new).

The Missouri State Park Board is assigned to the Department of Conservation by executive order of the Governor, but the order specifically stated that the Park Board should continue to function as an independent agency. In 1961, by statute, the board was declared to be "a body corporate and politic" and was authorized to issue revenue bonds for capital improvements.

The composition of the board is bipartisan and consists of six members appointed by the Governor, with senatorial confirmation, for staggered terms of four years. The board is authorized by law to appoint a director of state parks.

The Park Board, like the Conservation Commission, is a part - time body meeting monthly. The board has the responsibility for the operation, maintenance, and development of the state park system. Its statutory functions are:

1. The acquisition of land or sites for park purposes.
2. The awarding of contracts for concession privileges within the parks.
3. The maintenance and development of outdoor recreational areas within the park system.

The funds for the acquisition, maintenance, and operation of the state park system are constitutionally guaranteed. Article III, Section 47 of the 1945 constitution provides that for twelve years beginning with the year 1961 "the general assembly shall appropriate for each year out of the general revenue fund, an amount not less than that produced annually at a tax rate of one cent on each one hundred dollars assessed valuation of the real and tangible personal property taxable by the state, for the exclusive purpose of providing a state park fund to be expended and used by the agency authorized by law to control and supervise state parks. . ."

The primary function of the Park Board is to determine basic policies and programs. The director, appointed by the board and responsible to it, supervises the administration of the policies and programs. The agency has the following divisions: historical; recreation; planning; construction; maintenance; and fiscal. Each park superintendent is responsible to the director.

OUTDOOR RECREATION

15. Recommendation:

That the General Assembly create an interagency Council for Outdoor Recreation composed of representatives from state agencies concerned with outdoor recreation.

By order of the Governor, the director of Conservation has been designated as the coordinating officer in matters of outdoor recreation in Missouri and the state's official representative in dealing with the new Federal Bureau of Outdoor Recreation. The director of Conservation has asked the director of State Parks and the director of the Division of Commerce and Industrial Development to serve with him as an informal coordinating committee to consider the creation of a comprehensive state plan for outdoor recreation.

There is a growing need for interagency organizations to coordinate programs which involve two or more state agencies. The following ten state agencies are engaged in some aspect of outdoor recreation: Conservation Commission; Park Board; Division of Commerce and Industrial Development; Boat Commission; Division of Health; Water Pollution Board; Water Resources Board; Division of Geological Survey and Water Resources; Highway Commission; and the University of Missouri. The creation, by statute, of an interagency Council for Outdoor Recreation composed of representatives from each of these agencies would provide the needed structure within which a state-wide plan for outdoor recreation would be developed. An executive secretary should be employed together with sufficient staff to serve the council.

INTO ORBIT -- A powerful Saturn --1 booster rocket successfully propelled America's heaviest satellite, Pegasus, into orbit in a shot from Cape Kennedy, Fla. Pegasus' wing-like, 96-foot span is covered with thin aluminum foil and each time a particle of cosmic debris penetrates the foil, an electrical charge will be interrupted and the hit counted. Scientists hope the device will give a better idea of the hazards meteroids pose for spaceships.

Blodgett News

The Blodgett Methodist Mens' Club members and guests began their February meeting last Friday night with a devotional by the new pastor, Rev. J. Bernard McGoldrick, of Poplar Bluff.

Secretary Gary Beggs read the minutes of the last meeting. Treasurer Ebert Rister made the financial report. Miscellaneous business matters were disposed of.

A round table discussion occurred regarding U. S. Foreign Aid, especially wheat to Egypt which recently let a mob burn the Kennedy Library in Cairo, show down an American oil company unarmed plane, and told the U. S. to go to hell with their aid. The consensus of opinion was that our Foreign Aid program was susceptible to better management, both by American administrators, and also by foreign officials distributing our aid goods and funds in their respective countries.

The March cabinet meeting was scheduled for the night of the 5th; the regular membership meeting a week later, the 12th; both at 7:30.

Rev. Floyd Brower, Poplar Bluff-Sikeston Methodist District Superintendent, was one of the guests, and spoke briefly on subjects pertinent to Methodist churches and Methodist Mens' Clubs.

The social period--coffee, cake and conversation--terminated the meeting.

Capt. H. Spencer Matthews, Jr.

Capt. Matthews Transferred, Plans Visit To Sikeston

Captain H. Spencer Matthews, Jr., will be relieved in March as Executive Officer of the U. S. Seventh Fleet attack aircraft carrier USS HANCOCK (CVA-19) and has been ordered to report to the Joint Chiefs of Staff in Washington, D. C., for duty in early April.

HANCOCK was one of the two attack carriers that conducted the retaliatory strikes in North Vietnam Feb. 7 while operating in the Western Pacific. Deployed from the U. S. West Coast in October 1964, HANCOCK has been part of the Seventh Fleet since November 1964.

Taking over Captain Matthews duties will be Commander R. J. Licko, who is now serving aboard HANCOCK as the ship's Navigator.

Capt. Matthews began his Naval Career in April 1940 and was commissioned an Ensign and received his wings as a naval Aviator in August 1943. In the last two years of World War II he flew 50 combat missions from England in anti-submarine warfare in the English Channel, the Bay of Biscay and the Eastern Atlantic. He was awarded the Air Medal for his combat action in the European Theater.

After the war, the captain was designated Navy Jet Pilot No. 115 while serving as a test pilot at the Naval Air Test Center at Patuxent, Md. His subsequent tours of duty include serving aboard several carriers and command of squadrons of the world's smallest jet attack aircraft, the Douglas Skyhawk, with the Seventh Fleet in the Far East.

He also has served with the Institute of Naval Studies, a group of Naval Officers and civilian scientists that conducts long range studies and investigations on future naval problems to serve as aids in planning the future U. S. Navy.

Captain Matthews reported to HANCOCK in February 1964 from Carrier Air Wing TWO, which is based on the USS MIDWAY (CVA-41). As Commander of the wing, he flew from the flight deck of MIDWAY the world's fastest carrier - based jet aircraft, the McDonnell F4B, called the Phantom II, which is manufactured in St. Louis, Mo.

Captain Matthews graduated Phi Beta Kappa from Tulane University with a Bachelor of Science degree in mathematics. In his senior year at Tulane, he received the annual Glendy Burke Gold Medal for outstanding achievements in the field of mathematics. Captain Matthews also was graduated from the Naval War College at Newport, Rhode Island in 1958.

The captain was born in Clarksville, Arkansas. His wife Floye and two daughters are presently visiting the captain's mother, Mrs. Flora Matthews in Sikeston, Mo. Their third and oldest daughter Kathy is a freshman at the University of California.

Captain Matthews plans on a short period of leave in Sikeston with his family early in April before they leave with him for Washington.

"Our Children--the Reason for PTA" was the subject around which Mrs. Orrin Hunt developed a most interesting program for the Matthews R-V PTA meeting Monday evening. Mrs. Marcus Koch and Mrs. Dale Geske, dressed in costumes of the 1890's, impersonated Mrs. Alice Birney and Mrs. Phoebe Apperson Hearst, founders of the organization in a skit reviewing its objectives. Other members commented briefly upon these objectives of human values, spiritual faith, good home, sound health, education promotion of educational opportunity, vocational competence, conservation of natural resources, constructive use of leisure time, international understanding, and citizenship.

Mrs. Hunt stressed the fact that the purpose of the PTA was to seek cooperation and understanding between parents and teachers on matters pertaining to the child's development and not to interfere with the administration of the educational program being carried out by qualified and duly appointed personnel selected by the Board of Education.

The meeting was called to order by Mrs. Nelson Gruen, who assumed the duties of president upon the resignation of Herbert Bird. The devotional was given by Mrs. Bob Hunt. An instrumental duet, the theme song for the Nazarene Young Poeples' Assn., "Onto the Work and Into the World", was played by Barbara Hunt and Charles Shelby.

The group voted to set a $3.00 limit on the book selected by the teacher for the room having the largest number of parents and teachers present. The 8th grade was winner in high school and there was a 4-way tie in the elementary grades.

A delicious pot-luck dinner was enjoyed by the group at 6 o'clock. The tables were very attractively decorated by Mrs. David York with fresh floral arrangements and Girl Scout place mats.

The Church of the Nazarene held their annual Valentine parties on February 11 and 12. The Kindergarten and Primary Departments held their party at the home of the primary teacher, Mrs. Glenn Burch. There were about 15 children attending. Mrs. Burch was assisted by the kindergarten teacher, Mrs. Josie Ball, and two mothers, Mrs. Don Cecil and Mrs. Frank Rinehart.

The Teenage party was held at the home of their supervisor, Mrs. Bob O. Hunt with Barbara and Beverly Hunt as co-hostesses. There were 12 teenagers to enjoy the games, exchange of valentines, and refreshment of cookies and chocolate milk.

The Junior party was held at the home of their teacher, Mrs. Marilyn Rudisill, who was assisted by Mrs. Raymond Leech. The 14 Juniors enjoyed an evening of games, Valentine exchange, and refreshments.

Those from the local church amoag the 180 attending the annual Sweetheart Banquet of the Missouri District Nazarene Young People held at Dexter on February 13 were Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Burch, Shelia and Rita; Mr and Mrs. Kenneth Rudisill; Rev. and Mrs. Bob C. Hunt, Barbara and Beverly; Charles Shelby, Twyla Leach, Johnny Perry, and Margie Sutton. After a delicious chicken dinner they were shown the film, "Mr. Texas" produced by Billy Graham.

Friday evening, Feb. 19 there will be a Nazarene Young People's Society zone rally at the Matthews Church of the Nazarene. At the rally there will be the Scripturerama playoff. The public is invited to attend.

The Matthews Community Club will meet on Wednesday evening Feb. 24 at 7:30 at the Community Center. Small equipment for the home will be the subject for the program presented by Mrs. Charles Eby and Mrs. Clifford Sutton.

Room Mothers (and in some instances interested patrons,) arrived at the Matthews R-V Elementary School at 2:15 on Friday, afternoon with games, favors, and refreshments for the annual Valentine party. The children look forward to and appreciate these parties as one of the highlights of the year.

Those assisting with the parties were: First Grade: Miss Frankie Deane's Room--Mrs. Bob C. Hunt, Mrs. Cecil Jones and Mrs. Wade Parker; Mrs. Lois Hooks' Room: Mrs. R. L. Richards, Mrs. Donald Wilburn, Mrs. William Roberts, Mrs. Linzy Walls, and Mrs. Almous Krykendall.

Second Grade: Mrs. Alexander's Room -- Mrs. Fred Harris, Mrs. Roy Miller, Mrs. Bob Greene, and Mrs. Walter L. Beck; Miss Alice Deane's Room: Mrs. Charles Eby, Mrs. Glenn Burch, and Mrs. Ralph Fairres.

Third Grade: Mrs. Bean's Room: Mrs. William Cole, Mrs. Virgil Porter, Mrs. Joe White, Mrs. Kenneth Rudisill, and Mrs. Louis McDonald. Mrs. Depro's Room -- Mrs. Peter Myers, Mrs. Nelson Curtis, and Mrs. Harold Johnson.

Special Education: Mrs. Kornegger -- Mrs. J. H. Calvin and Mr. Lyle C. Bird. Mrs. Whiffen's Room -- Mrs. William Arthur and Mrs. Troy Tippett.

Fourth Grade: Mrs. Hubbard's Room -- Mrs. John Nelson, Mrs. Marcus Koch, Mrs. Raymond Gore, and Mrs. Paul Moore. Mrs. Conrad's Room: Mrs. Joe Rennier, Mrs. Floyd Clark, Mrs. Eugene Warren, and Mrs. Carl Romines.

Fifth Grade: Mrs. Moore's Room: Mrs. Troy Tippett, Mrs. Ray McCoy, Mrs. Shirley Johnson, Mrs. Fred Stroud. Mrs. Keaton's Room: Mrs. Ruben Hartlein, Mrs. G. H. Jones, Mrs. Verdis Faulkner, Mrs. Clyde Griffin, and Mrs. Lindley Heuiser.

Sixth Grade: Mrs. Greene's Room--Mrs. Lester King, Mrs. Ted Yarbrough, Mrs. Carl Shelby, Mrs. Richard Gaines, and Mrs. Frank Helms.--Mrs. Stafford's Room. -- Mrs. Charles Danield, Mrs. Paul Farrenburg, Mrs. J. B. Lomax, and Mrs. H. D. Friend.

Mrs. Lucille Givens, Miss Pat Williams, Mrs. Henrietta Hubbard, and Mrs. Glenda Conrad attended a meeting of elementary principals and teachers at the Colonial Inn in Cape Girardeau last Wednesday Approximately 140 area teachers attended the program presented by three specialists from a text book company. They gave an overview and orientation of a new basic reading series, dictionaries, and social studies materials which the teachers will be using next year.

Members of the Christian Church congregation enjoyed a fellowship supper in the church dining room Sunday evening at 6 o'clock. A Valentine motif was used in the decorations by the Pairs and Spares Class who also provided the barbecued meat for the supper. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Green and daughters of Sikeston were guests.

Pfc. Larry Green who is stationed at Fort Knox, Ky, spent last weekend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Green.

Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Alsup moved recently from this community to Mississippi where they have purchased a dairy farm.

CONSERVATION

Since the Conservation Commission is a part-time board (meeting monthly) its primary function is to determine basic policies of the department. The over-all administration of the policies and programs rests with the director who is responsible to the commission.

Early in 1964 a major reorganization of the department was made. Two new offices were created: Assistant Director (line functions), and Assistant Director (staff functions). The divisions of the department were increased to four (field, fisheries, game, and forestry) and placed under the direction of the assistant director (line functions). The following staff functions were placed under the direction of the assistant director (staff functions): engineering; fiscal; information; personnel; planning; metropolitan offices; and operations (new).

The Missouri State Park Board is assigned to the Department of Conservation by executive order of the Governor, but the order specifically stated that the Park Board should continue to function as an independent agency. In 1961, by statute, the board was declared to be "a body corporate and politic" and was authorized to issue revenue bonds for capital improvements.

The composition of the board is bipartisan and consists of six members appointed by the Governor, with senatorial confirmation, for staggered terms of four years. The board is authorized by law to appoint a director of state parks.

The Park Board, like the Conservation Commission, is a part - time body meeting monthly. The board has the responsibility for the operation, maintenance, and development of the state park system. Its statutory functions are:

1. The acquisition of land or sites for park purposes.
2. The awarding of contracts for concession privileges within the parks.
3. The maintenance and development of outdoor recreational areas within the park system.

The funds for the acquisition, maintenance, and operation of the state park system are constitutionally guaranteed. Article III, Section 47 of the 1945 constitution provides that for twelve years beginning with the year 1961 "the general assembly shall appropriate for each year out of the general revenue fund, an amount not less than that produced annually at a tax rate of one cent on each one hundred dollars assessed valuation of the real and tangible personal property taxable by the state, for the exclusive purpose of providing a state park fund to be expended and used by the agency authorized by law to control and supervise state parks. . ."

The primary function of the Park Board is to determine basic policies and programs. The director, appointed by the board and responsible to it, supervises the administration of the policies and programs. The agency has the following divisions: historical; recreation; planning; construction; maintenance; and fiscal. Each park superintendent is responsible to the director.

OUTDOOR RECREATION

15. Recommendation:

That the General Assembly create an interagency Council for Outdoor Recreation composed of representatives from state agencies concerned with outdoor recreation.

By order of the Governor, the director of Conservation has been designated as the coordinating officer in matters of outdoor recreation in Missouri and the state's official representative in dealing with the new Federal Bureau of Outdoor Recreation. The director of Conservation has asked the director of State Parks and the director of the Division of Commerce and Industrial Development to serve with him as an informal coordinating committee to consider the creation of a comprehensive state plan for outdoor recreation.

There is a growing need for interagency organizations to coordinate programs which involve two or more state agencies. The following ten state agencies are engaged in some aspect of outdoor recreation: Conservation Commission; Park Board; Division of Commerce and Industrial Development; Boat Commission; Division of Health; Water Pollution Board; Water Resources Board; Division of Geological Survey and Water Resources; Highway Commission; and the University of Missouri. The creation, by statute, of an interagency Council for Outdoor Recreation composed of representatives from each of these agencies would provide the needed structure within which a state-wide plan for outdoor recreation would be developed. An executive secretary should be employed together with sufficient staff to serve the council.

INTO ORBIT -- A powerful Saturn --1 booster rocket successfully propelled America's heaviest satellite, Pegasus, into orbit in a shot from Cape Kennedy, Fla. Pegasus' wing-like, 96-foot span is covered with thin aluminum foil and each time a particle of cosmic debris penetrates the foil, an electrical charge will be interrupted and the hit counted. Scientists hope the device will give a better idea of the hazards meteroids pose for spaceships.

Blodgett News

The Blodgett Methodist Mens' Club members and guests began their February meeting last Friday night with a devotional by the new pastor, Rev. J. Bernard McGoldrick, of Poplar Bluff.

Secretary Gary Beggs read the minutes of the last meeting. Treasurer Ebert Rister made the financial report. Miscellaneous business matters were disposed of.

A round table discussion occurred regarding U. S. Foreign aid, especially wheat to Egypt which recently let a mob burn the Kennedy Library in Cairo, show down an American oil company unarmed plane, and told the U. S. to go to hell with their aid. The consensus of opinion was that our Foreign Aid program was susceptible to better management, both by American administrators, and also by foreign officials distributing our aid goods and funds in their respective countries.

The March cabinet meeting was scheduled for the night of the 5th; the regular membership meeting a week later, the 12th; both at 7:30.

Rev. Floyd Brower, Poplar Bluff-Sikeston Methodist District Superintendent, was one of the guests, and spoke briefly on subjects pertinent to Methodist churches and Methodist Mens' Clubs.

The social period--coffee, cake and conversation--terminated the meeting.

DROP-OUT

In his hand he held the key
To the door of opportunity;
No need to listen for the knock--
He had the key which fit the lock.

Beyond the door lay education,
Yet, without much meditation,
He relinquished his hold on the knob,
In order to obtain a job.

But soon he was to realize
That his choice had been unwise;
And he thought about how carelessly
He'd given up that golden key.

Today's Spanish Lesson

By William Archer
Lesson No. 2
Reading time 3 Min.
Study time 5 Min.

Our first "key" was 'quiero' (key-AIR-o). It means, 'I want', 'I desire'. Now, we will add to this "key". The verb 'to go' is 'ir' in Spanish. It is pronounced 'ear', in English sound; so, if you want to say, 'I want to go', in Spanish, you simply say in English, 'key -AIR - o/ear (quiero ir). That is all? 'I want to go' -- where? 'I want to go to the hotel'. Just say in English, 'key-AIR-o/ear /ahl /o-TELL (quiero ir al hotel).

You can already see how "key" #1, 'quiero' (key-AIR-o), can unlock all verbs in the Spanish language when used in the infinitive form. For example, 'I want' (quiero) obviously calls for another verb -- an infinitive; I want TO GO, TO EAT, TO SLEEP, etc. Many Spanish verbs are similar to English, such as:

A--English; B--Spanish; C--Sound.

A) to practice; A) to rent
B) practicar; B) rentar
C) prahk-tea-CAR; C) rain-TAR

So, if you desire to say, 'I want to practice', or 'I want to rent', you need only use your "key", 'quiero' (quiero), with the Spanish infinitives, 'practicar' or 'rentar';

A) I want to practice; B( Quiero practicar; C) key-AIR-o /prahk-tea-CAR

A) I want to rent; B) Quiero rentar; C) key-AIR-o /rain-TAR

It's simple when you use the "keys" -- YOU DON'T HAVE TO CONJUGATE VERBS! You use the infinitive, which never changes.

Now you see that you can join your infinitives with your "keys" (the same as you do in English), and are able to avoid the conjugation of verbs:

A) 'I want to go to rent'; B) 'Queiro ir a rentar'; C) 'key-AIR-o/ear/ah/rain-TAR'

See how easy it is? You use "keys" to avoid conjugations, and use the English sound to produce the Spanish pronounciation.

When the Spanish verb does not resemble the English, you will find that you can often rely upon association. For example: The Spanish verb, 'dormir', means, 'to sleep'. Associate 'dormir' (door-MEAR) with the English word, 'dormitory', which will immediately suggest 'sleep' to you. Now, if you want to say, 'I want to sleep', use "key" #1, 'quiero' (key-AIR-o), with 'dormir' (door-MEAR):

A) 'I want to sleep; B) 'Quiero dormir'; C) 'key-AIR-o/ door-MEAR

Your next "key" is, 'voy a'. It means, 'I go', 'I am going', 'I will go'. It is pronounced in English sound, 'voy/ah'. Thus, 'I am going to sleep' would be, 'voy a dormir' (voy/ah/door-MEAR).

WASHINGTON (AP) — In everything from halting prose to lyric poesy, peanut butter lovers are telling the government what they hope to find when they pry the lid off the jar.

One goober gourmet, stirred by memories of what the delicacy used to taste like in his childhood, sent the following to George P. Larrick, commissioner of food and drugs:

"I think it's time you will agree,
For people of the whole countree
To speak as one (no stammer or stutter)
To demand some peanuts in our peanut butter.
"Too long we've endured homogenization,
And the tasteless goo of dehydration.
Give us the kind with the oil on top,
With peanuts from the best of the crop."

On the other hand, an Arizona boy who evidently likes his the modern way, creamy and smooth with plenty of additives to give it zing and zest, implored the government as follows: "I am 11 years old and I love peanut butter very much. I would be happy if the government kept its peanut-picking hands out of the jar."

The occasion for this symposium about the toothsome spread is a four-year-old effort by the government to set standards for peanut butter. Its current proposal is that peanuts make up at least 90 per cent of the total weight.

Manufacturers generally object to this, and also to a proposed ban on certain liquid sweeteners, and some non-peanut oils.

More than 1,000 letters from the general public have come in to the Food and Drug Administration.

A Canadian doctor, writing from St. Petersburg, Fla., said: "I have spent 10 winters here and always bring down a winter's supply from Canada. It is ground up nuts and salt. Not a fancy mess of nuts and chemicals that tastes like anything but peanuts."

But a North Carolina woman plumped for "the peanut butter status quo."

"I would like the right to choose my own blend as I do now," she said.

Put a 'Ceiling' On Old Cracks

Cracked, peeling bathroom ceilings are an eyesore to any homeowner, but especially to one who has recently completed a remodeling job. Heat and moisture from the tub-shower area cause this aggravating condition.

Many homeowners are taking steps to eliminate this problem in the future by installing plastic-surfaced hardboard blocks. The blocks, which come in colors and patterns, can be damp-wiped clean. They are factory-treated to withstand high heat and humidity conditions, and never require painting or refinishing.

Easy to handle, the 16" square blocks can be put up right over old, cracked ceilings. Tongue-and-groove edges simplify installation. Wallboard adhesive is used to secure a strong bond.

Plastic-surfaced hardboard also comes in four-foot panels and 16" x 8 planks for use on wall areas.

DROP-OUT

In his hand he held the key
To the door of opportunity;
No need to listen for the knock--
He had the key which fit the lock.

Beyond the door lay education,
Yet, without much meditation,
He relinquished his hold on the knob,
In order to obtain a job.

But soon he was to realize
That his choice had been unwise;
And he thought about how carelessly
He'd given up that golden key.

Today's Spanish Lesson

By William Archer
Lesson No. 2
Reading time 3 Min.
Study time 5 Min.

Our first "key" was 'quiero' (key-AIR-o). It means, 'I want', 'I desire'. Now, we will add to this "key". The verb 'to go' is 'ir' in Spanish. It is pronounced 'ear', in English sound; so, if you want to say, 'I want to go', in Spanish, you simply say in English, 'key-AIR-o/ear (quiero ir). That is all? 'I want to go' -- where? 'I want to go to the hotel'. Just say in English, 'key-AIR-o/ear /ahl /o-TELL (quiero ir al hotel).

You can already see how "key" #1, 'quiero' (key-AIR-o), can unlock all verbs in the Spanish language when used in the infinitive form. For example, 'I want' (quiero) obviously calls for another verb -- an infinitive: I want TO GO, TO EAT, TO SLEEP, etc. Many Spanish verbs are similar to English, such as:

A--English; B--Spanish; C--Sound.

A) to practice; A) to rent
B) practicar; B) rentar
C) prahk-tea-CAR; C) rain-TAR

So, if you desire to say, 'I want to practice', or 'I want to rent', you need only use your "key", 'quiero' (quiero), with the Spanish infinitives, 'practicar' or 'rentar':

A) I want to practice; B) Quiero practicar; C) key-AIR-o/prahk-tea-CAR

A) I want to rent; B) Quiero rentar; C) key-AIR-o /rain-TAR

It's simple when you use the "keys" -- YOU DON'T HAVE TO CONJUGATE VERBS! You use the infinitive, which never changes.

Now you see that you can join your infinitives with your "keys" (the same as you do in English), and are able to avoid the conjugation of verbs:

A) 'I want to go to rent'; B) 'Queiro ir a rentar'; C) 'key-AIR-o/ear/ah/rain-TAR'

See how easy it is? You use "keys" to avoid conjugations, and use the English sound to produce the Spanish pronounciation.

When the Spanish verb does not resemble the English, you will find that you can often rely upon association. For example: The Spanish verb, 'dormir', means, 'to sleep'. Associate 'dormir' (door-MEAR) with the English word, 'dormitory', which will immediately suggest 'sleep' to you. Now, if you want to say, 'I want to sleep', use "key" #1, 'quiero' (key-AIR-o), with 'dormir' (door-MEAR):

A) 'I want to sleep; B) 'Quiero dormir'; C) 'key-AIR-o/ door-MEAR

Your next "key" is, 'voy a'. It means, 'I go', 'I am going', 'I will go'. It is pronounced in English sound, 'voy/ah'. Thus, 'I am going to sleep' would be, 'voy a dormir' (voy/ah/door-MEAR).

Will Red Tactics Boomerang

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—"In a year or so," said Yang Hsi-kung, "what the Chinese Communists are doing in Africa will boomerang. They underestimate the intelligence of the Africans."

Yang, a handsome graying man, picked up an African wood carving, peered at it then continued: "They believe cynically that the Africans can either be corrupted or intimidated. They do not believe that human beings are capable of grandeur."

Yang, Nationalist China's vice minister of foreign affairs, is Chiang Kai-shek's top expert on Africa. In his own way he is fighting the Chinese Communists there. Though on the surface the two Chinas seem poorly matched, the small Nationalist program has achieved successes.

Communist China has expended enormous effort to make the emerging Africans see things their tough revolutionary way. It pours aid into friendly countries and ships guns and techniques to rebels leading subversion against governments they despise, such as that of the Congo.

Publicly acknowledged Communist aid to a selected list of African countries totals more than $130 million, much of it arranged by Peking's suave traveling salesman, Premier Chou En-lai, in his long African tour a year ago.

The Nationalist Chinese approach to Africa aims at overthrowing none of its governments, Yang says, does not peddle a political philosophy of any kind and instead of aiming for the top reaches down to the grass roots. Its core is technical help to the farmers, fishermen and small industrialists. Its yearly cost: Around $2 million.

The Nationalist entry into Africa in 1960 appeared then to be an exercise in futility. A mission made up of 14 graduates of the higher agricultural college on Formosa went to Liberia to show how to grow paddy rice and, as Yang put it, "to drive home the fact that only through hard work can people in the developing countries get prosperity; there is no shortcut to industrialization."

This example of hard work was given by the 83 Formosan missions and technical teams which followed.

In Liberia, the original Chinese team increased rice production almost 600 per cent an acre.

The Chinese grew jute where it had never been grown before, saving Dahomey half a million dollars a year in imports.

On Formosa, 168 young Africans from 24 countries have attended seminars lasting five to nine months.

"We have offered very little," says Yang. "But we have helped the African to stand on his own feet, to show him that he does not have to live on a dole from anyone. We have given him, in a word, a sense of human dignity, something the Communists have overlooked."

Will Red Tactics Boomerang

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—"In a year or so," said Yang Hsi-kung, "what the Chinese Communists are doing in Africa will boomerang. They underestimate the intelligence of the Africans."

Yang, a handsome graying man, picked up an African wood carving, peered at it then continued: "They believe cynically that the Africans can either be corrupted or intimidated. They do not believe that human beings are capable of grandeur."

Yang, Nationalist China's vice minister of foreign affairs, is Chiang Kai-shek's top expert on Africa. In his own way he is fighting the Chinese Communists there. Though on the surface the two Chinas seem poorly matched, the small Nationalist program has achieved successes.

Communist China has expended enormous effort to make the emerging Africans see things their tough revolutionary way. It pours aid into friendly countries and ships guns and techniques to rebels leading subversion against governments they despise, such as that of the Congo.

Publicly acknowledged Communist aid to a selected list of African countries totals more than $130 million, much of it arranged by Peking's suave traveling salesman, Premier Chou En-lai, in his long African tour a year ago.

The Nationalist Chinese approach to Africa aims at overthrowing none of its governments, Yang says, does not peddle a political philosophy of any kind and instead of aiming for the top reaches down to the grass roots. Its core is technical help to the farmers, fishermen and small industrialists.

Its yearly cost: Around $2 million.

The Nationalist entry into Africa in 1960 appeared then to be an exercise in futility. A mission made up of 14 graduates of the higher agricultural college on Formosa went to Liberia to show how to grow paddy rice and, as Yang put it, "to drive home the fact that only through hard work can people in the developing countries get prosperity; there is no shortcut to industrialization."

This example of hard work was given by the 83 Formosan missions and technical teams which followed.

In Liberia, the original Chinese team increased rice production almost 600 per cent in acre.

The Chinese grew jute where it had never been grown before, saving Dahomey half a millimn dollars a year in imports.

On Formosa, 168 young Africans from 24 countries have attended seminars lasting five to nine months.

"We have offered very little," says Yang. "But we have helped the African to stand on his own feet, to show him that he does not have to live on a dole from anyone. We have given him, in a word, a sense of human dignity, something the Communists have overlooked."

Missouri Wants More Facts From Illinois as To Land Latter Claims

WASHINGTON (AP) — Missouri told the Supreme Court today Illinois should be required to furnish more specic information on its claims to lands along the Mississippi River between Chester, Ill., and Ste. Genevieve, Mo.

Missouri's statement was made in response to a request by Illinois that the Supreme Court grant permission to Illinois to file suit seeking to determine the boundary line between the two states in the area. The Constitution authorizes the Supreme Court to settle disputes between states.

The dispute developed from an 1881 flood when the Mississippi River cut through a neck of land and took a new channel.

Norman H. Anderson, attorney general of Missouri, said it was impossible to determine from the Illinois complaint the location of lands which Illinois claims.

"Nor can it be determined," Anderson's reply said, "whether Illinois claims a proprietary interest in the lands or seeks merely to vindicate chains of Illinois title in private individuals . . . if Illinois desires to claim sovereignty over lands on the opposite bank of the river established by Congress as its boundary it must be deemed to know the location, extent and origin of such lands and should, therefore, be required to state those facts before being permitted to proceed with a suit concerning them."

Anderson also said he had no funds to make more than a preliminary investigation and the Missouri legislature has been asked for an emergency appropriation. He asked that Missouri be "exempted from proceeding further" until the legislature provides funds.

Presidents and Former Presidents Seldom Agree

WASHINGTON (AP) — Presidents and former presidents get along — sometimes. They visit each other — sometimes. But there is no tradition of friendliness between them and sometimes there is little or no friendliness.

When President Johnson Wednesday had former President Dwight D. Eisenhower over to the White House to get his views on Viet Nam, it may have seemed normal because President John F. Kennedy had done the same sort of thing.

But anyone who thinks it's normal has a short memory.

There was a bitter gulf between Presidents Franklin D. Roosevelt and Herbert Hoover. Through the 12 years of Roosevelt's presidency Hoover never visited the White House and was never asked to.

Within a couple of months after succeeding Roosevelt in 1945, President Harry S. Truman asked Hoover to visit him to discuss the world's food problems and the two men became good friends.

But then the gap appeared again when Eisenhower became president, succeeding Truman in 1953. The long coolness between these two men ended only when Eisenhower visited Truman at his library in 1961.

It was the first time either had called on the other since Eisenhower's inauguration eight years before.

The presidential race between Roosevelt and Hoover in 1932, wasn't pleasant and until World War II Hoover had been a constant critic of his successor.

He blamed Roosevelt for lack of cooperation just before Roosevelt took the oath of office in 1933. Hoover had invited Roosevelt to the White House to discuss national and international problems, particularly the depression panic.

After Truman took over and discussed world food needs with Hoover, he sent the former president around the world to make a food survey for him. Then he appointed Hoover to head a commission on government reorganization.

During this time Hoover said some critical things about Truman's foreign policy — for instance, sending troops to Europe — and Truman called him an isolationist. But the two men remained friends.

Then came the 1952 presidential campaign when Truman backed Adlai E. Stevenson against Eisenhower. The latter, even though Truman had shown him great honor, criticized the Truman administration so severely that Truman charged that Eisenhower was waging "one of the lowest gutter campaigns I have ever seen."

Eisenhower, in his book, "Crusade in Europe," recalled that when he met Truman in Europe in 1945 the latter offered to help him get the presidency.

Truman denied this, said he had warned Eisenhower against the job.

Three years ago Eisenhower in a television interview said "I did invite him (Truman) to the White House but he already had some circumstances that prevented his coming."

Eisenhower, made use of Hoover's talents. For instance, in setting up another commission on government reorganization, with Hoover heading it.

Truman had opposed Kennedy's nomination in 1960 and stuck some harpoons in him. But, once Kennedy got it, Truman backed him. The two men remained friends thereafter.

In 1961, when this country ran into disaster with the Bay of Pigs invasion by Cuban exiles, Kennedy visited Hoover in New York to explain it and sent Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson to Missouri to explain it to Truman.

And Kennedy consulted with Eisenhower, Truman and Hoover during the Cuban missile crisis in 1962. Truman, reportedly, was brought into a National Security Council meeting when the Kennedy administration decided to resume nuclear testing in 1961, after the Russians did.

Kennedy consulted with Eisenhower in places as far apart as Gettysburg and California.

For a president to consult with a former president from the opposite political party may be wise and helpful to the country. It also has political value in discouraging, perhaps, some criticism from the opposition.

For Today From The Upper Room

I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly. (John 10:10)

PRAYER: Almighty Father, give us the courage and sincerity to follow with complete devotion the truth as Thou hast revealed it to us. May we be united in our ideals and our actions with Christ, the good Shepherd, who taught us to pray, "Our Father who art in heaven. . . . . Amen."

Pork Tenderloin Yields Tasty Dish For Entertaining

The most tender of all pork cuts, the tenderloin, gives a fitting dish for guests. Cut into patties which are browned, they are served atop a bed of noodles, sauced with a smooth combination of celery soup, cream cheese, olives and seasonings.

If pork tenderloin patties are not available at your retailers, pork cutlets may be substituted says Reba Staggs, widely known expert in meat cookery.

When browning the patties or cutlets as the first step in the recipe, keep the heat low so there's no smoking in the kitchen. This also preserves the tenderness and attractive appearance of this delicate meat cut.

Baking for 45 minutes in a moderate oven will finish the cooking for this casserole called a "bake." This enables the hostess to visit with her guests and bring a hot main dish to the table without fluster.

Company Pork Bake

12 pork tenderloin patties or cutlets (approximately 2 pounds)
2 tablespoons lard or drippings
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
¼ cup milk
1 package (3 ounces) cream cheese
1 can (10½ ounces) condensed cream of celery soup
6 ounces medium noodles, cooked and drained
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon celery seed
¼ cup sliced stuffed olives
2 tablespoons finely chopped onion

Brown pork tenderloin patties in lard or drippings. Pour off drippings. Season with 1 teaspoon salt and pepper. Combine milk and cream cheese. Stir in celery soup. Add noodles and ½ teaspoon salt, celery seed, olives and onion. Spread noodle mixture in a 2-quart baking dish. Top with tenderloin patties. Cover tightly and bake in a moderate oven (350° F.) 45 minutes or until done. 6 to 8 servings.

Polly's Pointers

Wax Seems to Remove Tar

by Polly Cramer, Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Polly

DEAR POLLY—After our street was freshly tarred my wife happened to step into the gummy, black stuff but did not realize it until she saw her black tracks all over the kitchen floor. She rubbed both the tar spots on the floor and on her shoes with paste wax and the sticky streaks disappeared.—RALPH

DEAR POLLY—I think the best way to preserve a car's finish is to apply an even coat of paste wax with plenty of elbow grease thrown in. I do find that time and effort can be saved by placing a little corn starch on the polishing cloth. The car is sleek and glossy in no time.—BOB

GIRLS—I am sure you will all agree these men do come up with some of the most down-to-earth pointers. Keep them coming, boys—we love them.—POLLY

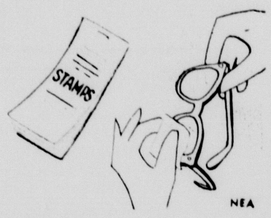
DEAR POLLY—If you have only a small length of thread that is the right color for sewing on a button, use some other thread first to anchor the button firmly and then finish off the top with the matching thread.—FRANCES

DEAR POLLY—Recently I discovered that the tissues separating the pages in a stamp book make an excellent cleaner for eyeglasses. Carry it in your purse and have it easily available.—TED



DEAR POLLY—Many of us have trouble buttoning blouses that open down the back. Try buttoning all the buttons except the top one or two and then slip the blouse over your head before finishing the buttoning.

• Those with stiff arms and hands will find that it is much easier to get a slip on and off if it has a zipper down the front. The extra ease is well worth the trouble of installing zippers in these rather close-fitting garments.—ETHEL

Let Dried Beef Escort Cabbage In Casserole

Pick out a plump green head of cabbage and a couple of jars or packages of dried beef and perhaps, some caraway seed: you'll have the main ingredients for a simple, good tasting casserole.

There are so many times when it's expedient to have a main dish casserole.

Coarsely shredded cabbage is steamed for approximately 5 minutes, while you make the white sauce, says Reba Staggs, noted home economist. Dried beef can be shredded by pulling apart or cutting with kitchen shears, she adds.

Creamed Cabbage and Dried Beef

2 jars (2½ ounces each) or 1 jar (4½ ounces) dried beef, shredded
1¼ pounds or 8 cups coarsely shredded cabbage
¼ cup butter or margarine
¼ cup flour
½ teaspoon caraway seed, if desired
2 cups milk
½ cup coarse bread crumbs

Steam cabbage 5 minutes or until tender. Melt butter or margarine in saucepan. Blend in flour, caraway seed and milk. Cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Add dried beef and cabbage. Pour into a 2-quart casserole. Sprinkle bread crumbs on top. Bake in a moderate oven (350° F.) 30 to 35 minutes. 5 to 6 servings.

Missouri Wants More Facts From Illinois as To Land Latter Claims

WASHINGTON (AP) — Missouri told the Supreme Court today Illinois should be required to furnish more specic information on its claims to lands along the Mississippi River between Chester, Ill., and Ste. Genevieve, Mo.

Missouri's statement was made in response to a request by Illinois that the Supreme Court grant permission to Illinois to file suit seeking to determine the boundary line between the two states in the area. The Constitution authorizes the Supreme Court to settle disputes between states.

The dispute developed from an 1881 flood when the Mississippi River cut through a neck of land and took a new channel.

Norman H. Anderson, attorney general of Missouri, said it was impossible to determine from the Illinois complaint the location of lands which Illinois claims.

"Nor can it be determined," Anderson's reply said, "whether Illinois claims a proprietary interest in the lands or seeks merely to vindicate chains of Illinois title in private individuals . . . if Illinois desires to claim sovereignty over lands on the opposite bank of the river established by Congress as its boundary it must be deemed to know the location, extent and origin of such lands and should, therefore, be required to state those facts before being permitted to proceed with a suit concerning them."

Anderson also said he had no funds to make more than a preliminary investigation and the Missouri legislature has been asked for an emergency appropriation. He asked that Missouri be "exempted from proceeding further" until the legislature provides funds.

Presidents and Former Presidents Seldom Agree

WASHINGTON (AP) — Presidents and former presidents get along — sometimes. They visit each other — sometimes. But there is no tradition of friendliness between them and sometimes there is little or no friendliness.

When President Johnson Wednesday had former President Dwight D. Eisenhower over to the White House to get his views on Viet Nam, it may have seemed normal because President John F. Kennedy had done the same sort of thing.

But anyone who thinks it's normal has a short memory.

There was a bitter gulf between Presidents Franklin D. Roosevelt and Herbert Hoover. Through the 12 years of Roosevelt's presidency Hoover never visited the White House and was never asked to.

Within a couple of months after succeeding Roosevelt in 1945, President Harry S. Truman asked Hoover to visit him to discuss the world's food problems and the two men became good friends.

But then the gap appeared again when Eisenhower became president, succeeding Truman in 1953. The long coolness between these two men ended only when Eisenhower visited Truman at his library in 1961.

It was the first time either had called on the other since Eisenhower's inauguration eight years before.

The presidential race between Roosevelt and Hoover in 1932, wasn't pleasant and until World War II Hoover had been a constant critic of his successor.

He blamed Roosevelt for lack of cooperation just before Roosevelt took the oath of office in 1933. Hoover had invited Roosevelt to the White House to discuss national and international problems, particularly the depression panic.

After Truman took over and discussed world food needs with Hoover, he sent the former president around the world to make a food survey for him. Then he appointed Hoover to head a commission on government reorganization.

During this time Hoover said some critical things about Truman's foreign policy — for instance, sending troops to Europe — and Truman called him an isolationist. But the two men remained friends.

Then came the 1952 presidential campaign when Truman backed Adlai E. Stevenson against Eisenhower. The latter, even though Truman had shown him great honor, criticized the Truman administration so severely that Truman charged that Eisenhower was waging "one of the lowest gutter campaigns I have ever seen."

Eisenhower, in his book, "Crusade in Europe," recalled that when he met Truman in Europe in 1945 the latter offered to help him get the presidency.

Truman denied this, said he had warned Eisenhower against the job.

Three years ago Eisenhower in a television interview said "I did invite him (Truman) to the White House but he already had some circumstances that prevented his coming."

Eisenhower, made use of Hoover's talents. For instance, in setting up another commission on government reorganization, with Hoover heading it.

Truman had opposed Kennedy's nomination in 1960 and stuck some harpoons in him. But, once Kennedy got it, Truman backed him. The two men remained friends thereafter.

In 1961, when this country ran into disaster with the Bay of Pigs invasion by Cuban exiles, Kennedy visited Hoover in New York to explain it and sent Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson to Missouri to explain it to Truman.

And Kennedy consulted with Eisenhower, Truman and Hoover during the Cuban missile crisis in 1962. Truman, reportedly, was brought into a National Security Council meeting when the Kennedy administration decided to resume nuclear testing in 1961, after the Russians did.

Kennedy consulted with Eisenhower in places as far apart as Gettysburg and California.

For a president to consult with a former president from the opposite political party may be wise and helpful to the country. It also has political value in discouraging, perhaps, some criticism from the opposition.

PRAYER

For Today From The Upper Room

I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly. (John 10:10)

PRAYER: Almighty Father, give us the courage and sincerity to follow with complete devotion the truth as Thou hast revealed it to us. May we be united in our ideals and our actions with Christ, the good Shepherd, who taught us to pray, "Our Father who art in heaven. . . . . Amen."

Pork Tenderloin Yields Tasty Dish For Entertaining

The most tender of all pork cuts, the tenderloin, gives a fitting dish for guests. Cut into patties which are browned, they are served atop a bed of noodles, sauced with a smooth combination of celery soup, cream cheese, olives and seasonings.

If pork tenderloin patties are not available at your retailers, pork cutlets may be substituted says Reba Staggs, widely known expert in meat cookery.

When browning the patties or cutlets as the first step in the recipe, keep the heat low so there's no smoking in the kitchen. This also preserves the tenderness and attractive appearance of this delicate meat cut.

Baking for 45 minutes in a moderate oven will finish the cooking for this casserole called a "bake." This enables the hostess to visit with her guests and bring a hot main dish to the table without fluster.

Company Pork Bake

12 pork tenderloin patties or cutlets (approximately 2 pounds)
2 tablespoons lard or drippings
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
¼ cup milk
1 package (3 ounces) cream cheese
1 can (10½ ounces) condensed cream of celery soup
6 ounces medium noodles, cooked and drained
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon celery seed
¼ cup sliced stuffed olives
2 tablespoons finely chopped onion

Brown pork tenderloin patties in lard or drippings. Pour off drippings. Season with 1 teaspoon salt and pepper. Combine milk and cream cheese. Stir in celery soup. Add noodles and ½ teaspoon salt, celery seed, olives and onion. Spread noodle mixture in a 2-quart baking dish. Top with tenderloin patties. Cover tightly and bake in a moderate oven (350° F.) 45 minutes or until done. 6 to 8 servings.

Polly's Pointers

Polly

DEAR POLLY—After our street was freshly tarred my wife happened to step into the gummy, black stuff but did not realize it until she saw her black tracks all over the kitchen floor. She rubbed both the tar spots on the floor and on her shoes with paste wax and the sticky streaks disappeared.—RALPH

DEAR POLLY—I think the best way to preserve a car's finish is to apply an even coat of paste wax with plenty of elbow grease thrown in. I do find that time and effort can be saved by placing a little corn starch on the polishing cloth. The car is sleek and glossy in no time.—BOB

GIRLS—I am sure you will all agree these men do come up with some of the most down-to-earth pointers. Keep them coming, boys—we love them.—POLLY

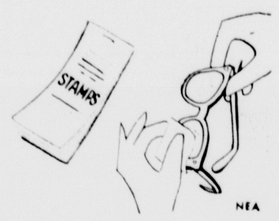
DEAR POLLY—If you have only a small length of thread that is the right color for sewing on a button, use some other thread first to anchor the button firmly and then finish off the top with the matching thread.—FRANCES

DEAR POLLY—Recently I discovered that the tissues separating the pages in a stamp book make an excellent cleaner for eyeglasses. Carry it in your purse and have it easily available.—TED



NEA

DEAR POLLY—Many of us have trouble buttoning blouses that open down the back. Try buttoning all the buttons except the top one or two and then slip the blouse over your head before finishing the buttoning.

• Those with stiff arms and hands will find that it is much easier to get a slip on and off if it has a zipper down the front. The extra ease is well worth the trouble of installing zippers in these rather close-fitting garments.—ETHEL

Let Dried Beef Escort Cabbage In Casserole

Pick out a plump green head of cabbage and a couple of jars or packages of dried beef and perhaps, some caraway seed: you'll have the main ingredients for a simple, good tasting casserole.

There are so many times when it's expedient to have a main dish casserole.

Coarsely shredded cabbage is steamed for approximately 5 minutes, while you make the white sauce, says Reba Staggs, noted home economist. Dried beef can be shredded by pulling apart or cutting with kitchen shears, she adds.

Creamed Cabbage and Dried Beef

2 jars (2½ ounces each) or 1 jar (4½ ounces) dried beef, shredded
1¼ pounds or 8 cups coarsely shredded cabbage
¼ cup butter or margarine
¼ cup flour
½ teaspoon caraway seed, if desired
2 cups milk
½ cup coarse bread crumbs

Steam cabbage 5 minutes or until tender. Melt butter or margarine in saucepan. Blend in flour, caraway seed and milk. Cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Add dried beef and cabbage. Pour into a 2-quart casserole. Sprinkle bread crumbs on top. Bake in a moderate oven (350° F.) 30 to 35 minutes. 5 to 6 servings.

Today In U.S. History

Today is Friday, Feb. 19, the 50th day of 1965. There are 315 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1945, the first Marines landed on Iwo Jima. It was almost a month before the island was wholly in U.S. hands.

On this date

In 1717, English actor David Garrick was born.

In 1803, Ohio was admitted to the Union.

In 1915, the British and French bombarded the Dardanelles in World War I.

In 1943, President Franklin D. Roosevelt and Madame Chiang Kai-shek held a joint news conference in the White House.

In 1945, a midnight curfew was ordered for all places of entertainment.

Ten years ago — The Southeast Asia Defense Treaty, signed in Manila, went into effect.

Five years ago — Queen Elizabeth gave birth to a son, the first child born to a reigning British sovereign since 1857.

One year ago — Zanzibar expelled U.S. and British diplomats for failure to recognize its revolutionary government.

Young Charleston Lady Seriously Ill

CHARLESTON -- Mrs. Van Coots, 16, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Galemore, Jr., was taken ill suddenly Tuesday night, and rushed next morning to the Baptist Hospital in Memphis, Tenn. It was at first believed she was suffering from spinal meningitis or lock jaw, but since she has regained consciousness several times yesterday it has now been ruled out.

She is believed to have a bursted blood vessel in her brain, and it is believed surgery may be necessary, according to her attending physicians. Her condition today is reported somewhat improved. Mrs. Coots is a sister-in-law of Mrs. Jerry Galemore, the Standard correspondent.

Rev. Billy L. Odom Dies Wednesday

PORTAGEVILLE--Rev. Billy L. Odom, 38, pastor of the Methodist Church here, died Wednesday in the Pemiscot County Memorial Hospital, Hayti, from a cerebral hemorrhage suffered the evening before. He was born June 25, 1926 at Success, Ark., son of D. M. and Nancy Odom.

He began his ministry in northern Arkansas conference in 1952 with his first charge being Campbell-Holcomb church for six years, and Senath for four years, followed by the Portageville church since 1962. In 1964 the Hayward Church was added to his charge.

He was married to Miss Virginia James in 1952, who survives. Other survivors are, one daughter, Mary Elizabeth, and two sons, Billy Jr., and James David, all at home; his father, D. M. Odom, Warm Springs, Ark.; three sisters, Mrs. Vernon Hudson, Naylor; Mrs. Edna Cathcart, Reno, Ark., and Mrs. Beulah Blade, Alexander, Minn. He was a member of the Masonic Lodge and a 32nd degree mason.

Masonic rites will be held in the DeLisle Funeral Home Saturday night, with services to be held Sunday at 3 p.m. in the Methodist Church, with the Rev. Floyd V. Bower and the Rev. Eugene H. Hall officiating. Burial will be in Memorial Gardens in Kennett.

EDUCATOR

trade occupations.

"The capabilities of the teachers have risen sharply in the past few years, and yet 10 per cent of them have left the profession for higher salaries. As a result you can never pay a teacher what he or she is worth. H. G. Wells stated as many as three decades ago that education is in a constant race with civilization.

"It is my contention that there is no better type building construction in the nation than elementary and secondary schools. We today have a mobile population, and cities and towns are growing rapidly.

"Your price education is well repaid when you consider the wages earned by an eighth grade graduate, a high school graduate, compared to a college graduate. We use six per cent of our national gross income for education, yet this year our income increased seven per cent. Compare this with Russia's 11 per cent of their gross income for education today, and Nigeria is spending 45 per cent.

"The cost of education is not measured in earning power alone, but it also adds value to a community, especially when many of the people will return to their community. The $5 billion that Congress is about to pass for education in four programs, such as loans for students in the national defense act, vocational education, the training of more doctors; the anti-poverty education, will add to greater stability. Added to this will be loans to those with low income, special centers for vocational educational schools, for experimental purposes, for scholarship programs, and for some parochial schools who have built their own schools.

"Today each American has equivalent of 400 persons at his elbows in the educational program, and is today a greater part of our life. We certainly have changed in the education of our children, and today the two most important people to them are a member of their family and the teacher. Sometime we find that both the average student and the creative child is discriminated against by a teacher, but I still have abounding faith in the young students. They are willing to enlist themselves in many causes.

"The nation who has an excellent educational program, whatever it may be, will come out alright."

SITUATION

tion, Thao said, "We want to get rid of Khanh and restore order. We will see later if any of the present government will stay."

A new government named by Khanh had been installed in office on Tuesday. Dr. Phan Huy Quat is premier and Phan Khac Suu was retained as figurehead chief of state.

The coup took the U.S. Embassy by surprise. U.S. Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor said his first hint of the coup was the activity on the waterfront, which he noticed as he was on his way back to his office from lunch. He would not comment on the latest development in the cycle of perennial political upheaval.

Taylor, Deputy Ambassador U. Alexis Johnson; Gen. William C. Westmoreland, the U.S. military commander in Viet Nam; and other top U.S. officials met at the Vietnamese military headquarters with representatives of the coup leaders.

The Americans were reported trying to prevent bloodshed and to straighten out the situation.

The State Department in Washington declined comment for the time being.

One of the first indications to the outside world was a report from a Pan American World Airways flight controller at Saigon Airport. He notified Pan Am in Tokyo that the field had been closed to commercial traffic and a short time later said tanks were on the landing strips.

U.S. Air Force personnel at the airport at first thought a Communist attack was impending as they saw the circling military planes.

All Americans at the field were alerted.

"So what else is new?" said one U.S. soldier when told a coup was under way.

Chicago Offers Birth Program

CHICAGO (AP) — A program to provide free birth control devices and information to any person in Chicago has been approved by the City Board of Health.

The board rejected the term "birth control," saying it has a negative connotation, and referred to the program as "family planning" in voting approval Wednesday. The vote was 7-0 with one abstention.

"This program will have certain guarantees that the promiscuous, or immature who wish to be promiscuous, will not be helped by the Board of Health," said Dr. Erick Oldberg, president of the board.

The board said it will concern itself solely with the matter from the medical and health standpoint.

Dr. Oldberg said patients would be limited to women who had both medical and family screening, but added that information and devices would be free to any Chicago resident who asked for them, regardless of martial status, age or financial status.

Young Charleston Lady Seriously Ill

CHARLESTON -- Mrs. Van Coots, 16, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Galemore, Jr., was taken ill suddenly Tuesday night, and rushed next morning to the Baptist Hospital in Memphis, Tenn. It was at first believed she was suffering from spinal meningitis or lock jaw, but since she has regained consciousness several times yesterday it has now been ruled out.

She is believed to have a bursted blood vessel in her brain, and it is believed surgery may be necessary, according to her attending physicians. Her condition today is reported somewhat improved. Mrs. Coots is a sister-in-law of Mrs. Jerry Galemore, the Standard correspondent.

trade occupations.

"The capabilities of the teachers have risen sharply in the past few years, and yet 10 per cent of them have left the profession for higher salaries. As a result you can never pay a teacher what he or she is worth. H. G. Wells stated as many as three decades ago that education is in a constant race with civilization.

"It is my contention that there is no better type building construction in the nation than elementary and secondary schools. We today have a mobile population, and cities and towns are growing rapidly.

"Your price education is well repaid when you consider the wages earned by an eighth grade graduate, a high school graduate, compared to a college graduate. We use six per cent of our national gross income for education, yet this year our income increased seven per cent. Compare this with Russia's 11 per cent of their gross income for education today, and Nigeria is spending 45 per cent.

"The cost of education is not measured in earning power alone, but it also adds value to a community, especially when many of the people will return to their community. The $5 billion that Congress is about to pass for education in four programs, such as loans for students in the national defense act, vocational education, the training of more doctors; the anti-poverty education, will add to greater stability. Added to this will be loans to those with low income, special centers for vocational educational schools, for experimental purposes, for scholarship programs, and for some parochial schools who have built their own schools.

"Today each American has equivalent of 400 persons at his elbows in the educational program, and is today a greater part of our life. We certainly have changed in the education of our children, and today the two most important people to them are a member of their family and the teacher. Sometime we find that both the average student and the creative child is discriminated against by a teacher, but I still have abounding faith in the young students. They are willing to enlist themselves in many causes.

"The nation who has an excellent educational program, whatever it may be, will come out alright."

tion, Thao said, "We want to get rid of Khanh and restore order. We will see later if any of the present government will stay."

A new government named by Khanh had been installed in office on Tuesday. Dr. Phan Huy Quat is premier and Phan Khac Suu was retained as figurehead chief of state.

The coup took the U.S. Embassy by surprise. U.S. Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor said his first hint of the coup was the activity on the waterfront, which he noticed as he was on his way back to his office from lunch. He would not comment on the latest development in the cycle of perennial political upheaval.

Taylor, Deputy Ambassador U. Alexis Johnson; Gen. William C. Westmoreland, the U.S. military commander in Viet Nam; and other top U.S. officials met at the Vietnamese military headquarters with representatives of the coup leaders.

The Americans were reported trying to prevent bloodshed and to straighten out the situation.

The State Department in Washington declined comment for the time being.

One of the first indications to the outside world was a report from a Pan American World Airways flight controller at Saigon Airport. He notified Pan Am in Tokyo that the field had been closed to commercial traffic and a short time later said tanks were on the landing strips.

U.S. Air Force personnel at the airport at first thought a Communist attack was impending as they saw the circling military planes.

All Americans at the field were alerted.

"So what else is new?" said one U.S. soldier when told a coup was under way.

Chicago Offers Birth Program

CHICAGO (AP) — A program to provide free birth control devices and information to any person in Chicago has been approved by the City Board of Health.

The board rejected the term "birth control," saying it has a negative connotation, and referred to the program as "family planning" in voting approval Wednesday. The vote was 7-0 with one abstention.

"This program will have certain guarantees that the promiscuous, or immature who wish to be promiscuous, will not be helped by the Board of Health," said Dr. Erick Oldberg, president of the board.

The board said it will concern itself solely with the matter from the medical and health standpoint.

Dr. Oldberg said patients would be limited to women who had both medical and family screening, but added that information and devices would be free to any Chicago resident who asked for them, regardless of martial status, age or financial status.

United Nations Ends Stormy Session

Situation Reported As Tense

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Another coup hit Saigon today, but late this afternoon an attempt to nullify it appeared to be in the making.

Warplanes were circling the rebel-held Saigon radio station, and tanks were drawn up outside the station. Loudspeakers repeatedly warned the civilians to clear the area.

There was no shooting as yet, but the situation was extremely tense.

Col. Pham Ngoc Thao, leader of the rebels, said the coup's purpose was to end the dictatorship of Lt. Gen. Nguyen Khanh, the strongman commander of the Vietnamese armed forces.

Thao claimed that Khanh was under house arrest and that Brig. Gen. Nguyen Cao Ky, commander of the Air Force, was also under arrest.

Other conflicting reports said Khanh was at Nha Trang, 200 miles northeast of Saigon, directing a military operation, or that he was at Bang Tau.

Ky was reported safe at the Binh Hoa Air Base near Saigon and still in control of many of his fighter planes. It was thought he might attempt a counterattack.

Thao in a broadcast accused Khanh of swindling the military and the people. He said his action was directed against one man — Khanh — and no one else.

It was the eighth government upheaval in South Viet Nam since President Ngo Dinh Diem was overthrown and slain Nov. 1, 1963. Khanh, commander of the armed forces, has been the country's strongman since Jan. 30, 1964.

There was great possibility of an attack by military units loyal to Khanh.

Khanh had been expecting trouble. Nearly the entire armed forces strategic reserve, normally held in Saigon to reinforce any field units in trouble, had been deployed to the provinces where forces loyal to Khanh presumably were still in charge.

These include two battalions of Marines in central Bin Dinh Province and the large force Khanh led to Nha Trang for an attack on a suspected Viet Cong supply port.

Thao claimed he had the support of the 25th, 9th, 7th and 5th Army Divisions, which are stationed in areas adjoining Saigon, plus part of the marine corps and part of the air force.

The first signs of the coup came at the waterfront near Khanh's armed forces headquarters. Several M24 tanks smashed through the barbed-wire barricades outside the navy headquarters and Khanh's house, which are on the same street.

Riding in one of the tanks was Col. Thao.

This happened about 1 p.m. Saigon time (midnight Thursday Eastern Standard Time).

At the same time, tanks smashed their way into the Saigon Airport, blocking Vietnamese air force planes whose pilots were not on the side of the rebels. About 10 Skyraider fighter-bombers, whose pilots apparently had been won over, took off and circled Saigon for the remainder of the afternoon. Within 30 minutes all key military installations in Saigon had been taken by the rebels.

It was believed that troops from the 5th Division, based 15 miles north of Saigon, had occupied the installations with assistance of at least two marine battalions.

At 2 p.m., when Thao had received confirmation by radio that all objectives had been taken, a convoy of tanks and military trucks drove hurriedly through the streets to Saigon radio station.

There, Thao said in a broadcast, "This is not a coup d'etat but it is a military operation.

"All the units of the army, navy and air force and marines are contributing.

"General Khanh is a dictator. All units throughout the country must maintain order and security.

"This is the voice of the military-civilian force."

Plan to Negotiate Opposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Republican congressional leaders have stepped up their opposition to a negotiated settlement of the war with Viet Nam.

GOP Senate Leader Everett M. Dirksen charged in a floor speech Thursday that advocates of a settlement propose to "run up the white flag before the world and start running away from communism."

Earlier in the day, House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford declared in a statement some Democrats want the United States to pull out of Viet Nam and "retreat to Pearl Harbor."

With Democrats divided on the issue, debate over Southeast Asian policy forced the Senate into another late session.

Mansfield said of Dirksen: It is "a profound reassurance to know that the great senator from Illinois can be counted on to put the best interests of the nation first in any critical situation."

But, Mansfield told the Senate, it was "entirely proper" for Sens. Frank Church, D—Idaho, and George S. McGovern, D—S.D., to suggest consideration of negotiation "which might lead to a prompt end to the bloodshed."

Close associates said Mansfield was concerned that speeches by Dirksen and other critics of Church and McGovern might be designed to foreclose any thought of negotiations, at least in the foreseeable future.

Dirksen, in a reply to the Senate speeches Church and McGovern made Wednesday, said: "If we don't man the ramparts of freedom on our outer defense line from Korea to South Viet Nam, we'll inevitably be facing the enemy on the inner line from Alaska to Hawaii."

"To negotiate in South Viet Nam while Communist aggression is spreading throughout the entire Southeast Asia peninsula," Dirksen declared, "is like a man trying to paint his front porch while his house is on fire."

Republicans Talk Plans to Reorganize

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — Republicans from every section of Missouri, nearly 1,000 strong, gathered today to discuss plans for the reorganization of their party.

Divergent political philosophies mingled as registration began this morning at the Lincoln Day headquarters in the Kentwood Arms Hotel. Throughout the weekend, efforts will be made to iron out differences of party members in preparation for the 1966 election.

The first event of the annual meeting will be a workshop by the Federation of Republican Women's Clubs this afternoon.

U. S. Rep. John M. Asbrook, R-Ohio, will address the Republican Editorial Association dinner tonight followed by a dance sponsored by the Missouri Federation of Young Republicans. Another GOP congressman, Robert P. Griffin of Mich., will speak at the Missouri Association of Republicans banquet Saturday night.

The GOP state committee will breakfast together Saturday and then convene again that afternoon.

One subject to be discussed at the state committee meeting will be what many consider the party's biggest problem — that of financing a system of more centralized control of party funds and expenditures. The 1965 budget also will be adopted.

Raymond V. Humphreys, political education and training director for the Republican National Committee, also will outline his plans for a statewide precinct reorganization. It is called "Operation Sadie."

A late addition to the committee agenda was a plan to eliminate straight ticket voting in Missouri. It was included after interest in the proposal began to grow.

Supporters, including State Rep. William C. Phelps, R-Kansas City, believe the plan necessary to provide a two-party system in Missouri.

Two-year old Boy Victim of Area Traffic

A two - year old boy was critically injured in the only traffic accident reported for Thursday in its territory by Troop E, State Highway Patrol. There were no fatalities.

At 4:30 p.m. Thursday, the Patrol reports, two miles south of Holland on Business Route 61, Gary Lynn Harper, 2, of Route 1, Steele, Mo., ran across the road and was hit by a car driven by William Doyle Sims, 57, of Pascola, Mo. The child was taken to a Blytheville hospital and then transferred to Baptist Hospital, Memphis. Sims reported he had been watching children on one side of the road and the boy ran across from the opposite side and into the side of his car.

To Meet Again on Sept. 1st

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The General Assembly ended one of the stormiest sessions in U.N. history Thursday night and recessed until Sept. 1 after the United States checkmated an Albanian move to force an East-West showdown.

Applause rang out as Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson announced that the United States would agree to a procedural ballot demanded by Albania and would not challenge the Soviet Union's right to vote.

Red China's U.N. spokesman, Halim Budo of Albania, boasted that he had strong support. But a 97-2 vote swamped his demand that the assembly organize for normal business. There were 13 abstentions, of which France was the only major power. Mauritania voted with Albania.

The assembly approved by acclamation an interim budget and the appointment of a multination committee to study the problem of U.N. peacekeeping.

The assembly adjourned at 7:51 p.m. following a sharp exchange in the closing moments between Stevenson and Soviet Delegate Nikolai T. Fedorenko.

Criticizing Stevenson for announcing that he was withholding the U.S. challenge on voting rights, Fedorenko declared, "The United States cannot set itself up as an arbiter on whether this forum can vote or not."

Stevenson retorted that he had thought the Soviet Union wanted to avoid a showdown at this stage and demanded to know why Fedorenko did not voice his objections before the ballot.

Since Dec. 1 the assembly had been restricted to general policy debate by the refusal of the Soviet Union, France and other nations to pay peacekeeping assessments and the determination of the United States to demand that their votes in the assembly be taken away under Article 19 of the U.N. Charter.

Article 19 specifies that any nation two years in arrears on its payments loses its vote. The Soviet Union, which contends peacekeeping assessments are illegal, threatened to walk out if the article was invoked.

A showdown was averted by agreement to take up only matters that could be approved unanimously, without a roll call vote. But with all such business exhausted, most delegates agreed to a long recess while further peacekeeping negotiations were held.

But on Tuesday, Budo threw the assembly into turmoil with his demand that the assembly organize.

The Albanian move, which few doubted had Red China behind it, would have necessitated an assembly vote and forced the U.S.-Soviet showdown.

Difficult Decision Faces Scientists on Ranger 8

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Scientists guiding the Ranger 8 spacecraft to the moon face a critical decision — whether a final maneuver will be necessary to insure good pictures in the final plunge to the lunar surface Saturday morning.

Radio contact with the 800-pound spacecraft has been far from perfect since its launching from Cape Kennedy Wednesday. There was a time early Thursday when they did not know whether it had obeyed commands pointing it at the moon's Sea of Tranquillity prior to the firing of a steering rocket.

Apparently it did obey properly. After long hours of tracking, scientists determined Thursday afternoon that Ranger 8 probably would impact within 18 miles of its target.

But there was a chance its six television cameras might not be pointed at the best angle to take some 4,000 pictures as it crashes into the lunar surface at 5,800 miles an hour.

Ranger 8 still has enough fuel to twist itself around in space if necessary so this is the dilemma faced by scientists today:

1. They first must determine whether the cameras are pointed at the best angle.

2. If not, they must decide whether to risk — in view of earlier communications difficulties — commanding the spacecraft to twist around to a different position.

On the basis of what they knew at the time, however, scientists at Jet Propulsion Laboratory said Thursday that Ranger 8 should land at 4:57 a.m. Eastern Standard Time Saturday and take better pictures than Ranger 7 last July 31.

A decision on whether to attempt the critical but possibly hazardous maneuver just before impact was expected to be made sometime this afternoon.

Educator Tells Dinner Club About Cost of Education

In an address last night before the Bootheel Dinner Club at the Holiday Inn, Dr. William J. McKeefery, dean of academic affairs, Southern Illinois University, Carbondale, Ill., told his audience the rise in cost of education is due to America's progress in the world.

His subject was, "Is Education's Price Tag Too High?"

In opening his address he reminded his listeners that this week was one of turmoil, the attacks in Viet Nam, the explosion at the Vatican, an attempt to destroy the Statue of Liberty, Washington Monument and the Liberty Bell.

"Let me remind you of your own city of Sikeston, when checking the records I find you have invested more in education than the national average, in spite of the fact Missouri is below the national average. When I must ask myself that it costs $35 billion a year for education, it cannot be told in a short space of time allotted to me tonight. When the costs are compared to foreign countries, then it is not a fair comparison. By comparison England invests but 10 per cent in education.

"It must be remembered that by the year 1999 we are likely to have all our children go to college, or some higher school of learning than high school. Of this $35 billion, 25 of it is for public education, and 10 for private education, but it must be remembered that 70 million Americans are involved in these costs. In the very near future the picture will change $35 billion invested in elementary education and $5 billion in colleges, and $30 billion in other forms of education. The present costs now are $35 billion for elementary and $5 for colleges.

"The cost for the elementary student annually is $350 and for secondary education $250. A few years ago 60 per cent finished the sixth grade, 14 per cent high school and six per cent college, one per cent with a master's degree. Today the percentage is much greater, and 50 per cent now go to college. Drive along any highway and you will see many new schools. The reason for it is that 12 per cent of the elementary children come from families under $2000 income, and these are the people who need help.

"Remember also that 90 per cent of the money comes from local and state funds, and now an additional $1 1/2 billion federal funds have been added. Before the end of this year another billion dollars will be added to help the other forms of

Receive Grant For St. Louis Youth Corps

WASHINGTON AP -- A neighborhood Youth Corps project in St. Louis, designed to provide work-training experience for economically deprived boys and girls, was given the go-ahead Thursday by a grant of $411,280 from the Labor Department.

Missouri members of Congress were told that acceptance of the grant to the St. Louis Human Development Corp., is subject to approval of Missouri's governor.

About 1,300 boys and girls, 16 through 21, who live in poverty conditions, are expected to enroll. School districts participating include Kinloch, Valley Park, Wellston, Hancock, Eureka, R-6, Berkeley and Maplewood-Richmond.

The objective is to increase employment ability of youths, enable them to resume and maintain school attendance, and provide them with work experience and financial aid.

To Recommend Some Changes in The Draft Laws

WASHINGTON AP — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara strongly hints he will recommend a change in draft policies when he reports to President Johnson on the problem in April.

McNamara, in a report to the House Armed Service Committee on the nation's military strength, indicated that some modification will be necessary in the Selective Service System because of a growing surplus in draft-age men.

And that, he observed, compounds the difficulty of deciding fairly which young men will be called up and when.

Seventeen Injured By Slide

STEWART, B.C. (AP) — Seventeen injured men, some hurt seriously, lay on the floor of an office building in a remote mining camp today, waiting for rescue.

Huddled with them in the structure, the only one left when a massive avalanche struck early Thursday, were 103 others, hoping the weather would clear soon so helicopter crews could carry them all to safety.

Still unaccounted for since the mass of mud, snow and ice struck the Granduc Mining Co. copper camp, perched on a slope at the edge of a glacier, were 20 men.

More avalanches, loosened by a recent spell of comparatively warm weather, were feared.

The injured were among 40 men trapped several hours in a tunnel being dug toward copper reserves under Le Duc Glacier. They were rescued late Thursday by fellow workmen using shovels because their power tools were buried.

"We have found no bodies and can confirm no dead," said S. Sgt. Jack Duggan of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police at Prince Rupert a number of hours after the slide.

"But there were more than 140 men at the camp. The death toll could be anywhere between zero and 20."

The mine is 30 miles north of Stewart and a few miles east of the border of southeast Alaska.

Innis Kelly, the radioman who sent out the first alarm after the slide, radioed late Thursday night, "The rain is very troubling. The men are afraid it will cause more slides."

The avalanche took out the powerhouse, so Kelly got no more in his first message than a distress signal, sent from a radio shack at an air strip near the camp. But he moved shop to the main office building, the only one in the cluster left standing, and used batteries plundered from bulldozers for power to get messages out late in the day.

He summed up the situation this way: "You can say goodby to the camp and the powerhouse. They are gone with the slide."

He told of the survivors being able to see bulldozers from other camps on the surrounding glaciers, but said the men were unable to move the equipment closer because their jarring weight might trigger more slides.

Kelly described a giant bonfire the men kept going, and he praised the doctor and his helpers.

The radioman asked for food and medical supplies.

In response, the U.S. Coast Guard sent a patrol boat from Ketchikan up an arm of the sea called Behm Canal to the mouth of the Chicamin River. Aboard were a doctor and the supplies Kelly asked for.

Two doctor brothers, James and A. N. Wilson of Ketchikan, were flown near the scene by helicopter. Pilot Kenny Eichner of Ketchikan managed to get Dr. James Wilson to within a mile of the camp before he was forced by heavy snowfall to land. Dr. A.N. Wilson spent the night in a cabin at the mouth of the river. They hoped to reach the camp early in the day if the weather cleared.

An Alaska ferry, the Taku, was on the way from Ketchikan to Prince Rupert to pick up medical supplies and rescue personnel. Then it was to backtrack north to the Chicamin River to serve as a hospital ship.

TERRIBLE TWO

Iwo Jima is an eight square mile volcanic mass that once was called Sulphur Island. Certainly it became a living hell for the U. S. Marines who invaded the Japanese World War II stronghold on the morning of Feb. 19, 1945 -- just 20 years ago.

Three days of heavy warship and plane bombardment had preceded the landing by the 4th and 5th Marine divisions. But Japanese resistance was fierce. The island is only 750 miles south of Tokyo, and the defenders knew its capture would greatly increase U. S. bomber capabilities against the Japanese homeland.

After the initial penetration gains were measured in feet, especially as units pushed their way up the slopes of Mt. Suribachi, a 546-foot high extinct volcano. Troops finally succeeded in storming Mt. Suribachi on Feb. 23 and planted the flag on the crater's rim. An Associated Press photographer captured the scene in a memorable photo which was to form the basis for the Iwo Jima memorial in Arlington National Cemetery.

Not until March 16 was the last Japanese resistance ended. About 22,000 of the defenders had been either killed or captured. A total of 111,308 Americans had participated in the action, of which 75,144 were assault troops. U. S. forces suffered 21,000 casualties, including 4,-500 killed. The costly invasion of Okinawa was still to come, but the ring around Japan was beginning to close and the sacrifice of American lives on terrible Iwo Jima had not been in vain.

FREEDOM FROM POLITICS

There was a time not long ago when the alleged meddling of American corporations into private opinions and conduct of their employes was the subject of view-with-alarm books, magazine articles and movies.

Whatever may have been, or still are, the abuses of some firms, the conduct of the majority seems to be above criticism today -- at least as far as politics are concerned.

In a study of the personnel practices of more than 2,000 companies -- "from the production line to the laboratory and from the front office to the recreation room" -- the National Industrial Conference Board has determined that eight out of ten of the companies do not let their employes know management's position on political issues.

About the same proportion of companies neither encourage nor discourage employes running for public office. About a quarter of them grant leaves of absence to employes elected to full-time office.

TAIWAN: MODEL FOR ASIA

The revolution of Taiwan (Formosa) has been recorded but not widely reported, the Catholic Digest states. Too many still think the island is sinking under the weight of Nationalist troops and American aid. But since the seat of Chiang Kai-shek's government was moved there in 1949, its statistics have been the most spectacular in Asia.

Taiwan land reform -- the model for all Asia -- has enabled 86% of the farmers to own land. Wheat and rice production have doubled since 1949. The rate of increase of the annual fish catch has been the highest in the world in recent years.

In industry, fertilizer output is six times and cotton texiles 36 times the peak under the Japanese. Power capacity is double the Japanese peak, and consumption is more than five times that of a decade ago. Electricity rates are the third cheapest in the world.

Taiwan has 20,000 factories. During one decade, farmer's production rose by 75% and industrial production by 246%. In spite of the fact that population grows 3.6% a year, average yearly economic growth has been 7%.

Physically, Taiwan is a puny chip off the block that is in the China mainland. Its population, which includes 3.5 million Chinese refugees, is less than 2% of its massive Red counterpart. But psychologically, Taiwan is a sharp thorn in Peking's flesh. It offers an alternative to the millions of Chinese overseas who must identify themselves with a government. It shows that overpopulated, economically backward China CAN feed the peasants well. It CAN industrialize with rational reforms based on the incentive system, without breaking hearts and necks.

Added to the psychological threat is a more solid one. The youthful, well-disciplined, American-equipped army is bigger than the armed forces of Britain or the two Germanies combined. It is the second biggest non-communist striking force in the Far East, with the finest air force.

Above all, Taiwan is a pilot plant for the ultimate solution of China's problems, and for other Asian nations sitting silently on the fence but taking in every detail of the performance by the two Chinas.

GREEN BAY'S ICY MOUNTAINS

When the Appalachia program first was proposed, those wise in the ways of Washington asked: "Will they be able to keep Appalachia east of the Mississippi?" It was hard to envision a Congress made up of representatives from everywhere pouring their constituent's money into a single area of the country.

Today the question is more pressing than ever. Michiganders, through the agency of Sen. Hart, are applying for permission to get into the Appalachia program, and there's talk of including other northern areas of the far from mountainous Middle West. The list of honorary Appalachians is likely to grow as time for action on the proposal nears.

If the program is to win support, the geography of the U.S. is likely to be strangely distorted, and mountains will sprout all over the plains and tidelands, coast to coast and border to border.

This seems pretty silly, and it is. The Appalachia program originally was tailored to suit the real or fancied ailments of this attractive, but relatively poor, area of the country. Roads were to be engineered through the difficult mountains as a major part of the program. Middle-aged coal miners, permanently out of mining because of demand changes and technological changes, were to be retained for other occupations, and so forth.

Such a program has little application to the other parts of the country now claiming their rights as would-be hillbillies. This probably will be taken care of by altering the program, should they succeed.

And then we will have two largely identical poverty programs for the whole country, with twice the bureaucracy and half the results. These, of course, will be duplicating work already being done by the Bureau of Public Roads, the Health, Education and Welfare Department, the Small Business Administration, the Area Redevelopment Administration and probably not more than ten or a dozen other agencies.

If you find this confusing or disturbing, do what the Government people seem to do. Don't think about it.

NO MERE FORMALITY

Nationalist China celebrated its tenth annual Armed Forces Day at the City Hall in Taipei, Taiwan on September third.

Among the ranking Americans who paid tribute to Chiang Kai-shek's fighters were Vice Admiral William Gentner, commander of the US Taiwan Defense Command, and Major General Kenneth Sanborn, chief of the US Military Assistance Advisory Group.

These men, said the Admiral, "can and should be proud of their record . . . Their combat-readiness and individual moral strength post uncompromising notice to the Communists that China and its people are more determined than ever to remain free." And he added, "You command our respect, deserve our admiration, and have our continuing pledge of joining you in defending against aggression."

General Sanborn commended the "dedicated spirit . . .pride in achievements and progress . . professional skill and accomplishments" of the men and women of Free China's armed services.

But we hope our military leaders listened, too, especially when Speaker Huang Kuo-shu of the Legislative Yuan (Parliament), who presided over the City Hall gathering declared that the armed forces of the Republic of China hold the key to peace in Southeast Asia. We hope his words reminded them of Chiang's readiness to help our forces and the South Vietnamese in the apparently stalemated struggle against the Viet Cong. And we hope, finally, that Huang's summation - that only a counter-attack by the armed forces of the Republic of China can solve the problem of Communism in Asia once and for all - will get back to Washington.

The indications are that in Asia, at least, we should listen to the advice of our Asian allies.

One of the things that passed with the 88th Congress was a committee studying the federal government's involvement in scientific research and technological development.

This involvement, under the heading of R & D (research and development), is absorbing upwards of $15 billion a year of the national budget.

The committee was the Select Committee on Government Research headed by Rep. Carl Elliott, Alabama Democrat. Since Elliott was defeated for re-election, it is unlikely that it will be reconstituted.

Nor is it likely that Rep. Elliott's chief recommendation will be adopted -- that Congress set up a Joint Committee on Research Policy which would attempt to gain an overview of all specialized scientific activities the government is supporting.

One of the reasons given by Washington observers is that R&D expenditures have now become so vast congressmen no longer try to contain them but are primarily concerned with seeing that their states or districts get a share of them.

Another reason, and one that reflects a situation much more difficult to remedy, is that congressmen are not scientists. They share the layman's awe about science.

History records so many scientific projects which seemed ridiculous on their faces but which resulted in stupendous scientific and social revolutions that congressmen are reluctant to pronounce judgment on a given scheme simply because they don't understand it.

The decision, more often than not, is to err on the side of caution -- which means to spend money on the chance that it may eventually benefit the country.

An old legal phrase asks: "Who shall keep the keepers?" That is, who shall police the police, judge the judges, rule the rulers?

In this democracy, the three branches of the federal government perform part of the job by checking on each other, and the people, with their vote, are the ultimate keepers.

But who shall watch the scientists?

If Congress can't, and the citizens can't, then the scientists themselves must. But Congress must first at least create the legislative apparatus which will allow trained people to maintain this overview of the government's - the people's -- involvement in science.

H. L. Hunt Says

POPULATION EXPLOSION

We are undergoing a well recognized population explosion. Longevity is an important factor.

Better health at all ages is playing a highly important part. War babies themselves are reaching the reproduction age and the wartime psychology which parented them is little abated.

Our population will reach 350 million in the 2,000 A. D. census, but greater sophistication and a more workable planned parenthood program may materially slow this unbelievably rapid increase.

If we disarm, new devices for destroying human life by the millions can reduce the United States population fast. Communist bosses in the past have told us when Communism takes over in the United States, one-third of the population will be liquidated even if voted into power.

The prospect for the first United States President to be inaugurated at the turn of the century is now one of our youth 19 years of age. If future presidents are older upon inauguration because of the increased life span the presidential hopeful for the year 2001 may now be age 25.

There may also be a recurrence of thought that that advanced years are a more suitable repository for wisdom. This could happen but not likely, and impulsive, impetuous youth of either sex will have its way. Accepting the premise that youth must be served, our presidential hopeful may be as young as 15 years.

We might discover one or two prospects among youth we know, for with few exceptions the greatest speakers and spellbinders were orators while young.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — A lot of people are asking just how we got into the impossible Vietnam predicament in which we are damned as appeasers if we pull out and damned as imperialists if we stay in.

The answer is contained in secret files of the State Department and the Pentagon dating back to 1954, and they make fascinating though tragic reading.

For eight years prior to 1954, a French army, fighting the same guerrilla war we recently have been fighting, was financed largely with U.S. supplies, planes, and dollars. The United States spent approximately four billion dollars supporting the French army in Indochina, more than we spent under the Marshall Plan in France itself.

The results, however, were most discouraging.

In 1953, Lt. Gen. John W. O'Daniel had submitted a secret report to the Pentagon that he could build a tough Vietnamese army. So, in the spring of 1954, he was sent to Saigon to try it.

The French, he reported back, wouldn't cooperate. He and other American officers reported that the French officers seemed to be doing their best to humiliate their Vietnamese allies.

Vietnam officers, for instance, were not permitted inside French military clubs. Every phase of French military effort came to a complete standstill three hours each day for siesta. War or no war, American technicians could get no supplies, transportation, or anything else during this three-hour period. One American officer also reported that he had seen a French sergeant on a bicycle run down a Vietnamese boy. But instead of helping the boy up, the sergeant had cuffed him for getting in the way.

Because of this high-handedness, confidential cables to Washington showed that, though the troops under French command outnumbered the Communist guerrillas two to one, native troops were deserting the French by thousands, surrendering to the Communists. The United States had repeatedly urged the French to let us take over the training of native troops, but the jealous French refused.

Confidential reports also showed that the French wouldn't even permit American observers to go up to the battle front to check on the distribution of the American equipment we were donating. One reason for checking was the report that part of our supplies were being sold on the black market and were getting into the hands of the enemy. Nevertheless, the French were so jealous of their sovereignty that they permitted no U.S. activity in Indochina except to allow us to fill out requisition blanks for more supplies from the United States.

—RHEE AND CHIANG TO RESCUE—

Meanwhile, Gen. John E. Hull, U.S. commander in Korea, conveyed a flat offer from President Syngman Rhee to send one South Korean division to fight in Indochina. Rhee also proposed that his troops in Korea launch an offensive there in order to divert Red Chinese supplies and troops from the Indochina front. An offer also was made by Chiang Kai-Shek to send Nationalist Chinese troops from Formosa. But both his and Rhee's offers were declined — partly because this would give the Red Chinese an excuse to enlarge the war.

The biggest obstacle, however, was the lack of French cooperation.

Meanwhile, amazing back-stage jockeying was started between the White House and the Pentagon to get the United States directly involved in the Indochinese war.

But President Eisenhower, with 42 years' experience in the army, was vigorously opposed. So was Gen. Matthew Ridgway, who had bailed out the Korean operation after Gen. Douglas MacArthur was fired, and who had become Army Chief of Staff. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles vacillated.

—FRENCH FACE DEFEAT—

In the spring of 1954, it was obvious the French were about at the end of their rope. Their wounded so clogged the corridors of Dien Bien Phu fortress that it took about half the French fighting personnel to care for them.

In desperate retaliatory attacks, the French had been kicking Napalm bombs out of the doors of cargo planes at an altitude of 9,000 feet in order to escape antiaircraft fire, but this amateur warfare resulted in dousing the French defenders with as much Napalm as the Communist attackers. Likewise, half the parachuted supplies and half the paratroopers were dropped in enemy territory.

The French pleaded desperately for American carrier-based bombers, argued that this was a rare opportunity to catch so many guerrillas in one place; but simultaneously the French Army, jealous of the French Air Force, had fixed an arbitrary ceiling of 10,000 on Air Force personnel permitted to fight in Indochina.

Into this vacuum of indecision came energetic Admiral Radford, whom President Truman had once banished to the mid-Pacific and whom President Eisenhower had rescued and made Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Suddenly Eisenhower found himself as much opposed to Radford as President Truman had been. The Admiral became a one-man lobbyist to draw the allies into Indochina. He argued not only for U.S. air strikes but for sending four American army divisions into Indochina. At one time he also held up the names of 50 warships scheduled to be mothballed, in the hope they later could be used for a blockade of the Communists.

However, Gen. Ridgway, who knew the problems of a land army fighting in jungles halfway around the globe, flatly opposed dispatching a single American soldier to Indochina, and President Eisenhower on the whole supported him. When Admiral Radford was able to convince neither his own Joint Chiefs of Staff nor the White House, he turned to the then Prime Minister of England, Winston Churchill, with the tacit support of Vice President Nixon.

More on the secret jockeying which led to the current Vietnam crises will be told in tomorrow's column.

NEW YORK (AP) — Rock Hudson sees a similarity between making movies and laboring in a mine.

"I like not working," said the big film star.

Next week he starts his 50th picture since 1948.

"I dread it — having to go down into the mines for 10 weeks," he remarked.

"A sound stage is really quite a bit like a mine. It's dark and it has no windows. I never see daylight — and turn the nicest greenish-white."

But Hudson doesn't dig coal in his mine. He brings up pure gold.

A big, shy, near-sighted kid from Winnetka, Ill., he sang in a high school glee club and church choir before going to Hollywood. He served in the Navy. He worked as a truck driver, piano mover, and mail carrier.

His first screen test in 1947 was so poor that one studio for a time showed it to other beginners as an example of poor acting.

But his rhinestone youth has long since turned into a diamond brilliance.

He touches the industry where its heart is — the boxoffice cashbox. Now, feeling a bit camera weary, he'd like to try Broadway.

"I'm looking for a good musical role," he said. "I've been taking singing lessons for a year."

At 39, this 200-pound, 6-foot-4 inch actor probably is the man most U.S. women would rather be cast up on a desert isle with. What kind of a person is he?

"Well," he said, enjoying the question, "I like coffee, nice people, old clothes, old cars, new cars, leftover foods, skin diving, sailing skiing, water skiing, hockey, wood paneling, hand-rubbed wooden antiques, old silver, paintings, sculpture, the feel of marble, candlelight, Technicolor films, harmony in song, heat waves, electric fans, desserts, mashed potatoes and gravy, scotch.

"And I like clean sheets, good service, moonlight, fireplaces, traveling, yodeling, reading fantasy tales, biographies, reference books, do-it-yourself books, making tape recordings of good music, playing the piano — but just for myself — remodelling houses, opera, limericks, the month of July, excitement in my life, kitchens, and Julie Andrews."

Insiders Predict Long Steel Strike

PITTSBURGH — What truly disturbs the knowledgable ones in this "iron city" is not the indecisive long count of the steel union presidential poll — but the decisive signs of a coming steel strike.

It may not break for months. But if it does the paralysis of the vast steel industry will last for months.

Both sides are deadlocked even before there has been any bargaining. Both sides have taken positions which place them hundreds of millions of dollars apart. However, this story has been lost to the public because the experts talk in a jargon of their own.

What it comes down to is that the steel industry, though speaking in percentages, has said in effect it cannot pay more than another $100 million a year to its factory people and salaried employes.

Over a three-year period this would mean committing itself to more than $300 million.

On the union side, though its leaders are feuding, they agree that this is "peanuts." They will ask for "substantially more." Just how much is "substantial?" no one can yet calculate.

Virtually all this calculation is done by the United Steelworkers Union's (USW) technical staff, who, to say the least, have been emotionally and politically disturbed these past few months. They have not had a chance to hold their industrial war councils. They've been split down the middle by the Dave McDonald - I. W. Abel battle.

They've been harried by fears they'd be fired if their side lost. Many have been with the union since it first swept across the Midwest in 1937. Other unions do not hire specialists fired by another union headquarters. Nor do government agencies, which are loath to make enemies of union leaders who have discharged staffmen.

So the headquarters staff has spent much of its recent time either politicking or organizing a union of their own, the Staffmen's Organizing Committee, to protect themselves.

But now that they've time for off-the-record talks, they're doing and saying what comes naturally — planning for the big league negotiations with the steel industry's four-man bargaining team representing 11 major corporations. The union's position, judging from talks with some of the steel workers' specialists, will be based on the following:

It has been traditional for the USW to get pretty much what Walter Reuther's United Auto Workers (UAW) have won. This goes back to the late forties when "auto" would wind up with an increase of 19 cents an hour and "steel" with 18 cents.

Last year, after a series of strikes, Reuther's union rolled up victories ranging from 18 cents to 21 cents an hour depending on how you do the arithmetic.

The steel union brain trust just would not think of not fighting the steel industry for an equal amount. The technicians might be calmed down a little by either McDonald or Abel. Certainly the union's final demand will not be scaled down to much less than what Reuther won for his auto workers, who live window-pane-by-window-pane with the steelworkers.

It isn't just a matter of status for the steel union leaders and technicians. It's a matter of political security inside the union. The rank and file will want to know why they get less than their neighbors down the street — and this can result in local union election upsets — which doesn't enthuse the regional and local chiefs at all.

Thus the USW national leaders will be asking for a package far exceeding that which the industry people say is their outer limit. Industry says that it simply does not have the money to raise wages more than nine cents an hour. Beyond that it will not go "voluntarily."

Since this means an added payroll of $100 million annually and it is just about half what the union is set to demand, the difference is vast.

There are those inside the union brain trust who say let the steel industry increase prices. It has not had such an across-the-board price hike since 1958. But even if the government agreed to permit this, competition wouldn't.

In 1963 the industry tried to raise some prices, but was forced to cut them back when buyers turned to European and Japanese markets or to other products.

So the insiders here say that barring the easing of demands for a "substantial wage increase" and the costly "permanent job security" plan, there will be a strike.

Miss Betty Ruth Dale

Betty Ruth Dale Will Say Vows With Ronald Gardner

Plans are being made for a late February wedding for Miss Betty Ruth Dale and Mr. Ronald Gardner. Miss Dale is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lyman F. Dale of Sikeston and Mr. Gardner is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Sullivan of Casper, Wyoming.

Miss Dale attended school and graduated from William Woods College in Fulton, Missouri, in 1958. She is presently employed by R. B. Jones Insurance Agency in Kansas City, Missouri.

Mr. Gardner attended schools in Casper, Wyoming, and graduated from the University of Wyoming at Laramie in 1960. He served as a lieutenant in the U. S. Marine Corps for three years and is presently associated with Hallmark Cards, Inc., in Kansas City, Missouri.

The wedding will take place in Kansas City after which the couple will leave immediately for Tokyo, Japan, where Mr. Gardner will be in charge of military installations for Hallmark Cards.

W.S.C.S. Meets For Book Study

MOREHOUSE--The Women's Society of Christian Service met Monday, Feb. 15th at 1:30 p.m. in the Fellowship room of the Rauch - Spence Memorial Methodist Church in Morehouse for the first session of a book study entitled "Spanish Americans". Eleven members attended.

Mrs. Wendell Fox was the leader of the book study and greeted each member at the door dressed in Spanish costume. The class opened by singing "In Christ There Is No East Or West" with Mrs. James Estep at the piano. Scripture, Luke 10:25-37 was read in unison. Mrs. Leslie Frazier followed with prayer for understanding between nations. Mrs. Fox introduced the two books to be studied entitled, "This Is A Myth" and "My House Is Your House" by author, Rafael V. Martinez. Mrs. William Dillon gave an interesting talk on "Our Hispanic Heritage". Mrs. Joe Barnett and Mrs. Charles Allbright presented an interesting play about the Holden Institute entitled, "A Story Without End". A Spanish speech recording was played and a film strip, "Who Are Spanish Americans?" A Scripture Reading, Luke 19:12-23 was given by Mrs. A. W. Summers who followed with prayer. The closing prayer was voiced by Mrs. Frank Kesler.

The second session will be Wednesday.

Shortly after Dr. Enrico Fermi, Nobel Prize-winning atomic scientist, joined the University of Chicago staff, he was told by university executives, "Now that you are undertaking work for the government, you undoubtedly will need a secretary. We'll see to it that one reports to you tomorrow."

"But," protested Fermi, "I'm a physicist, not a businessman. What would I do with a secretary?"

"You must have one," the executives explained. "All important people in this country have secretaries."

"All right," said the scientist. "But in that case I shall need two secretaries --so they can keep each other busy."

Kenya was named after its glacier-topped Mount Kenya from the Bantu word "Kilinyaa," meaning "white mountain".

matter of fact

The custom of throwing rice at a wedding was preceded by the throwing of grains of wheat. In the 16th-century England biscuits made from wheat grains were thrown. Every one of the wedding guests carried at least one of these cakes. They were thrown at the bride as she crossed the threshold. Well into the 20th century in England, wheat was thrown at the bridal couple with the cry, "Bread for life and pudding forever."

Keep Kitchen Storage Handy to Work Areas

Storage is always a primary consideration in kitchen planning. Arrange cabinets and cupboards so that things are within easy reach of various work counter areas.

Small appliances can be out on counter tops if you use them often, but if the uncluttered look is preferred or more working area is needed, plan space for them in a cupboard close to the place where you use them most.

So oriented to fishing for food are penguins that even a starving one would not recognize shrimp, its favorite food, out of water

ANN LANDERS
Answers your problems

Dear Ann Landers: How can a person overcome stage fright? I guess that's what you'd call it although it has nothing to do with the stage. When I have to recite in class -- or worse yet if I must give a prepared talk -- I perspire and shake all over.

I am 16 and in high school. Ever since I can remember I've had this trouble.

Yesterday the teacher called on me to answer a question. My heart began to pound so loud I was sure everyone in the room could hear it. My mouth felt like it was stuffed with cotton and my lips moved but no voice came. After what seemed like an hour, the teacher called on someone else.

I hate to think of going through life scared to death to open my mouth. Will you please tell me how to overcome this horrible fear? -- MOUSEY

Dear Mousey: First, know your material cold. If you are well prepared and confident, you won't be such a nervous wreck when the teacher calls on you.

Next, practice speaking aloud at home, before the mirror. Get accustomed to the sound of your voice. Memorize and recite both prose and poems, and ask a member of your family or a friend to listen to you.

Third, force yourself to get on your feet and speak out. In time the fear will vanish. I know it can be done because I have done it.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm an 18-year-old girl who is going with a boy 19. We have both dated others but we prefer one another's company so we are now dating steadily, but not steady.

Buddy and I have grown up in the same block. Our parents are friends and we go to the same church. I thought I knew all about Buddy but I learned by accident that he had dated a very cheap girl. I decided to speak to him about it. He said he was ashamed of himself and finally stammered, "A fellow has to have two girls -- one he can be proud of and wants to marry, and one for sexual reasons."

Maybe I am simple - minded, but I don't get it. I've discussed this with some of my friends and was surprised to learn that they think Buddy is right. Is he?--RESPECTABLE

Dear Respectable: Buddy has a low opinion of sex.

In our society, sex belongs in marriage. I hope Buddy gets his thinking squared away or he may turn out to be an alley-cat type husband -- unable to find satisfaction with a respectable woman -- his wife, that is.

Dear Ann Landers: I've been reading your column for years and have never seen my problem in print.

I'm scared to death to be alone at night and I'm no kid, Ann. I've been married 10 years and have two children. My husband must travel in his work and he is out of town about one-third of the time. I'm just fine when the children are at home, but when they are away at summer camp, or visiting relatives, even for one night, I'm a nervous wreck. I toss and turn and imagine I see faces at the windows. The wind sounds like a human voice wailing and every shadow looks like a ghost. When morning comes I'm exhausted and can't do my housework.

I've talked to my husband about this and he says I am a silly goose. I know he is right but it doesn't solve my problem. Can you help? -- MRS. PETRIFIED.

Dear Pet: Have chain locks put on your doors. And make sure your windows have secure locks. Keep the porch lights on all night, and keep a light on in the hall outside your bedroom door. If this doesn't solve your problem get a dog -- and a big one -- with a loud bark.

Lonely? Uncomfortable? Just not able to make friends? Write for ANN LANDERS' new booklet, "The Key To Popularity," enclosing with your request 35¢ in coin and a long, self - addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self - addressed envelope.

Eve And The Apple Pie

I'm no Thoreau, but my advice
Is offered free. (Now ain't that nice!)
There really is no reason why
You need to make that apple pie
For any dame with kitchen freezer
Can bake a pie that's sure to please 'er.
Forget the pie, the book, the bed
And help ole Santa Claus instead.
No time to rhyme -- you know the reason--
It's the hurry, hurry season!

--Lucile Byrd Pitchford

HOW SLEEP THE BRAVE

How sleep the brave, who sink to rest
By all their country's wishes blest!
When Spring, with dewy fingers cold,
Returns to deck their hallowed mould,
She there shall dress a sweeter sod
Than Fancy's feet have ever trod.

By fairy hands their knell is rung;
By forms unseen their dirge is snug;
There Honour comes, a pilgrim gray,
To bless the turf that wraps their clay;
And Freedom shall awhile repair
To dwell, a weeping hermit, there.

Class "M" And "S" Regional Tournaments Begin Monday

Regional tournament committees have met, teams have been seeded, and field houses and gymnasiums across the state are being readied for the beginning of the class M and S regional basketball tournaments next Monday, February 22. The number of teams assigned to regionals ranges from 11 to 16. This variance in the number of teams assigned to tournaments within a particular class is due to the geographical location of the teams in that class. 224 schools in class S with enrollments under 161, and 244 class M schools with enrollments from 161 through 530 will participate in these tournaments.

The four probable strongest teams in each regional have been seeded by the regional tournament committees. Among the factors considered in seeding teams are won and lost records and a comparison of the competition played during the season. Attached is a list of top four seeded teams in each regional tournament.

The regional tournament winners will advance to the state tournament bracket in which play will begin at 8 different locations on Monday, March 1. First round state play in class S will be held at the state colleges in Springfield, Kirksville, Cape Girardeau, Warrensburg, and Maryville, and at Cuba High School. Class M games will be held simultaneously at the same sites with the exception of Kirksville, and games will also be played at Flat River and Monroe City High Schools.

Quarter - final games in both classes will be played on March 3 at Springfield, Cape Girardeau, and Excelsior Springs. A class S game will also be held at Kirksville and a class M game at Montgomery City. The quarter - final winners will advance to the semi-finals which are to be held at the University of Missouri in Columbia on Friday, March 5. The championship and consolation games will be played on Saturday, March 6.

The purpose of the tournament, series is to give each school the opportunity to demonstrate and evaluate, in comparison with other schools throughout the state, the knowledge, skills, and emotional patterns that have been taught through interscholastic basketball. An important factor in each school's interscholastic program is the sportsmanship of players, students, and fans.

The MSHSAA has, during the past several years, followed a comprehensive program to help its member schools improve sportsmanship. Some of the phases of this program are:

1. The supplying of materials and recommended programs for improving sportsmanship.

2. A series of cheerleader clinics which emphasize the contributions that cheerleaders can make in improving the conduct of both student and adult spectators.

3. A program for improving officiating which includes a set of minimum standards which officials must meet in order to be registered with the MSHSAA, a series of rules interpretation meetings, and a system for testing officials on their knowledge of the rules. This phase of the program was considered important since officiating is always a factor in the sportsmanship of spectators.

4. A rating system in which the officials rate each school that participates in a contest which they officiate, and the schools in turn rate each official.

The rating system mentioned in item 4 was adopted for the purpose of giving each school and official a means of evaluating their improvement in comparison with other schools and officials, and thereby providing a goal for which to strive. Since this program was first inaugurated, the over all level of ratings has improved each year. This indicates that our schools are providing their players, students, and fans with wholesome experiences which will contribute to the development of the attributes of good citizenship. To this end only, can secondary school athletics be justified.

(For more complete information concerning the tournament series, please see Volume I of the MSHSAA Athletic Manual which was released earlier.)

Bulldogs Have Tough Road Game Tonight

The Sikeston Bulldogs Bombardeers go a diving in on the Fredericktown Black Cats with the idea of winning their second game in succession. If they win it will put their record to 9-6 for the season.

After this game the Bulldogs will finish scheduled play next week with two home games. Monday night the Cape Central Tigers will evade the premises. Friday the Perryville Pirates come to wrap up the season's scheduled games of roundball. After that the Bulldogs enter the Class "M" Regional at Dexter the following Monday. Drawings will be held tomorrow for the seeding of the teams that are in the tourney.

For Fredericktown this wraps it up. From here they enter the Regional Tournament at Crystal City. Their won and lost is 9-12. An interesting thing to watch is how the Bulldogs go about stopping Ed Lane. He is the SEMO Conference's leading pointmaker this season.

Sport Shavings

by Dan Whittle

"Countdown to Kickoff," full-hour Saturday series previewing in depth the full schedule of National Football League games played each weekend, again will be presented on the CBS Television Network during the 1965 football season, it was announced today by William C. MacPhail, Vice President, CBS Television Sports.

MacPhail made the announcement in Palm Desert, Calif., where he is attending the annual winter meetings of the National Football League.

The television series will be presented on 15 Saturday afternoons from September 18 through the Saturday preceding the championship game.

Each week, in previewing the NFL games, the program will visit four stadium locations, where key contests are to take place, for up-to-the - minute pre-game reports. Coaches and players will be interviewed as the teams go through their final drills. All games will be previewed with highlight film of the teams in action. There will also be player profiles and topical features of special interest to football fans.

NEW YORK AP --Rick Barry's national leading average has dropped to 36.5 per game, but the 6-foot-7 star of the University of Miami, Fla., Hurricanes still has a comfortable lead in college basketball's individual scoring race.

The weekly statistics released Thursday by the National Collegiate Athletic Bureau show Barry leading with a 37.3 average on 821 points in 22 games through last Saturday.

Tuesday, however, Barry scored only 19 points against Stetson, dropping his average to 36.5 on 840 points in 23 games.

The late Wayne Estes of Utah State, who was accidentally killed on Feb. 8, remained in second place with a 33.7 average in the 19 games he played before his tragic accident.

Bill Bradley of Princeton retained the No. 3 spot with 31.1 with Dave Schellhase of Purdue fourth at 29.2.

Bulldogs And Cape Post Semi-Final Wins

Semi-Final action was completed last night in the Sikeston 7th and 8th Grade Tournament. The Bulldogs trimmed down the Poplar Bluff Mules 49-35 to run their season's record to 8-3. Poplar Bluff was seeded number four. Second seeded Cape downed third seeded Charleston 43-26. The Finals will be held Saturday night with the games beginning at 6:30 in the Armory.

Three Seattle University Basketball Players Arrested

SEATTLE (AP) — The Seattle University Chieftains, rocked back on their heels by a point-shaving scandal, regrouped Thursday to try to press on with their basketball campaign.

When they meet Nevada in Reno Saturday and Utah State in Logan, Utah, Monday, they'll be minus the help of their team captain, Charlie Williams, and two other teammates, Peller Phillips and L. J. Wheeler.

The three were expelled from Seattle University after the FBI arrested guards Williams and Phillips Wednesday night on charges of bribery and conspiracy to affect the outcome of the Chieftains' game against the University of Idaho Jan. 22.

Seattle won 89-72. The gambling point spread was 18.

At the same time, Williams and Phillips, both 21 and both seniors, were arrested, the FBI arrested Leo Casale, 24-year-old owner of a Chicago cocktail lounge, in that city.

The Rev. Timothy Cronin, chairman of the SU board of athletics, said Wheeler, 22-year-old Chieftain pivotman, was ousted along with Williams and Phillips because he knew of the incident and didn't report it.

Phillips and Williams, considered a candidate for All-America and described by SU Coach Bob Boyd as "the finest guard I ever had," were released under $1,000 recognizance bond each.

Casale, proclaiming his innocence to reporters after his arraignment was continued to Tuesday in Chicago, was released on a $25,000 recognizance bond.

Father Cronin said he and other officials of the university got the impression from talking to Phillips and Williams that they "were really victimized."

"Peller said that had it been a professional gambler, they wouldn't have talked to him," Father Cronin said. "But it was a fellow he knew. He thought he was kidding. He gave them apparently a big song and dance. They were just taken for a ride."

Father Cronin said Phillips told of meeting Casale in Chicago during a trip by the Seattle team in December, and the priest said the figure $130 was mentioned in his conversation with Phillips, but no money went to Williams or Wheeler.

Phillips, whose home is Detroit, was a student with Casale in Coalinga, Calif., Junior College.

Williams remained unavailable for comment, but Phillips said he intends to plead innocent at a preliminary hearing in Seattle March 1. In discussing the charge in the presence of his attorneys, Phillips declared, "I do feel I'm innocent."

His expression was glum as he was interviewed and said:

"I feel very bad this came about like this, because a lot of people have been shocked. I'm hoping they won't judge me, or Charlie, until we're proven innocent. . . ."

The young athlete said he felt particularly bad that he and Williams had been hung in effigy from a flagpole at the university Thursday.

Phillips's wife, Dierdre, is expecting the couple's first child in a few months.

Williams, a native of Colorado Springs, Colo., but who starred in high school basketball in Tacoma, also is married and is the father of one child.

Casale lives with his mother in Chicago.

O'Bannon Wins In Both Games

DISCOVER THE SMOOTHEST WHISKY EVER TO COME OUT OF CANADA

NEXT TIME YOU'RE MAKING THE DRINKS, INSTEAD OF YOUR USUAL WHISKEY, USE THIS SUPERIOR IMPORT.

Do what thousands of smart drinkers have done: Compare Windsor Canadian with your usual whiskey. Make two drinks, one with your "usual," the other with Windsor. You'll be amazed —as thousands are—at the extra smoothness of Windsor.

There are three reasons for this!

1. Windsor is distilled and aged in dry, crisp, mile-high Rocky Mountain air. 2. Windsor is made from Western Canadian grain, hearty and vigorous. 3. And the water is clear pure glacial water.

No wonder Windsor is the smoothest whisky ever to come out of Canada.

Yet this uniquely smooth, elegant import is priced right in line with leading popular-priced whiskeys. Try it.

Western Union Launches a Brand New "Doll Service"

Ever cuddle up with a telegram? Well, now you can with a DollyGram.

Western Union offers Candy-Grams to eat and Cigargrams to smoke! Now comes it newest and gayest entry - DollyGram--an amusing, message-bearing moppet to snuggle in fond memory.

DollyGram, the new dolls-by-wire service, began Feb. 16 and offers a selection of four endearing cuties, which can be sent by wire as novel gifts, carrying your sentiment embroidered on the front, with no need to compose elegant prose; the dolls' smiling, impish faces speak for you - a treasure of lasting pleasure for young and old alike.

The red-haired "Happy Birthday" doll, in gold velour, proudly holds a one-candle blue and white birthday cake in its tiny hands; the blonde-haired "Congratulations" doll, in blue velour, features a wide grin and carries a posy of assorted colors; the "Cheer Up" black-haired doll, in pink velour, has a pleading look as it clutches a nosegay of four blue and pink flowers; the golden-haired "Have a Happy Day" doll, in red valour, fondles a floral bouquet of pink flowers and has the widest smile of all.

The pixie-like dolls, each about six inches tall, are packed in stylish boxes, matching their velour colors. The four models, priced at $2 each, plus the cost of the telegraph service to destination, are displayed in Western Union offices across the country, where they may be ordered in person or by simply calling Western Union. Initially, DollyGram service will be available in about 1,000 cities throughout the country.

It is expected that the average DollyGram will cost between $3 and $4, according to the distance and class of telegraph service used. DollyGrams may be sent immediately at the fast telegram rate, or at the lower, night letter rate for next - morning delivery. Charges will be billed later, if desired, under the company's liberal credit policy.

DollyGrams are transmitted to their destination, where the ordered doll is taken from Western Union's office stock. An address card, with the name of the sender written by hand, is inserted in the colorful box sleeve, and the DollyGram is then delivered. One or more DollyGrams may be sent on each order. Doll collectors will probably want all four.

"DollyGram," said G. Stewart Paul, Western Union's vice president of Operating and Marketing, "carries happy sentiments across the miles in a way that words alone cannot express. It's a novel greeting gift for every age and mood -- for youngsters to scold or pamper affectionately, teenagers to howl over in Beatle-like delight, and adults to treasure with lasting pleasure."

Art League Stress On Originality

By HARRIET JONES, Art Supervisor, Sikeston Public Schools

I have served as art supervisor for Sikeston Public Schools for eleven years. The support and cooperation that I have received from both the school system and the town have been most gratifying. Sikeston is behind its schools to an extent that I am sure is unsurpassed anywhere in the United States.

Now Sikeston is going one step further toward the education of its citizen by organizing an art league. Organizations of this type are not uncommon, but I feel that this league is quite unique in that its approach is completely unselfish. The purpose of the league is not just to find a way to serve its individual members, but rather to give to the whole community. Membership and patron tickets have been on sale for only a few weeks and yet Sikeston has responded with amazing generosity.

Since the town has shown this intense interest in furthering the arts, it is the desire of the league to keep all of its activities on the highest aesthetic level possible. For this reason certain standards will be set for the pieces exhibited in the Spring Art Exhibit. These requirements are not made to limit the number of persons eligible to participate or to discriminate against the amateur but to establish and encourage a sound art philosophy. Art can be defined as a means of self-expression. If we keep this definition in mind we will be better able to determine which approach to take.

While recruiting members for the league we have found many who say that they are interested in art and enjoy copying others work but they claim that they are not creative and cannot do anything unless they have a drawing or photograph from which to work. It is true that this is the road of least resistance but can we call this self-expression? Is the individual making a new statement or just repeating what has already been said? In a country like ours where we are allowed to express ourselves it would be quite sad if self-inflicted inhibitions prevented us from doing so.

To better understand how these inhibitions develop, it might help to go back and examine the student in the primary grades. In most subject areas the student enters the first grade knowing very little and it is the responsibility of the schools to build from there. As far as creativity is concerned the situation is practically reversed. The youngster who has had no art training is usually filled with confidence and expresses himself freely. He will make you a picture of almost anything with little or no hesitation. It is the responsibility of the teacher and the parents to preserve this creative approach. Their role is merely to acquaint the student with tools and techniques so that he may express himself more effectively. Frequently this creative approach is destroyed when we impose adult standards upon the child. We may be completely unaware of it but this is exactly what we are doing when we let him color in a coloring book, fill in the numbered areas of a picture or reproduce other pictures. Incidentally, I feel that we are also encouraging him to be dishonest if we allow him to say that he painted a picture when actually it is not his work at all. Some will argue that these "exercises" are beneficial for they teach one to manipulate the brush, mix colors, and so on. This might be true but if one considers the damage that they do, the damages overshadow all advantages. If allowed to continue these practices of using guides or patterns for any length of time, the student leans too heavily upon these cruthces and feels that his work is unsuccessful unless he uses them.

Another argument that one frequently hears is that the individual knows that he does not have much talent and that he does not expect to become an artist, but that he finds enjoyment and fills empty hours by making these reproductions. This might be true, but, the enjoyment that he is receiving is nothing as compared with the real pleasure and feeling of accomplishment that he would get if the work had come from within. In the classes that will be given by the Sikeston Art League, this creative approach with an emphasis on originality will be stressed. It is our hope that each person attending, regardless of background or training, will find the courses quite rewarding.

The reason for bringing up the subject of originality at this time is so that individuals will have time to prepare work for the spring exhibit. It is possible that, to the untrained eye, this show will not have as much appeal as it would have had if copied work had been exhibited. We feel, however, that this is the only way that real progress can be made. In large city shows originality has been a requirement for some time but I think that Sikeston can take real pride in the fact that it is the first town in Southeast Missouri to sponsor a show of only original work.

Michaelangelo said "It is my desire that those who are to come will know that I have been". In short, I believe that this philosophy prevails in Sikeston Art League.

Thanks once again, Sikeston, for in my opinion, "all systems are go".

SEEKS ADVICE -- President Johnson sought advice from former President Eisenhower on the Viet Nam crisis during a surprise meeting at the White House. The meeting took place after Eisenhower visited Walter Reed Army Medical Center for a medical checkup. (NEA TELEPHOTO)

The money raised on Yogi Berra Day at Yankee Stadium in 1959 was turned over at his request to Columbia University for a scholarship. Berra visited the scholarship student one morning in his living quarters. The student shared a room with another undergraduate, who was still asleep. When they left, Yogi told the dean he wanted his student transferred to another room. "I don't want him rooming with someone who's still in bed at 9 a.m.," Yogi explained. "There's no excuse for a college boy to sleep that late. It's a bad influence."

Litterbugs Target of Bill Introduced in Assembly

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) —A bill aimed at litterbugs who desecrate Missouri's streams and lakes with beer cans and debris was introduced in the House today.

It would extend the present roadside anti-litter law to navigable streams and any state owned or leased land or lakes. Violation would be a misdemeanor.

Another new House bill would increase state welfare costs an estimated $15.5 million a year.

It would raise old age assistance, disability and relief grants from $70 to $80 a month, boost allowable property limits to $8,000 and let assistance recipients live with relatives.

Many similar bills are pending.

The Senate advanced a bill that would permit special road districts to share in county aid road funds from the gasoline tax. An attorney general's opinion held last November the road districts were not eligible for this money.

A constitutional change to let a governor succeed himself won House committee approval Monday night.

An emergency money bill carrying some $5.5 million was approved by the Senate Appropriations Committee today.

The bill provides funds for state agencies to finish out the fiscal year ending June 30.

Included is $332,000 to start modernizing the water systems in state parks and making them safe as recommended by the State Health Division.

The Senate committee added $300,000 for the Department of Revenue to aid in the cost of assessing and collecting taxes under a 1963 law. It also increased from $18,000 to $43,000 the allotment to build two new guard towers at the Moverly Medium Security Prison.

The committee chopped the funds for Central Missouri State College at Warrensburg from $261,800 to $181,200 on the grounds that would be enough for the school to finish the year at the present level of operations.

Similarly, the amount for aid to dependent children was trimmed from $400,000 to $300,000. The bill carries another $300,000 for blind aid and blind pensions.

At the request of Secy. of State James C. Kirkpatrick, the committee reduced the amount to set up a new unit to handle the uniform commercial code from $130,107 to $28,976 on the basis of revised cost estimates.

Kirkpatrick said the saving could be effected by off-hour use of a computer already installed in the state budget office. The new code goes into effect July 1.

Stricken was a $35,000 item to plan restoration of the first state capitol at St. Charles.

Illinois Professor Plans A 700 Mile Reservoir Lake

CARBONDALE, Ill. (AP) —A $1 billion thought provoker has been mapped by three geography professors who recommend a 700 - square - mile reservoir stretching from St. Louis to Cape Girardeau, Mo., as a solution to economic problems for four states.

The Southern Illinois University professors said in an interview Tuesday that their proposal is a veiled protest against costly localized development projects that do not reflect regional study.

The three—Robert A. Harper, Frank H. Thomas and Theodore H. Schmudde—contend big answers are needed for a water shortage that limits industry and recreation, retards municipal growth and restrains the full potential of water transportion.

"The lake is a far-out thought, and we consider it a good idea," Harper said, "but more important is inspiring people and the government to look at problems on a broad scale rather than pursue piecemeal efforts." The proposal includes a barge canal from Cape Girardeau to Helena, Ark.

The proposed reservoir would be named Thebes Lake. Thebes is where the main dam would be built southeast of Cape Girardeau. Another dam at Cape Girardeau would be the north gate of the barge canal across Southeastern Missouri and Arkansas.

They recommend a reservoir level 400 feet above sea level to assure the St. Louis metropolitan area of commercial access to the lake.

Such a level would create a lake 70 feet deep at Cape Girardeau and make barge navigation possible deep into Southern Illinois.

The professors say their proposal could provide an electric generating plant at the Thebes Lake Dam, considerable Mississippi River flood control, a vast water source for the mid-west and almost limitless—recreational potential.

The economies of Southern Illinois, Southeastern Missouri, Western Kentucky and Arkansas would be affected, the three said.

The proposal was made public recently at the Mississippi Valley Association Convention in St. Louis by Prof. Thomas.

He said the first reaction was to dismiss the plan as outlandish.

"But I believe it now has started some officials thinking big," Thomas added. "At least army engineers and barge operators were impressed at the St. Louis meeting."

Schmudde, Harper and Thomas acknowledged the proposed reservoir would encounter opposition because it would inundate much of the Mississippi River flood plain and several small towns.

ABANDON EFFORTS -- Rescue workers, convinced that James Mitchell, 23, of Winthrop, Mass., who has been trapped in a cave near Dolgeville, N. Y., since Feb. 13, is dead, abandoned efforts to reach him, but are still trying to reach his body by bulldozing away the side of a hill directly over where he was trapped beneath a stream of icy water. ## Armed Forces

BLYTHEVILLE AFB, Ark. -- A 34-year-old aircraft commander has been selected by the 97th Bomb Wing as the outstanding officer for the month for January.

Captain John K. Lotz, 97th Air Refueling Squadron, is a KC-135 jet tanker aircraft commander with a perfect score of one-time-take-offs for the past three years.

A native of Baton Rouge, La., Captain Lotz received his flying wings in June 1955 while assigned to Enid AFB, Okla. He arrived here six years later in the winter of 1961.

In selecting Captain Lotz for the officer of the month award, he was presented a citation which read in part, "Captain Lotz's exceptional record speaks for itself, and marks him as a highly professional aircraft commander and an outstanding officer."

Captain Lotz is married to the former Miss Judith Robinson of Denan Springs, La., and they reside on base with their two sons, Jeffery K., 6, and Joseph K., 4.

When not behind the wheel of the KC-135, Captain Lotz likes to while away the hours either playing golf or catching up on the latest novels.

MAMA'S LACE

She spent the winter knitting
Her love into yards of lace,
Crocheted a baby bonnet
To frame her grandchild's face;
She cross-stitched kitchen aprons,
And wove a coverlet
In shades of pink, blue and white
For baby's bassinet.
The lace now trims my pillows;
The bonnet I have kept
To pass on to her grandchild,
Packed with the coverlet
Each time I tie my apron,
Or touch the dainty lace,
I feel her near, and see the
Smile on Mama's lovely face.

In even a minutest digression
Folks vent their indignant wrath
In voluminous expression!

Find the strength for your life...

Does it seem to you sometimes that the world has gotten so crowded and complex that you just don't count at all in the grand scheme of things? It's not uncommon, that feeling. We feel helpless . . . unable to alter or even really to understand ourselves and the world we live in.

Faith is missing—and because of that, spiritual strength is.

But faith and spiritual strength can be found, nourished. Then they grow within you through regular worship. This week go to your church or synagogue. Start to build a fuller, more meaningful life. Cherish your faith and keep it strong so that it may strengthen you.

Capt. Matthews Transferred, Plans Visit To Sikeston

Captain H. Spencer Matthews, Jr., will be relieved in March as Executive Officer of the U. S. Seventh Fleet attack aircraft carrier USS HANCOCK (CVA-19) and has been ordered to report to the Joint Chiefs of Staff in Washington, D. C., for duty in early April.

HANCOCK was one of the two attack carriers that conducted the retaliatory strikes in North Vietnam Feb. 7 while operating in the Western Pacific. Deployed from the U. S. West Coast in October 1964, HANCOCK has been part of the Seventh Fleet since November 1964.

Taking over Captain Matthews duties will be Commander R. J. Licko, who is now serving aboard HANCOCK as the ship's Navigator.

Capt. Matthews began his Naval Career in April 1940 and was commissioned an Ensign and received his wings as a naval Aviator in August 1943. In the last two years of World War II he flew 50 combat missions from England in anti-submarine warfare in the English Channel, the Bay of Biscay and the Eastern Atlantic. He was awarded the Air Medal for his combat action in the European Theater.

After the war, the captain was designated Navy Jet Pilot No. 115 while serving as a test pilot at the Naval Air Test Center at Patuxent, Md. His subsequent tours of duty include serving aboard several carriers and command of squadrons of the world's smallest jet attack aircraft, the Douglas Skyhawk, with the Seventh Fleet in the Far East.

He also has served with the Institute of Naval Studies, a group of Naval Officers and civilian scientists that conducts long range studies and investigations on future naval problems to serve as aids in planning the future U. S. Navy.

Captain Matthews reported to HANCOCK in February 1964 from Carrier Air Wing TWO, which is based on the USS MIDWAY (CVA-41). As Commander of the wing, he flew from the flight deck of MIDWAY the world's fastest carrier - based jet aircraft, the McDonnell F4B, called the Phantom II, which is manufactured in St. Louis, Mo.

Captain Matthews graduated Phi Beta Kappa from Tulane University with a Bachelor of Science degree in mathematics. In his senior year at Tulane, he received the annual Glendy Burke Gold Medal for outstanding achievements in the field of mathematics. Captain Matthews also was graduated from the Naval War College at Newport, Rhode Island in 1958.

The captain was born in Clarksville, Arkansas. His wife Floye and two daughters are presently visiting the captain's mother, Mrs. Flora Matthews in Sikeston, Mo. Their third and oldest daughter Kathy is a freshman at the University of California.

Captain Matthews plans on a short period of leave in Sikeston with his family early in April before they leave with him for Washington.

Matthews News

"Our Children--the Reason for PTA" was the subject around which Mrs. Orrin Hunt developed a most interesting program for the Matthews R-V PTA meeting Monday evening. Mrs. Marcus Koch and Mrs. Dale Geske, dressed in costumes of the 1890's, impersonated Mrs. Alice Birney and Mrs. Phoebe Apperson Hearst, founders of the organization in a skit reviewing its objectives. Other members commented briefly upon these objectives of human values, spiritual faith, good home, sound health, education promotion of educational opportunity, vocational competence, conservation of natural resources, constructive use of leisure time, international understanding, and citizenship.

Mrs. Hunt stressed the fact that the purpose of the PTA was to seek cooperation and understanding between parents and teachers on matters pertaining to the child's development and not to interfere with the administration of the educational program being carried out by qualified and duly appointed personnel selected by the Board of Education.

The meeting was called to order by Mrs. Nelson Gruen, who assumed the duties of president upon the resignation of Herbert Bird. The devotional was given by Mrs. Bob Hunt. An instrumental duet, the theme song for the Nazarene Young Poeples' Assn., "Onto the Work and Into the World", was played by Barbara Hunt and Charles Shelby.

The group voted to set a $3.00 limit on the book selected by the teacher for the room having the largest number of parents and teachers present. The 8th grade was winner in high school and there was a 4-way tie in the elementary grades.

A delicious pot-luck dinner was enjoyed by the group at 6 o'clock. The tables were very attractively decorated by Mrs. David York with fresh floral arrangements and Girl Scout place mats.

The Church of the Nazarene held their annual Valentine parties on February 11 and 12. The Kindergarten and Primary Departments held their party at the home of the primary teacher, Mrs. Glenn Burch. There were about 15 children attending. Mrs. Burch was assisted by the kindergarten teacher, Mrs. Josie Ball, and two mothers, Mrs. Don Cecil and Mrs. Frank Rinehart.

The Teenage party was held at the home of their supervisor, Mrs. Bob O. Hunt with Barbara and Beverly Hunt as co-hostesses. There were 12 teenagers to enjoy the games, exchange of valentines, and refreshment of cookies and chocolate milk.

The Junior party was held at the home of their teacher, Mrs. Marilyn Rudisill, who was assisted by Mrs. Raymond Leech. The 14 Juniors enjoyed an evening of games, Valentine exchange, and refreshments.

Those from the local church among the 180 attending the annual Sweetheart Banquet of the Missouri District Nazarene Young People held at Dexter on February 13 were Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Burch, Shelia and Rita; Mr and Mrs. Kenneth Rudisill; Rev. and Mrs. Bob C. Hunt, Barbara and Beverly; Charles Shelby, Twyla Leach, Johnny Perry, and Margie Sutton. After a delicious chicken dinner they were shown the film, "Mr. Texas" produced by Billy Graham.

Friday evening, Feb. 19 there will be a Nazarene Young People's Society zone rally at the Matthews Church of the Nazarene. At the rally there will be the Scripturerama playoff. The public is invited to attend.

The Matthews Community Club will meet on Wednesday evening Feb. 24 at 7:30 at the Community Center. Small equipment for the home will be the subject for the program presented by Mrs. Charles Eby and Mrs. Clifford Sutton.

Room Mothers (and in some instances interested patrons,) arrived at the Matthews R-V Elementary School at 2:15 on Friday, afternoon with games, favors, and refreshments for the annual Valentine party. The children look forward to and appreciate these parties as one of the highlights of the year.

Those assisting with the parties were: First Grade: Miss Frankie Deane's Room--Mrs. Bob C. Hunt, Mrs. Cecil Jones and Mrs. Wade Parker; Mrs. Lois Hooks' Room: Mrs. R. L. Richards, Mrs. Donald Wilburn, Mrs. William Roberts, Mrs. Linzy Walls, and Mrs. Almous Krykendall.

Second Grade: Mrs. Alexander's Room -- Mrs. Fred Harris, Mrs. Roy Miller, Mrs. Bob Greene, and Mrs. Walter L. Beck; Miss Alice Deane's Room: Mrs. Charles Eby, Mrs. Glenn Burch, and Mrs. Ralph Fairres.

Third Grade: Mrs. Bean's Room: Mrs. William Cole, Mrs. Virgil Porter, Mrs. Joe White, Mrs. Kenneth Rudisill, and Mrs. Louis McDonald. Mrs. Depro's Room -- Mrs. Peter Myers, Mrs. Nelson Curtis, and Mrs. Harold Johnson.

Special Education: Mrs. Kornegger -- Mrs. J. H. Calvin and Mr. Lyle C. Bird. Mrs. Whiffen's Room -- Mrs. Willia m Arthur and Mrs. Troy Tippett.

Fourth Grade: Mrs. Hubbard's Room -- Mrs. John Nelson, Mrs. Marcus Koch, Mrs. Raymond Gore, and Mrs. Paul Moore. Mrs. Conrad's Room: Mrs. Joe Rennier, Mrs. Floyd Clark, Mrs. Eugene Warren, and Mrs. Carl Romines.

Fifth Grade: Mrs. Moore's Room: Mrs. Troy Tippett, Mrs. Ray McCoy, Mrs. Shirley Johnson, Mrs. Fred Stroud. Mrs. Keaton's Room: Mrs. Ruben Hartlein, Mrs. G. H. Jones, Mrs. Verdis Faulkner, Mrs. Clyde Griffin, and Mrs. Lindley Heuiser.

Sixth Grade: Mrs. Greene's Room--Mrs. Lester King, Mrs. Ted Yarbrough, Mrs. Carl Shelby, Mrs. Richard Gaines, and Mrs. Frank Helms.--Mrs. Stafford's Room. -- Mrs. Charles Danield, Mrs. Paul Farrenburg, Mrs. J. B. Lomax, and Mrs. H. D. Friend.

Mrs. Lucille Givens, Miss Pat Williams, Mrs. Henrietta Hubbard, and Mrs. Glenda Conrad attended a meeting of elementary principals and teachers at the Colonial Inn in Cape Girardeau last Wednesday Approximately 140 area teachers attended the program presented by three specialists from a text book company. They gave an overview and orientation of a new basic reading series, dictionaries, and social studies materials which the teachers will be using next year.

Members of the Christian Church congregation enjoyed a fellowship supper in the church dining room Sunday evening at 6 o'clock. A Valentine motif was used in the decorations by the Pairs and Spares Class who also provided the barbecued meat for the supper. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Green and daughters of Sikeston were guests.

Pfc. Larry Green who is stationed at Fort Knox, Ky, spent last weekend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Green.

Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Alsup moved recently from this community to Mississippi where they have purchased a dairy farm.

CONSERVATION

Since the Conservation Commission is a part-time board (meeting monthly) its primary function is to determine basic policies of the department. The over-all administration of the policies and programs rests with the director who is responsible to the commission.

Early in 1964 a major reorganization of the department was made. Two new offices were created: Assistant Director (line functions), and Assistant Director (staff functions). The divisions of the department were increased to four (field, fisheries, game, and forestry) and placed under the direction of the assistant director (line functions). The following staff functions were placed under the direction of the assistant director (staff functions): engineering; fiscal; information; personnel; planning; metropolitan offices; and operations (new).

The Missouri State Park Board is assigned to the Department of Conservation by executive order of the Governor, but the order specifically stated that the Park Board should continue to function as an independent agency. In 1961, by statute, the board was declared to be "a body corporate and politic" and was authorized to issue revenue bonds for capital improvements.

The composition of the board is bipartisan and consists of six members appointed by the Governor, with senatorial confirmation, for staggered terms of four years. The board is authorized by law to appoint a director of state parks.

The Park Board, like the Conservation Commission, is a part - time body meeting monthly. The board has the responsibility for the operation, maintenance, and development of the state park system. Its statutory functions are;

1. The acquisition of land or sites for park purposes.
2. The awarding of contracts for concession privileges within the parks.
3. The maintenance and development of outdoor recreational areas within the park system.

The funds for the acquisition, maintenance, and operation of the state park system are constitutionally guaranteed. Article III, Section 47 of the 1945 constitution provides that for twelve years beginning with the year 1961 "the general assembly shall appropriate for each year out of the general revenue fund, an amount not less than that produced annually at a tax rate of one cent on each one hundred dollars assessed valuation of the real and tangible personal property taxable by the state, for the exclusive purpose of providing a state park fund to be expended and used by the agency authorized by law to control and supervise state parks. . ."

The primary function of the Park Board is to determine basic policies and programs. The director, appointed by the board and responsible to it, supervises the administration of the policies and programs. The agency has the following divisions: historical; recreation; planning; construction; maintenance; and fiscal. Each park superintendent is responsible to the director.

OUTDOOR RECREATION

15. Recommendation;

That the General Assembly create an interagency Council for Outdoor Recreation composed of representatives from state agencies concerned with outdoor recreation.

By order of the Governor, the director of Conservation has been designated as the coordinating officer in matters of outdoor recreation in Missouri and the state's official representative in dealing with the new Federal Bureau of Outdoor Recreation. The director of Conservation has asked the director of State Parks and the director of the Division of Commerce and Industrial Development to serve with him as an informal coordinating committee to consider the creation of a comprehensive state plan for outdoor recreation.

There is a growing need for interagency organizations to coordinate programs which involve two or more state agencies. The following ten state agencies are engaged in some aspect of outdoor recreation; Conservation Commission; Park Board; Division of Commerce and Industrial Development; Boat Commission; Division of Health; Water Pollution Board; Water Resources Board; Division of Geological Survey and Water Resources; Highway Commission; and the University of Missouri. The creation, by statute, of an interagency Council for Outdoor Recreation composed of representatives from each of these agencies would provide the needed structure within which a state-wide plan for outdoor recreation would be developed. An executive secretary should be employed together with sufficient staff to serve the council.

INTO ORBIT -- A powerful Saturn --1 booster rocket successfully propelled America's heaviest satellite, Pegasus, into orbit in a shot from Cape Kennedy, Fla. Pegasus' wing-like, 96-foot span is covered with thin aluminum foil and each time a particle of cosmic debris penetrates the foil, an electrical charge will be interrupted and the hit counted. Scientists hope the device will give a better idea of the hazards meteroids pose for spaceships.

Blodgett News

The Blodgett Methodist Mens' Club members and guests began their February meeting last Friday night with a devotional by the new pastor, Rev. J. Bernard McGoldrick, of Poplar Bluff.

Secretary Gary Beggs read the minutes of the last meeting. Treasurer Ebert Rister made the financial report. Miscellaneous business matters were disposed of.

A round table discussion occurred regarding U. S. Foreign aid, especially wheat to Egypt which recently let a mob burn the Kennedy Library in Cairo, shoot down an American oil company unarmed plane, and told the U. S. to go to hell with their aid. The consensus of opinion was that our Foreign Aid program was susceptible to better management, both by American administrators, and also by foreign officials distributing our aid goods and funds in their respective countries.

The March cabinet meeting was scheduled for the night of the 5th; the regular membership meeting a week later, the 12th; both at 7:30.

Rev. Floyd Brower, Poplar Bluff-Sikeston Methodist District Superintendent, was one of the guests, and spoke briefly on subjects pertinent to Methodist churches and Methodist Mens' Clubs.

The social period--coffee, cake and conversation--terminated the meeting.

DROP-OUT

In his hand he held the key
To the door of opportunity;
No need to listen for the knock--
He had the key which fit the lock.

Beyond the door lay education,
Yet, without much meditation,
He relinquished his hold on the knob,
In order to obtain a job.

But soon he was to realize
That his choice had been unwise;
And he thought about how carelessly
He'd given up that golden key.

--Charlotte T. Place

Today's Spanish Lesson

By William Archer
Lesson No. 2
Reading time 3 Min.
Study time 5 Min.

Our first "key" was 'quiero' (key-AIR-o). It means, 'I want', 'I desire'. Now, we will add to this "key". The verb 'to go' is 'ir' in Spanish. It is pronounced 'ear', in English sound; so, if you want to say, 'I want to go', in Spanish, you simply say in English, 'key -AIR - o/ear (quiero ir). That is all? 'I want to go' -- where? 'I want to go to the hotel'. Just say in English, 'key-AIR-o/ear /ahl /o-TELL (quiero ir al hotel).

You can already see how "key" #1, 'quiero' (key-AIR-o), can unlock all verbs in the Spanish language when used in the infinitive form. For example, 'I want' (quiero) obviously calls for another verb -- an infinitive; I want TO GO, TO EAT, TO SLEEP, etc. Many Spanish verbs are similar to English, such as:

A--English; B--Spanish; C--Sound.

A) to practice; A) to rent
B) practicar; B) rentar
C) prahk-tea-CAR; C) rain-TAR

So, if you desire to say, 'I want to practice', or 'I want to rent', you need only use your "key", 'quiero' (quiero), with the Spanish infinitives, 'practicar' or 'rentar':

A) I want to practice; B(Quiero practicar; C) key-AIR-o/prahk-tea-CAR

A) I want to rent; B) Quiero rentar; C) key-AIR-o /rain-TAR

It's simple when you use the "keys" -- YOU DON'T HAVE TO CONJUGATE VERBS! You use the infinitive, which never changes.

Now you see that you can join your infinitives with your "keys" (the same as you do in English), and are able to avoid the conjugation of verbs:

A) 'I want to go to rent'; B) 'Queiro ir a rentar'; C) 'key-AIR-o/ear/ah/rain-TAR'

See how easy it is? You use "keys" to avoid conjugations, and use the English sound to produce the Spanish pronounciation.

When the Spanish verb does not resemble the English, you will find that you can often rely upon association. For example: The Spanish verb, 'dormir', means, 'to sleep'. Associate 'dormir' (door-MEAR) with the English word, 'dormitory', which will immediately suggest 'sleep' to you. Now, if you want to say, 'I want to sleep', use "key" #1, 'quiero' (key-AIR-o), with 'dormir' (door-MEAR):

A) 'I want to sleep; B) 'Quiero dormir'; C) 'key-AIR-o/ door-MEAR

Your next "key" is, 'voy a'. It means, 'I go', 'I am going', 'I will go'. It is pronounced in English sound, 'voy/ah'. Thus, 'I am going to sleep' would be, 'voy a dormir' (voy/ah/door-MEAR).

New Commander Memphis District Engineer Corps

Colonel James A. Vivian, Corps of Engineers, U.S. Army assumed duty as District Engineer at Memphis on February 11, 1965, succeeding Colonel Edmund Kirby - Smith, now on assignment in South Viet Nam.

Colonel Vivian comes to Memphis following a tour of duty as Commanding Officer of the 37th Engineer Group, Hanau, Germany. A 1942 graduate of the United States Military Academy at West Point, New York, Colonel Vivian received his Master's Degree in Engineering at the California Institute of Technology in 1950. His military career has included duty in the Far East as well as in Europe, and various assignments in the United States, including three years (1951-1953) as Assistant District Engineer, U.A. Army Engineer District, Philadelphia, and four years (1956-1960) in the Civil Works Directorate of the Office, Chief of Engineers, Washington D. C.

Mrs. Vivian and a 13-year-old daughter, Jane, are with Colonel Vivian in Memphis. A son, James S. Vivian, is a second classman at the United States Military Academy.

It's Spring, or Nearly; Poets Getting Busy

WASHINGTON (AP) — In everything from halting prose to lyric poesy, peanut butter lovers are telling the government what they hope to find when they pry the lid off the jar.

One goober gourmet, stirred by memories of what the delicacy used to taste like in his childhood, sent the following to George P. Larrick, commissioner of food and drugs:

"I think it's time you will agree,
For people of the whole countree
To speak as one (no stammer or stutter)
To demand some peanuts in our peanut butter.
"Too long we've endured homogenization,
And the tasteless goo of dehydration.
Give us the kind with the oil on top,
With peanuts from the best of the crop."

On the other hand, an Arizona boy who evidently likes his the modern way, creamy and smooth with plenty of additives to give it zing and zest, implored the government as follows: "I am 11 years old and I love peanut butter very much. I would be happy if the government kept its peanut-picking hands out of the jar."

The occasion for this symposium about the toothsome spread is a four-year-old effort by the government to set standards for peanut butter. Its current proposal is that peanuts make up at least 90 per cent of the total weight.

Manufacturers generally object to this, and also to a proposed ban on certain liquid sweeteners, and some non-peanut oils.

More than 1,000 letters from the general public have come in to the Food and Drug Administration.

A Canadian doctor, writing from St. Petersburg, Fla., said: "I have spent 10 winters here and always bring down a winter's supply from Canada. It is ground up nuts and salt. Not a fancy mess of nuts and chemicals that tastes like anything but peanuts."

But a North Carolina woman plumped for "the peanut butter status quo."

"I would like the right to choose my own blend as I do now," she said.

Put a 'Ceiling' On Old Cracks

Cracked, peeling bathroom ceilings are an eyesore to any homeowner, but especially to one who has recently completed a remodeling job. Heat and moisture from the tub-shower area cause this aggravating condition.

Many homeowners are taking steps to eliminate this problem in the future by installing plastic-surfaced hardboard blocks. The blocks, which come in colors and patterns, can be damp-wiped clean. They are factory-treated to withstand high heat and humidity conditions, and never require painting or refinishing.

Easy to handle, the 16" square blocks can be put up right over old, cracked ceilings. Tongue-and-groove edges simplify installation. Wallboard adhesive is used to secure a strong bond.

Plastic-surfaced hardboard also comes in four-foot panels and 16" x 8' planks for use on wall areas.

Will Red Tactics Boomerang

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—"In a year or so," said Yang Hsi-kung, "what the Chinese Communists are doing in Africa will boomerang. They underestimate the intelligence of the Africans."

Yang, a handsome graying man, picked up an African wood carving, peered at it then continued: "They believe cynically that the Africans can either be corrupted or intimidated. They do not believe that human beings are capable of grandeur."

Yang, Nationalist China's vice minister of foreign affairs, is Chiang Kai-shek's top expert on Africa. In his own way he is fighting the Chinese Communists there. Though on the surface the two Chinas seem poorly matched, the small Nationalist program has achieved successes.

Communist China has expended enormous effort to make the emerging Africans see things their tough revolutionary way. It pours aid into friendly countries and ships guns and techniques to rebels leading subversion against governments they despise, such as that of the Congo.

Publicly acknowledged Communist aid to a selected list of African countries totals more than $130 million, much of it arranged by Peking's suave traveling salesman, Premier Chou En-lai, in his long African tour a year ago.

The Nationalist Chinese approach to Africa aims at overthrowing none of its governments, Yang says, does not peddle a political philosophy of any kind and instead of aiming for the top reaches down to the grass roots. Its core is technical help to the farmers, fishermen and small industrialists.

Its yearly cost: Around $2 million.

The Nationalist entry into Africa in 1960 appeared then to be an exercise in futility. A mission made up of 14 graduates of the higher agricultural college on Formosa went to Liberia to show how to grow paddy rice and, as Yang put it, "to drive home the fact that only through hard work can people in the developing countries get prosperity; there is no shortcut to industrialization."

This example of hard work was given by the 83 Formosan missions and technical teams which followed.

In Liberia, the original Chinese team increased rice production almost 600 per cent in acre.

The Chinese grew jute where it had never been grown before, saving Dahomey half a millimn dollars a year in imports.

On Formosa, 168 young Africans from 24 countries have attended seminars lasting five to nine months.

"We have offered very little," says Yang. "But we have helped the African to stand on his own feet, to show him that he does not have to live on a dole from anyone. We have given him, in a word, a sense of human dignity, something the Communists have overlooked."

Looking Back Over The Years

50 years ago
February 19, 1915

A baby boy was born to Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Tanner Tuesday morning.

Last Saturday a number of our young women met at the home of Miss Bess Randol to form a music club. The object is to study the different composers and opera. Mrs. E. D. Lee was appointed president; Mrs. H. J. Welsh, vice president; Bess Randol, secretary; and Burnice Tanner, treasurer.

The engagement of Miss Ruth Inez Felker to H. Garwood Sharp, jr., was announced by Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Felker at a Valentine party given at their home Thursday evening. No date has been set for the wedding. It will probably take place in the spring.

Workmen began last week to lay the foundation for a garage behind a home which Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mow will build on their lot at the corner of Tanner street and North Kingshighway. The home will be built of brick and will be one and a half stories high.

The Rev. Berne S. Oglesby, until recently pastor of the East Park Baptist Church in Decatur, Ill., accepted the pastorate of the First Baptist Church here Friday after a conference with members of the board of deacons.

Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Matthews, jr., left Friday night for Mexico City, where they will remain for a couple of weeks, returning via New Orleans, where they will attend the Mardi Gras.

Missouri Wants More Facts From Illinois as To Land Latter Claims

WASHINGTON (AP) — Missouri told the Supreme Court today Illinois should be required to furnish more specic information on its claims to lands along the Mississippi River between Chester, Ill., and Ste. Genevieve, Mo.

Missouri's statement was made in response to a request by Illinois that the Supreme Court grant permission to Illinois to file suit seeking to determine the boundary line between the two states in the area. The Constitution authorizes the Supreme Court to settle disputes between states.

The dispute developed from an 1881 flood when the Mississippi River cut through a neck of land and took a new channel.

Norman H. Anderson, attorney general of Missouri, said it was impossible to determine from the Illinois complaint the location of lands which Illinois claims.

"Nor can it be determined," Anderson's reply said, "whether Illinois claims a proprietary interest in the lands or seeks merely to vindicate chains of Illinois title in private individuals . . . if Illinois desires to claim sovereignty over lands on the opposite bank of the river established by Congress as its boundary it must be deemed to know the location, extent and origin of such lands and should, therefore, be required to state those facts before being permitted to proceed with a suit concerning them."

Anderson also said he had no funds to make more than a preliminary investigation and the Missouri legislature has been asked for an emergency appropriation. He asked that Missouri be "exempted from proceeding further" until the legislature provides funds.

Presidents and Former Presidents Seldom Agree

WASHINGTON (AP) — Presidents and former presidents get along — sometimes. They visit each other — sometimes. But there is no tradition of friendliness between them and sometimes there is little or no friendliness.

When President Johnson Wednesday had former President Dwight D. Eisenhower over to the White House to get his views on Viet Nam, it may have seemed normal because President John F. Kennedy had done the same sort of thing.

But anyone who thinks it's normal has a short memory.

There was a bitter gulf between Presidents Franklin D. Roosevelt and Herbert Hoover. Through the 12 years of Roosevelt's presidency Hoover never visited the White House and was never asked to.

Within a couple of months after succeeding Roosevelt in 1945, President Harry S. Truman asked Hoover to visit him to discuss the world's food problems and the two men became good friends.

But then the gap appeared again when Eisenhower became president, succeeding Truman in 1953. The long coolness between these two men ended only when Eisenhower visited Truman at his library in 1961.

It was the first time either had called on the other since Eisenhower's inauguration eight years before.

The presidential race between Roosevelt and Hoover in 1932, wasn't pleasant and until World War II Hoover had been a constant critic of his successor.

He blamed Roosevelt for lack of cooperation just before Roosevelt took the oath of office in 1933. Hoover had invited Roosevelt to the White House to discuss national and international problems, particularly the depression panic.

After Truman took over and discussed world food needs with Hoover, he sent the former president around the world to make a food survey for him. Then he appointed Hoover to head a commission on government reorganization.

During this time Hoover said some critical things about Truman's foreign policy — for instance, sending troops to Europe — and Truman called him an isolationist. But the two men remained friends.

Then came the 1952 presidential campaign when Truman backed Adlai E. Stevenson against Eisenhower. The latter, even though Truman had shown him great honor, criticized the Truman administration so severely that Truman charged that Eisenhower was waging "one of the lowest gutter campaigns I have ever seen."

Eisenhower, in his book, "Crusade in Europe," recalled that when he met Truman in Europe in 1945 the latter offered to help him get the presidency.

Truman denied this, said he had warned Eisenhower against the job.

Three years ago Eisenhower in a television interview said "I did invite him (Truman) to the White House but he already had some circumstances that prevented his coming."

Eisenhower, made use of Hoover's talents. For instance, in setting up another commission on government reorganization, with Hoover heading it.

Truman had opposed Kennedy's nomination in 1960 and stuck some harpoons in him. But, once Kennedy got it, Truman backed him. The two men remained friends thereafter.

In 1961, when this country ran into disaster with the Bay of Pigs invasion by Cuban exiles, Kennedy visited Hoover in New York to explain it and sent Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson to Missouri to explain it to Truman.

And Kennedy consulted with Eisenhower, Truman and Hoover during the Cuban missile crisis in 1962. Truman, reportedly, was brought into a National Security Council meeting when the Kennedy administration decided to resume nuclear testing in 1961, after the Russians did.

Kennedy consulted with Eisenhower in places as far apart as Gettysburg and California.

For a president to consult with a former president from the opposite political party may be wise and helpful to the country. It also has political value in discouraging, perhaps, some criticism from the opposition.

PRAYER

For Today From The Upper Room

I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly. (John 10:10)

PRAYER: Almighty Father, give us the courage and sincerity to follow with complete devotion the truth as Thou hast revealed it to us. May we be united in our ideals and our actions with Christ, the good Shepherd, who taught us to pray, "Our Father who art in heaven. . . . . Amen."

Pork Tenderloin Yields Tasty Dish For Entertaining

The most tender of all pork cuts, the tenderloin, gives a fitting dish for guests. Cut into patties which are browned, they are served atop a bed of noodles, sauced with a smooth combination of celery soup, cream cheese, olives and seasonings.

If pork tenderloin patties are not available at your retailers, pork cutlets may be substituted says Reba Staggs, widely known expert in meat cookery.

When browning the patties or cutlets as the first step in the recipe, keep the heat low so there's no smoking in the kitchen. This also preserves the tenderness and attractive appearance of this delicate meat cut.

Baking for 45 minutes in a moderate oven will finish the cooking for this casserole called a "bake." This enables the hostess to visit with her guests and bring a hot main dish to the table without fluster.

Company Pork Bake

12 pork tenderloin patties or cutlets (approximately 2 pounds)
2 tablespoons lard or drippings
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
¼ cup milk
1 package (3 ounces) cream cheese
1 can (10½ ounces) condensed cream of celery soup
6 ounces medium noodles, cooked and drained
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon celery seed
¼ cup sliced stuffed olives
2 tablespoons finely chopped onion

Brown pork tenderloin patties in lard or drippings. Pour off drippings. Season with 1 teaspoon salt and pepper. Combine milk and cream cheese. Stir in celery soup. Add noodles and ½ teaspoon salt, celery seed, olives and onion. Spread noodle mixture in a 2-quart baking dish. Top with tenderloin patties. Cover tightly and bake in a moderate oven (350° F.) 45 minutes or until done. 6 to 8 servings.

Polly's Pointers

by Polly Cramer, Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Polly

DEAR POLLY—After our street was freshly tarred my wife happened to step into the gummy, black stuff but did not realize it until she saw her black tracks all over the kitchen floor. She rubbed both the tar spots on the floor and on her shoes with paste wax and the sticky streaks disappeared.—RALPH

DEAR POLLY—I think the best way to preserve a car's finish is to apply an even coat of paste wax with plenty of elbow grease thrown in. I do find that time and effort can be saved by placing a little corn starch on the polishing cloth. The car is sleek and glossy in no time.—BOB

GIRLS—I am sure you will all agree these men do come up with some of the most down-to-earth pointers. Keep them coming, boys—we love them.—POLLY

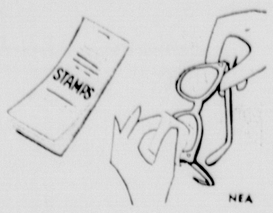
DEAR POLLY—If you have only a small length of thread that is the right color for sewing on a button, use some other thread first to anchor the button firmly and then finish off the top with the matching thread.—FRANCES



DEAR POLLY—Recently I discovered that the tissues separating the pages in a stamp book make an excellent cleaner for eyeglasses. Carry it in your purse and have it easily available.—TED

DEAR POLLY—Many of us have trouble buttoning blouses that open down the back. Try buttoning all the buttons except the top one or two and then slip the blouse over your head before finishing the buttoning.

• Those with stiff arms and hands will find that it is much easier to get a slip on and off if it has a zipper down the front. The extra ease is well worth the trouble of installing zippers in these rather close-fitting garments.—ETHEL

Let Dried Beef Escort Cabbage In Casserole

Pick out a plump green head of cabbage and a couple of jars or packages of dried beef and perhaps, some caraway seed: you'll have the main ingredients for a simple, good tasting casserole.

There are so many times when it's expedient to have a main dish casserole.

Coarsely shredded cabbage is steamed for approximately 5 minutes, while you make the white sauce, says Reba Staggs, noted home economist. Dried beef can be shredded by pulling apart or cutting with kitchen shears, she adds.

Creamed Cabbage and Dried Beef

2 jars (2½ ounces each) or 1 jar (4½ ounces) dried beef, shredded
1¼ pounds or 8 cups coarsely shredded cabbage
¼ cup butter or margarine
¼ cup flour
½ teaspoon caraway seed, if desired
2 cups milk
½ cup coarse bread crumbs

Steam cabbage 5 minutes or until tender. Melt butter or margarine in saucepan. Blend in flour, caraway seed and milk. Cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Add dried beef and cabbage. Pour into a 2-quart casserole. Sprinkle bread crumbs on top. Bake in a moderate oven (350° F.) 30 to 35 minutes. 5 to 6 servings.

Today In U.S. History

Today is Friday, Feb. 19, the 50th day of 1965. There are 315 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1945, the first Marines landed on Iwo Jima. It was almost a month before the island was wholly in U.S. hands.

On this date

In 1717, English actor David Garrick was born.

In 1803, Ohio was admitted to the Union.

In 1915, the British and French bombarded the Dardanelles in World War I.

In 1943, President Franklin D. Roosevelt and Madame Chiang Kai-shek held a joint news conference in the White House.

In 1945, a midnight curfew was ordered for all places of entertainment.

Ten years ago — The Southeast Asia Defense Treaty, signed in Manila, went into effect.

Five years ago — Queen Elizabeth gave birth to a son, the first child born to a reigning British sovereign since 1857.

Cornwall Funeral To be Saturday

CHARLESTON—Services for Dr. Harrison H. Cornwall, 73, who died Thursday morning at his home from a heart attack, will be held in the Methodist Church Saturday at 2 p.m., with the Rev. J. W. House officiating. Masonic grave rites will be held in the Odd Fellows Cemetery, with Nunnelee Funeral Home in charge of arrangements. He was a prominent civic leader and dentist in Charleston for the past 50 years.

Young Charleston Lady Seriously Ill

CHARLESTON -- Mrs. Van Coots, 16, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Galemore, Jr., was taken ill suddenly Tuesday night, and rushed next morning to the Baptist Hospital in Memphis, Tenn. It was at first believed she was suffering from spinal meningitis or lock jaw, but since she has regained consciousness several times yesterday it has now been ruled out.

She is believed to have a bursted blood vessel in her brain, and it is believed surgery may be necessary, according to her attending physicians. Her condition today is reported somewhat improved. Mrs. Coots is a sister-in-law of Mrs. Jerry Galemore, the Standard correspondent.

Rev. Billy L. Odom Dies Wednesday

PORTAGEVILLE--Rev. Billy L. Odom, 38, pastor of the Methodist Church here, died Wednesday in the Pemiscot County Memorial Hospital, Hayti, from a cerebral hemorrhage suffered the evening before. He was born June 25, 1926 at Success, Ark., son of D. M. and Nancy Odom.

He began his ministry in northern Arkansas conference in 1952 with his first charge being Campbell-Holcomb church for six years, and Senath for four years, followed by the Portageville church since 1962. In 1964 the Hayward Church was added to his charge.

He was married to Miss Virginia James in 1952, who survives. Other survivors are, one daughter, Mary Elizabeth, and two sons, Billy Jr., and James David, all at home; his father, D. M. Odom, Warm Springs, Ark.; three sisters, Mrs. Vernon Hudson, Naylor; Mrs. Edna Cathcart, Reno, Ark., and Mrs. Beulah Blade, Alexander, Minn. He was a member of the Masonic Lodge and a 32nd degree mason.

Masonic rites will be held in the DeLisle Funeral Home Saturday night, with services to be held Sunday at 3 p.m. in the Methodist Church, with the Rev. Floyd V. Bower and the Rev. Eugene H. Hall officiating. Burial will be in Memorial Gardens in Kennett.

EDUCATOR

trade occupations.

"The capabilities of the teachers have risen sharply in the past few years, and yet 10 per cent of them have left the profession for higher salaries. As a result you can never pay a teacher what he or she is worth. H. G. Wells stated as many as three decades ago that education is in a constant race with civilization.

"It is my contention that there is no better type building construction in the nation than elementary and secondary schools. We today have a mobile population, and cities and towns are growing rapidly.

"Your price education is well repaid when you consider the wages earned by an eighth grade graduate, a high school graduate, compared to a college graduate. We use six per cent of our national gross income for education, yet this year our income increased seven per cent. Compare this with Russia's 11 per cent of their gross income for education today, and Nigeria is spending 45 per cent.

"The cost of education is not measured in earning power alone, but it also adds value to a community, especially when many of the people will return to their community. The $5 billion that Congress is about to pass for education in four programs, such as loans for students in the national defense act, vocational education, the training of more doctors; the anti-poverty education, will add to greater stability. Added to this will be loans to those with low income, special centers for vocational educational schools, for experimental purposes, for scholarship programs, and for some parochial schools who have built their own schools.

"Today each American has equivalent of 400 persons at his elbows in the educational program, and is today a greater part of our life. We certainly have changed in the education of our children, and today the two most important people to them are a member of their family and the teacher. Sometime we find that both the average student and the creative child is discriminated against by a teacher, but I still have a bounding faith in the young students. They are willing to enlist themselves in many causes.

"The nation who has an excellent educational program, whatever it may be, will come out alright."

SITUATION

tion, Thao said, "We want to get rid of Khanh and restore order. We will see later if any of the present government will stay."

A new government named by Khanh had been installed in office on Tuesday. Dr. Phan Huy Quat is premier and Phan Khac Suu was retained as figurehead chief of state.

The coup took the U.S. Embassy by surprise. U.S. Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor said his first hint of the coup was the activity on the waterfront, which he noticed as he was on his way back to his office from lunch. He would not comment on the latest development in the cycle of perennial political upheaval.

Taylor, Deputy Ambassador U. Alexis Johnson; Gen. William C. Westmoreland, the U.S. military commander in Viet Nam; and other top U.S. officials met at the Vietnamese military headquarters with representatives of the coup leaders.

The Americans were reported trying to prevent bloodshed and to straighten out the situation.

The State Department in Washington declined comment for the time being.

One of the first indications to the outside world was a report from a Pan American World Airways flight controller at Saigon Airport. He notified Pan Am in Tokyo that the field had been closed to commercial traffic and a short time later said tanks were on the landing strips.

U.S. Air Force personnel at the airport at first thought a Communist attack was impending as they saw the circling military planes.

All Americans at the field were alerted.

"So what else is new?" said one U.S. soldier when told a coup was under way.

Chicago Offers Birth Program

CHICAGO (AP) — A program to provide free birth control devices and information to any person in Chicago has been approved by the City Board of Health.

The board rejected the term "birth control," saying it has a negative connotation, and referred to the program as "family planning" in voting approval Wednesday. The vote was 7-0 with one abstention.

"This program will have certain guarantees that the promiscuous, or immature who wish to be promiscuous, will not be helped by the Board of Health," said Dr. Erick Oldberg, president of the board.

The board said it will concern itself solely with the matter from the medical and health standpoint.

Dr. Oldberg said patients would be limited to women who had both medical and family screening, but added that information and devices would be free to any Chicago resident who asked for them, regardless of martial status, age or financial status.
